Family Population And Development In Africa:

Family, Population and Development in Africa Aderanti Adepoju, 1997 This book investigates the challenges facing the African family and their multiple effects from an extremely broad perspective The contributors explore the nature of available data on which current policies are premised marriage patterns the role of the family in agriculture the changing roles and status of women the transformations generated by mass migration the strains and tensions wrought by structural adjustment programmes and the functioning of family law Throughout the book makes clear the importance of the family to the development process The contributors call on development strategists to see the family as a dynamic source of change as much as the recipient of it as such this book is essential reading for students academics and activists in development studies

Family Demography and Post-2015 Development Agenda in Africa Clifford O. Odimegwu, 2019-08-27 This book is a comprehensive analysis of the structure determinants and consequences of changes in sub Saharan African families thereby representing an Afrocentric description of the emerging trends It documents various themes in the sub disciplines of family demography The first section of the book focuses on philosophical understanding of African family its theoretical perspectives and comparative analysis of family in the 20th and 21st centuries The second section covers family formation union dissolution emerging trend in single parenthood and adolescents in the family The following section describes types determinants and consequences of African family changes health childbearing youth development teen pregnancy and family violence and the last chapter provides systematic evidence on existing laws and policies governing African family structure and dynamics As such it illustrates the importance of family demography in African demographic discourse and will be an interesting read to scholars and students in the field of demography social workers policy makers departments of Social Development in countries in Africa and relevant international agencies and all those interested in understanding the African family trajectory

The Demographic Transition and Development in Africa Charles Teller, Assefa Hailemariam, 2011-03-04 The heated Malthusian Boserupian debates still rage over consequences of high population growth rapid urbanization dense rural populations and young age structures in the face of drought poverty food insecurity environmental degradation climate change instability and the global economic crisis However while facile generalizations about the lack of demographic change and lack of progress in meeting the MDGs in sub Saharan Africa are commonplace they are often misleading and belie the socio cultural change that is occurring among a vanguard of more educated youth Even within Ethiopia the second largest country at the Crossroads of Africa and the Middle East different narratives emerge from analysis of longitudinal micro level analysis as to how demographic change and responses are occurring some more rapidly than others The book compares Ethiopia with other Africa countries and demonstrates the uniqueness of an African type demographic transition a combination of poverty related negative factors unemployment disease food insecurity along with positive education health and higher age of marriage trends that are pushing this ruggedly rural and land locked population to accelerate the demographic transition and stay on track to meet most of the MDGs This book takes great care with the challenges of inadequate data and weak analytical capacity to research this incipient transition trying to unravel some of the complexities in this vulnerable Horn of Africa country A slowly declining population growth rates with rapidly declining child mortality very high chronic under nutrition already low urban fertility but still very high rural fertility and high population resource pressure along with rapidly growing small urban places

The Demography of South Africa , In nine essays originating from the running Miami International Relations Group seminar the editors and contributors introduce constructivism as an alternative to studying IR from a historical and systems analytical framework They advance constructivism in the context of the perennial agent structure debate discuss international relations under social construction as in national identity feminist struggle and global Internet governance and reconstructing the discipline Paper edition unseen 22 95 Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR

The Demography of South Africa Tukufu Zuberi,Amson Sibanda,Eric O. Udjo,2016-07-22 This groundbreaking study of South Africa provides a unique look at the interplay of demographic social and economic processes in a society undergoing rapid change as a result of the collapse of apartheid It uses data from the first post apartheid census as the basis for analysis of fertility mortality within the context of HIV AIDS migration education employment and household structure These census data are complemented by large scale household surveys and data from a partial registration system to study the relationships among various demographic economic and social phenomena For the first time the demographic consequences of both the longer term impact of apartheid policies and the policies of the new South Africa are examined and compared This comprehensive reference links the demographic behavior of South Africa s various population groups to social economic and political inequalities created by policies of separate and unequal development Prepared under the auspices of the Population Studies Center at the University of Pennsylvania it is an essential resource for all scholars and practitioners in the field

Women and Development in Africa Michael Kevane,2004 Kevane explores gender issues in Africa in the context of the continent s poor economic performance

