Families and Mental Retardation Diane Marsh, 1992-05-27 Traditional pathology models do not provide a satisfactory framework for professional practice with families of people with mental retardation Families and Mental Retardation is written from the perspective of a competence paradigm for professional practice which offers a constructive alternative to the more prevalent pathology models of the past The goal of professional practice is to empower families in coping with the catastrophic stressor of mental retardation Such an approach recognizes the strengths and resources of families which have often been minimized in the past and fosters new collaborative modes of family professional relationships Unique features include a consideration of life span and family system and subsystem perspectives as well as the inclusion of powerful personal accounts of family members The volume is likely to be of special value to mental health and health care professionals who often receive little training in mental retardation or family professional relations and who tend to apply a pathology model In contrast a competence paradigm is more prevalent in education

Mental Retardation in the Year 2000 Louis Rowitz, 2012-12-06 When you look at the advances in the field of mental retardation over the past 30 years it is hard to imagine that more change is inevitable Yet I think back to the time when early in his presidency President Kennedy called together the brightest scientists researchers doctors and educators to develop a comprehensive plan for the nation to effectively care for treat educate and house persons with mental retardation In the early 1960s the call for new research into the causes and the amelioration of mental retardation the development of community based programs and the development of family care for appropriate education vocational training and jobs were seen as revolutionary But in the 30 years since then we have seen time and time again that it is persons with mental retardation themselves who have led the way When the schools were opened to them they learned more than any one ever thought possible when vocational training was provided they learned skills that led to jobs when employment became available they proved to be good steady workers who earned money and paid taxes When the playing fields were made available to them through programs such as Special Olympics they showed the world they could train and compete and WIN in the sports of the Olympics When communities welcomed them they became our neighbors They have earned the right to play on any field to study in any school to hold a paying job and to be anyone's neighbor
