Family Relations:

Family Relations Timothy H. Brubaker, 1992-10-26 As the social world of American families feverishly changes single parent families dual career couples and blended families have quickly become the norm rather than the exception In Family Relations a distinguished group of leading family researchers including Joan Huber David Olson Hamilton McCubbin and Marilyn Coleman examines the social changes that have gripped society and explains their impact on family relationships and functioning Initial chapters address principal theories of change the remainder of the volume addresses the predominant challenges facing contemporary families such as work family interface violence family dysfunction family crisis divorce and the transition to marriage and parenthood The contributors make suggestions for change in family policy family therapy and family life education and conclude with an overview of the current state of families and future directions This comprehensive and interesting volume is for students family researchers sociologists psychologists counselors family life educators and policy analysts True to its aim it informs about the latest understandings and tools of intervention to help overcome the formidable challenges to the family there is some worthy scholarship to be found in this volume chapter 3 on gender and role change is a lively and readable summary British Journal of Social Work This volume has much to offer For example the volume contains demographic information often needed by practitioners and policymakers at a moment's notice Literature reviews not only summarize research on a particular topic but also are organized around a theoretical framework Well known authors have contributed scholarly insightful commentaries on current family issues and challenges for the future In short this book provides information that practitioners and policymakers could use to do the following establish the need and rationale for programming and applied research justify the expenditure of funds for children and families ground their work in theory and research conduct in service education and consider program evaluation strategies This book is well written and provides a valuable resource for the intended readership I look forward to the second volume Journal of Marriage and the Family

Family Relations Xena Mindhurst, 2024-11-22 Family Relations presents a comprehensive exploration of how family bonds shape societies and individual lives across different cultures and time periods The book weaves together historical perspectives cross cultural research and contemporary analysis to demonstrate how family structures adapt to changing social economic and technological pressures while maintaining certain universal functions Through a combination of quantitative data and ethnographic studies spanning six continents the book reveals fascinating insights into both traditional and modern family systems It examines how urbanization and digital communication are creating new forms of extended families that transcend geographical boundaries while also exploring how different cultures maintain family cohesion in the face of modernization The research draws from multiple disciplines including economics psychology and sociology to provide a holistic understanding of family dynamics and their evolution The book's three part structure guides readers from theoretical frameworks through real world case studies to emerging trends making complex concepts accessible to both professionals and general readers Whether examining traditional kinship structures or modern family communication patterns the work maintains an objective stance while offering practical insights for understanding family relationships in an increasingly interconnected world Its unique approach combines broad statistical patterns with personal narratives helping readers connect universal themes to their own family experiences while understanding how different societies address common family challenges

The Transition to Adulthood and Family Relations Eugenia Scabini,Elena Marta,Margherita Lanz,2007-03-12 This book explores the development of a new path of transition between adolescence and adulthood in recent generations Whereas traditionally the transition into adulthood was marked by a clear and irreversible change in condition we are now seeing a continuance in the role and influence of the family on the young adult What consequences does this have for our society Is the persistence of emotional bonds which previously loosened during adolescence inhibiting young people from developing into full adulthood The authors present a clear and in depth analysis of the theoretical framework surrounding the transition into adulthood both from a generational point of view and a relationship centred perspective The findings of international research are presented and compared across generations gender and geographical location within Europe The different research methods of family related research and family research are also distinguished and analysed This volume offers an original and multi faceted review of this topic The family is considered as an organization and the interdependencies and interconnections between its members the generations and genders investigated It offers a unique contribution to the current literature and will appeal to an international audience of researchers policy makers and educators both in academic and professional spheres

Continuity and Change in Family Relations Rand D. Conger,Frederick O. Lorenz,K.A.S. Wickrama,2004-04-12 This volume focuses on the study of both continuity change in family relationships Each chapter addresses a substantive issue in research on changes in family relationships also directs the reader s attention to the methods employed how they

Transnational Family Relations of German Emigrants Marcel Erlinghagen,Karsten Hank,2024-06-28 Drawing on unique data from the German Emigration and Remigration Panel Study GERPS the present book comprises empirical studies on various aspects of recent German emigrants transnational relationships to core family members specifically intimate partners parents and children Moreover we reflect on conceptual and empirical challenges in previous work on transnational family relations suggesting avenues for future research We thereby aim to strengthen the integration of two closely related strands of social research the sociologies of migration and families and add an important new facet to the study of transnational families more generally