African Families in the Twenty-first Century Aderanti Adepoju,2005 African Families in the Twenty First Century explores the idea that the family is the basic unit of society and an enduring multifunctional institution in Africa The functions and structures of African families as well as the multiple roles played by Africa s women are undergoing structural changes The ways in which education employment and current economic conditions reshape these complex roles are immense The challenges facing African families and their members such as globalization war poverty economic restructuring reproductive health HIV AIDS harmful traditional practices aging and care and support of the elderly have magnified due to a series of economic social political religious ecological and other related factors Author Aderanti Adepoju explores the vulnerability and resilience of African families in the face of these crises and challenges He also looks at the opportunities facing African families in the new millennium Because of the importance of African families to the development process African Families in the Twenty First Century is essential reading for planners policy makers activists academics and students Development and Communication in Africa Charles Okigbo, Festus Eribo, 2004 Although Africa is the world's poorest continent it is a major emerging market and partner in the global village of the new millennium This book presents a wide array of perspectives on the problems and prospects of developing Africa Leading scholars in African studies and international communication analyze the socio political and cultural experiences in various communities focusing on key questions What is development What are the main issues surrounding development in Africa And how can communication per se be used to address the persistent problems of underdevelopment Migration in South and Southern Africa Pieter Kok (Zuid-Afrika.), 2006 Covers three broad areas macro level migration trends in sub Saharan Africa micro level factors in South African migration and a synthesis of current migration theory Language and Development in Africa Ekkehard Wolff, 2016-05-26 This volume explores the central role of language across all aspects of public and private life in Africa

Migration and Development in Africa Steve Tonah, Mary Boatemaa Setrana, John A. Arthur, 2017-08-28 There are only a few studies that analyze the complex relationship between Migration and development in Africa The book presents the main trends in African migration since the last two decades It analyzes the major migration trends the various migration hubs across the continent and the underlying factors explaining the changing nature of migration across the continent A few of the chapters in the book examine the phenomenon of migration from a national perspective by focusing on migration trends in countries such as Ghana Cameroon Kenya and Nigeria Two chapters examine the migration links between Africa and Europe with one of them focusing on the political links between Ghana and the Netherlands while the other focuses on economic exchanges between the Cameroonian diaspora in Germany and selected groups and organizations in Cameroon The uniqueness of this book lies in the varied disciplinary viewpoints used by the authors in explaining the phenomenon of migration and development in Africa The authors are specialists in the fields of sociology anthropology geography history philosophy and migration studies Examining migration from so many different perspectives enriches the analysis and brings in new insights that would otherwise have been missing with the use of a single disciplinary perspective The book recommends the need for policy coordination by national governments of both origin and destination countries to manage the size and composition of migrants Most migrant receiving countries prefer to receive professionals and persons with the required skills and training while keeping out the bulk of untrained and lowly skilled persons The result of this is that most migrants leave their countries and enter their destination countries illegally swelling the numbers of undocumented immigrants Africa Toward 2030 E. Lundsgaarde, 2011-11-11 Combining studies of demography climate change technology and innovation political development new actors in international development and global governance frameworks this book highlights the major underlying determinants of change in the African context and key uncertainties about the continent's future development prospects Urbanization and Migration as Factors Affecting Global Economic Development Ushakov, Denis, 2014-11-30 International migration and urbanization are potential solutions for stabilizing the global economy and bolstering local and regional economies However if unregulated they can also put market stability at risk and cause new social problems in both developed and developing countries Urbanization and Migration as Factors Affecting Global Economic Development takes a close look at the impact of urbanization and international migration on the global economy Studying the dynamics of these two phenomena in countries across the world as well as the varying successes of regional regulations this publication is a valuable resource for academics interested in further research in urbanization migration and global economic efficiency as well as policymakers involved in regulating international migration and urbanization

