The Politics of Work-Family Policy Reforms in Germany and Italy Agnes Blome, 2016-11-25 One of the fundamental challenges facing modern welfare states is the question of work family reconciliation An increasing share of mothers work but many European welfare states do not adequately support the dual earner model especially in southern Europe After 2005 German policy makers transformed the nature of Germany's family policy regime through a number of legislative measures whilst Italy a country with many similarities witnessed little change Using a multi methods approach this book addresses the puzzle of why Germany was able to implement far reaching reforms in this policy area after a long impasse and Italy was not As such it delivers a broad systematic account of these reforms and sheds light on why similar reforms were not also adopted in other similar welfare states at the same time More generally it contributes to understanding the determinants of welfare policy change in modern European welfare states This text will be of key interest to scholars students and professionals working on topics linked to European politics welfare and work family policies comparative politics social policy and more broadly to political science and gender studies

The Politics of Work-Family Policies Patricia Boling, 2015-04-30 The work family policies of Sweden and France are often held up as models for other nations to follow yet political structures and resources can present obstacles to fundamental change that must be taken into account Patricia Boling argues that we need to think realistically about how to create political and policy change in this vital area She evaluates policy approaches in the US France Germany and Japan analyzing their policy histories power resources and political institutions to explain their approaches and to propose realistic trajectories toward change Arguing that much of the story lies in the way that job markets are structured Boling shows that when women have reasonable chances of resuming their careers after giving birth they are more likely to have children than in countries where even brief breaks put an end to a career or where motherhood restricts them to part time work

Women, the Family, and Policy Professor Esther Ngan Chow, Esther Ngan-ling Chow, Catherine White Berheide, 1994-01-01 The authors highlight how structural circumstances in countries with various degrees of industrialization are associated with specific policies The analyses of women's experiences reveal the variety of ways in which private patriarchy in families combines with public patriarchy in economies and states to create a system of domination which subordinates women The authors detail how gender is constructed under specific political economic and cultural circumstances and seek to understand how state policies with differing sensitivities to women's issues have produced mixed outcomes for women and their families in the process of economic development

Ackelsberg, 2013-01-11 Political participation in America supposedly the world's strongest democracy is startlingly low and many of the civil rights and economic equity initiatives that were instituted in the 1960s and 70s have been abandoned as significant proportions of the populace seem to believe that the civil rights battle has been won However rates of collective engagement like community activism are surprisingly high In Resisting Citizenship renowned feminist political scientist Martha Ackelsberg argues that community activism may hold important clues to reviving democracy in this time of growing bureaucratization and inequality This book brings together many of Ackelsberg's writings over the past 25 years combining her own field work and interviews with cutting edge research and theory on democracy and activism She explores these efforts in order to draw lessons and attempt to incorporate knowledge about current notions of democracy from those who engage in non traditional participation those who
