book describes an inquiry into the upbringing of young cerebral palsied children Following the precedent set by John and Elizabeth Newson in their studies of normal children at home Sheila Hewett visited the mothers of 180 spastic children and obtained their personal accounts of their experiences There is considerable literature on handicapped children in which the adverse effects of their presence in the family are emphasized This study is the first to present not evidence provided by professional people but that of a large number of mothers of all social classes who have children with all degrees of handicap They tell in their own words how they meet the problems and anxieties of everyday life and how they strive to maintain the norms of family living in spite of their very real difficulties A measure of their success is provided by a number of comparisons with the families of normal children Hewett s nursing experience combined with a social science training and personal experience of parenthood contributed a useful background for this research Resulting as it does from close collaboration with the Newsons her work provides an important extension of the main work of the Child Development Research Unit in Nottingham It will help all those who work with handicapped children to achieve a better understanding of the families to whom they offer their specialist knowledge To the general public it offers an opportunity to gain insights into a situation which calls for their support and acceptance but not their pity For the parents of handicapped children themselves it provides a much needed opportunity to make their views known and to see that they are not alone in the difficulties which they face with such stoicism and resourcefulness This book s last aim has been achieved by using the now extensive information about the upbringing of normal children obtained from Nottingham mothers in the United Kingdom by John and

Families of Handicapped Children S. Gray Garwood, Rebecca R. Fewell, 1981-01-01 Parents and Young Mentally Handicapped Children Helen McConachie, 2016-01-08 First published in 1986 this book reviews research on the role parents play in fostering the early development of children with mental handicaps Professionals and parents must work together to give such children the chance of living as ordinary lives as possible and here the author develops a broadly based conceptual framework for the involvement of parents as teachers of their young handicapped children McConachie identifies characteristics of parents which seem of particular relevance to the design and success of intervention programmes Although written in the 1980s this book discusses topics that are still important today

Family Consequences of Children's Disabilities Denis P. Hogan, 2012-04-01 The Americans with Disabilities Act ADA and other national policies are designed to ensure the greatest possible inclusion of people with disabilities in all aspects of American life But as a matter of national policy we still place the lion's share of responsibility for raising children with disabilities on their families While this strategy largely works sociologist Dennis Hogan maintains the reality is that family financial security the parents relationship and the needs of other children in the home all can be stretched to the limit In Family Consequences of Children's Disabilities Hogan delves inside the experiences of these families and examines the financial and emotional costs of raising a child with a disability The book examines the challenges families of children with disabilities encounter and how these challenges impact family life The first comprehensive account of the families of children with disabilities Family Consequences of Children's Disabilities employs data culled from seven national surveys and interviews with twenty four mothers of children with disabilities asking them questions about their family life social supports and how other children in the home were faring Not surprisingly Hogan finds that couples who are together when their child is born have a higher likelihood of divorcing than other parents do The potential for financial insecurity contributes to this anxiety especially as many parents must strike a careful balance between employment and caregiving Mothers are less likely to have paid employment and the financial burden on single parents can be devastating One third of children with disabilities live in single parent households and nearly 30 percent of families raising a child with a disability live in poverty Because of the high levels of stress these families incur support networks are crucial Grandparents are often a source of support Siblings can also assist with personal care and consequently tend to develop more helpful attitudes be more inclusive of others and be more tolerant But these siblings are at risk for their own health problems they are three times more likely to experience poor health than children in homes where there is no child with a disability Yet this book also shows that raising a child with a disability includes unexpected rewards the families tend to be closer and they engage in more shared activities such as games television and meals Family Consequences of Children's Disabilities offers access to a world many never see or prefer to ignore The book provides vital information on effective treatment rehabilitation and enablement to medical professionals educators social workers and lawmakers This compelling book demonstrates that every mirror has two faces raising a child with a disability can be difficult but it can also offer expanded understanding A Volume in the American Sociological Association s Rose Series in Sociology