Rebuilding Family Relations for Children and Youth Separated from Family Sarah Hean,Vanessa Heaslip,Jonathan Parker,Pravin Tembjerg,2024-10-16 This edited volume explores a range of causes for separation of children and young people from family the impact of these causes and methods that both professionals and families may employ to build or rebuild these relations In particular contributions focus on six high priority crises through which children and young people become either permanently or temporarily separated from their families removal by child welfare services migration family breakdown placement into institutional care incarceration and or the death of a parent Authors emphasize the feelings of grief and loss experienced both by the child and their family whatever the separation context and the eventual impact on the young person s mental health They conclude that reunification with the family is not always possible or desirable and permanent alternative sources of care and or attachment may be required But if reunification is possible it is a complex and a multidimensional pathway as children move from one care context to the next Innovation coproduction with the birth family and tackling stigma and discrimination associated with family separations is a high priority Housing Careers, Intergenerational Support and Family Relations Christian Lennartz,Richard Ronald,2020-06-09 In this comprehensive volume authors from across the social sciences explore how housing wealth transfers have impacted the integration of families society and the economy with a focus on the re negotiation of the generational contract While housing has always been central to the realization and reproduction of families more recently the mutual embedding of home and family has become more obvious as realignments in housing markets employment and welfare states have worked together to undermine housing access for new households enhancing intergenerational interdependencies More families have thus become involved in smoothening the routes of younger adult members into and up the housing ladder While intergenerational support appears to have become much more widespread it remains highly differentiated across countries cities and regions as well as uneven between social and income classes This book addresses the increasing role that family support and intergenerational transfers in particular are playing in sustaining the formation of new households and the transition of young adults towards social and economic autonomy The authors draw on diverse international cases and a variety of methodologies in order to advance our understanding of housing as a key driver of contemporary social relations and inequalities Chapters 1 4 6 7 8 and 9 of this book are freely available as downloadable Open Access PDFs at <https://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license Chapters 1 6 8 and 9 and a Creative Commons Attribution CC BY 4 0 license Chapters 4 and 7 Effects of Alevis-Sunni Marriages on Children's Religious Education and Family Relations Dr. Fatma Kurttekin,2024-12-31 In this study the views of parents in Alevis-Sunni marriages on the phenomenon of religion and their children s religious education are examined While there has been a growing body of research on the role and significance of religion in Alevis-Sunni families limited attention has been paid to their attitudes towards their children s religious education particularly within the context of cross religious marriages Based on this this study aims to fill this research gap by examining the perspectives of parents in Alevis-Sunni marriages on their children s religious education and family dynamics using qualitative methods to provide in depth insights Ten families living in Sivas Ankara and Tunceli who were contacted through snowball and purposive sampling participated in the study in which qualitative research techniques were used The data used in the study were collected through questionnaires and semi structured interview forms The data was analyzed with the content analysis It was determined that the Alevi Sunni difference did not have a significant impact on the participants religious attitudes or their children s religious education Almost all parents stated that they wanted their children to choose their own path by acquiring experience and knowledge about both religious interpretations understandings The study identified two primary areas of difficulty in Alevi Sunni families familial opposition to the participants decision to marry and conflicts surrounding the children s religious education These tensions may stem from societal pressures to conform to sectarian norms and the fear of losing religious identity through cross mixed intrafaith marriages Such pressures highlight the need for open dialogue and acceptance within families which many participants reported as key to resolving conflicts The provision of religious education in the family and the religious identity of children have been discussed in a separate study Therefore in this study participants views on compulsory religious education activities which are also a subject of debate in society were evaluated In parallel with the findings in the literature the participants opinions were grouped in three categories namely abolishing the courses making the courses optional and improving the courses along with preserving their compulsory status Following the interviews it was seen that the participants could have arguments mostly due to external factors and that their own religious understanding did not have any impact on family life religious attitudes or child rearing Attention was drawn to the need for freedom from prejudices acceptance of the other as he she is honesty trust and a communicative environment of dialogue in order to reduce the tension in these two areas