International Migration Douglas S. Massey, J. Edward Taylor, 2004-03-25 International Migration Prospects and Policies offers a comprehensive up to date survey of global patterns of international migration and the policies employed to manage the flows It shows that international migration is not rooted in poverty or rapid population growth but in the expansion and consolidation of global markets As nations are structurally transformed by their incorporation into global markets people are displaced from traditional livelihoods and become international migrants In seeking to work abroad they do not necessarily move to the closest or richest destination but to places already connected to their countries of origin socially economically and politically When they move migrants rely heavily on social networks created by earlier waves of immigrants and in recent years professional migration brokers have become increasingly common Developing countries generally benefit from international migration because migrant savings and remittances provide foreign earnings to finance balance of payments deficits and make productive investments Some developing nations have gone so far as to establish programs or ministries dedicated to the export of workers Developed nations in contrast focus more on the social and economic costs of immigrants and seek to reduce their numbers regulate their characteristics and limit their access to social services Over time receiving nations have gravitated toward a similar set of restrictive policies yielding undocumented migration as a worldwide phenomenon Globalization also creates infrastructures of transportation communication and social networks to put developed societies within reach In the latter ageing populations and segmenting markets create a persistent demand for immigrant workers All these trends are likely to intensify in the coming years to make immigration policy a key political issue in the twenty first century

Youth and Employment in Sub-Saharan Africa Hiroyuki Hino, Gustav Ranis, 2014-06-05 It is widely acknowledged that youth unemployment is one of the most critical challenges facing countries in Sub Saharan Africa This volume brings together an eminent group of international scholars to analyse the extent and complex nature of this joblessness and offer a set of evidence based policy choices that could contribute to solving the problem in the short and long run Part I reviews the existing literature on youth unemployment and underemployment in Sub Saharan Africa from microeconomic and macroeconomic perspectives while Part II goes on to present detailed country studies of Ethiopia Ghana Kenya and South Africa These studies offer a deep understanding of the situation on the ground and consider country specific solutions Throughout the book it is argued that the standard ILO definition of unemployment is too narrow to correctly portray employment situations in Sub Saharan Africa Several alternative measures of unemployment are presented which show that joblessness is far more pervasive than commonly assumed in the literature This volume will be of interest to academics and policy makers involved in African development Rethinking Ownership of Development in Africa T.D. Harper-Shipman,2019-08-08 Rethinking Ownership of Development in Africa demonstrates how instead of empowering the communities they work with the jargon of development ownership often actually serves to perpetuate the centrality of multilateral organizations and international donors in African development awarding a fairly minimal role to local partners In the context of today s development scheme for Africa ownership is often considered to be the panacea for all of the aid dependent continent s development woes Reinforced through the Organization for Economic Co operation and Development OECD s Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness and the Accra Agenda for Action ownership is now the preeminent procedure for achieving aid effectiveness and a range of development outcomes Throughout this book the author illustrates how the ownership paradigm dictates who can produce development knowledge and who is responsible for carrying it out with a specific focus on the health sectors in Burkina Faso and Kenya Under this paradigm despite the ownership narrative national stakeholders in both countries are not producers of development knowledge they are merely responsible for its implementation This book challenges the preponderance of conventional international development policies that call for more ownership from African stakeholders without questioning the implications of donor demands and historical legacies of colonialism in Africa Ultimately the findings from this book make an important contribution to critical development debates that question international development as an enterprise capable of empowering developing nations This lively and engaging book challenges readers to think differently about the ownership and as such will be of interest to researchers of development studies and African studies as well as for development practitioners within Africa U.S. Development Aid Programs in West Africa John H. Sullivan,John Chapman Chester,1976 International Development Assistance Authorization and S. Res. 118 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Foreign Relations. Subcommittee on Foreign Assistance,1978 Women Wielding the Hoe Deborah Bryceson,2020-08-29 How effective is western aid agency intervention in Africa What can African women do to manage the AIDS crisis Can western feminist theory be applied to the rural African context These vital issues and many others are considered in this topical book by eminent scholars and development consultants The book aims to increase awareness of the importance of women agricultural producers to African material development and to expose the western biases that have traditionally pervaded the study of rural African women The authors critical analyses of conventional research methodology and key women and development debates over the last three decades will stimulate new research perspectives Students and scholars of development development workers and policymakers will all find this book fascinating reading Accelerated Development in Southern Africa John