Social and Emotional Adjustment and Family Relations in Ethnic Minority Families Ronald D. Taylor, Margaret C. Wang, Margaret C Wang, 2013-11-26 This collection of essays addresses issues related to the intersection of family relationships and several contexts for the social and emotional development of ethnic minority adolescents The papers are organized in sections under subtitles which reflect three contextual frames through which these issues may be examined The first section focuses on the relationship between economic factors and resources on the one hand and family relations as environments for development on the other The next part focuses on family and peer networks and relations as contexts for the emotional and social development of adolescents The last section takes neighborhood and school as contexts for and determinants of social and emotional adjustment in adolescence Like much of the extant work and current thought concerning development in ethnic minority children and adolescents the authors have highlighted the more stressful and negative aspects of these several contexts There are a few explicit and several implicit references made to supportive and more positive contexts and manifestations of relationships which frame the developmental experiences of ethnic minority adolescents These serve as a reminder that many ethnic minority adolescents do overcome the odds against success and grow into healthy and wholesome adults However in large measure this book is a contribution to our understanding of the problematic circumstances under which a significant segment of the population exists reminding us that life for ethnic minority adolescents is difficult The fact that some of these young people manage to overcome the negative and stressful aspects of their experiences and defy the implicit prediction of failure to thrive is truly remarkable

Foucault and Family Relations Malcolm Voyce, 2019-05-14 Foucault and Family Relations Governing from a Distance in Australia analyzes how notions of property ownership were instrumental in maintaining family stability and continuity in rural Australia outlining how inheritance and divorce laws functioned to govern the internal relationships of families to assist the state to rule from a distance Using a selection of Foucault's ideas on the family sexuality race space and economics this book shows how property operated as a disciplinary device which was underpinned by technical ideas such as surveying and cartography This book uses legal judgments as a form of ethnography to show how property as a socio technical device allowed a degree of local freedom for owners This aspect of property allowed the state to stimulate ideas of local freedom to assist in ruling from a distance demonstrating how the rural family as a domestic unit became a key field of intervention for the state as the family represented a bridge to larger relationships of power

1500-1900 Rosemary O'Day,1994-10-26 While historians have written with ease about the state and the church the family has so far defied historical analysis As the primary cell of human social organisation upon which both state and church depend it is of crucial importance In this concise informative and stimulating book Rosemary O Day seeks to explain the difficulties facing the historian of the family and to suggest strategies for their solution She compares families and households in time space and economy over the period 1500 1914 and draws together the important existing work

Family Life Education Carol A. Darling,Dawn Cassidy,Sharon M. Ballard,2022-06-29 Contemporary family life educators operate within a wide range of settings and with increasingly varied populations and families In the fourth edition of Family Life Education Carol Darling and Dawn Cassidy are pleased to have Sharon Ballard join in the process of exposing readers to the diverse landscape of the field while laying a comprehensive research based and practical foundation for current and future family life educators The authors who are CFLE Certified consider the Certified Family Life Educator credential requirements of the National Council on Family Relations throughout the text Their broad overview of the field includes a brief history and discussion of family life education as an established profession New to this edition is the inclusion of several models that provide insight into the discipline and practice There is expanded information about working with diverse audiences and the skills needed to be a culturally competent family life educator The addition of the personal experiences and reflections of 17 family life educators working in a variety of settings provides a meaningful context to the continuing evolution and importance of family life education in society The authors incorporate theory research and practice while also providing guidelines for planning implementing and evaluating family life education programs Content on sexuality education relationship and marriage education and parenting education highlights some of the more prevalent trends and visible forms of family life education Comments from 35 international colleagues representing 27 countries and 6 continents facilitate understanding the role of family life education in various international settings The provision of interactive classroom exercises focuses on building awareness appreciation of diversity and global trends Discussion questions and activities encourage readers to examine issues and apply what they have learned Exploring Family Relationships With Other Social Contexts Ross D. Parke,Sheppard G. Kellam,2013-07-04 In the 1990s it is no longer news that families do not operate independently from other social organizations and institutions. Instead, it is generally recognized that families are embedded in a complex set of relationships with other institutions and contexts outside the family. In spite of this recognition, a great deal remains to be discovered about the ways in which families are influenced by these outside agencies or how families influence the functioning of children and adults in these extra-familial settings: school, work, day care, or peer group contexts. Moreover, little is known about the nature of the processes that account for this mutual influence between families and other societal institutions and settings. The goal of this volume is to present examples from a series of ongoing research programs that are beginning to provide some tentative answers to these questions. The result of a summer workshop characterized by lively exchanges not only between speakers and the audience but among participants in small group discussions as well, this volume attempts to communicate some of the dynamism and excitement that was evident at the conference. In the final analysis, this book should stimulate further theoretical and empirical advances in understanding how families relate to other contexts.
