Aitken, 2016-03-23 Societal notions of fathers have evolved from the distant breadwinner through genial dad and masculine role model to today's equal co parent This book seeks to explore the spaces and movements of men as fathers Weaving together theories of space sexuality and political identity with the stories of fathers from a range of sources including popular culture it discusses the way in which geographies of space can disconnect and disempower fathers while societal notions marginalize and disassociate them from raising children It explores how fathering identities are shaped by family and community spaces and aims to move the definition of fathering beyond its definition in opposition to mothering In doing so it provides insights into the contradictory nature of father's lives and argues that rather than moving away from the traditional notions of masculine roles that the emotional work of fathering in itself is an heroic act International Encyclopedia of Men and Masculinities Michael Flood, Judith Kegan Gardiner, Bob Pease, Keith Pringle, 2007-08-07 The International Encyclopedia of Men and Masculinities offers a comprehensive guide to the current state of scholarship about men masculinities and gender around the world The Encyclopedia's coverage is comprehensive across three dimensions areas of personal and social life academic disciplines and cultural and historical contexts and formations The Encyclopedia examines every area of men's personal and social lives as

Global Childhoods Stuart

Aitken, 2013-09-13 This astute book initiates a broad discussion from a variety of different disciplines about how we place children nationally globally and within development discourses Unlike other books of its kind it does not seek to dwell solely on the abiding complexities of local comparisons Rather it elaborates larger concerns about the changing nature of childhood

young people's experiences their citizenship and the embodiment of their political identities as they are embedded in the processes of national development and globalization In particular this book concentrates on three main issues nation building and developing children child participation and activism in the context of development and globalization and children's lives in the context of what has been called the end of development These are relatively broad research perspectives that find focus in what the authors term reproducing and developing children as a key issue of national and global concern They further argue that understanding children and reproduction is key to understanding globalization

Blood Relations Jes Batts, 2015-01-27 The television series Buffy and Angel revolve around radical conceptions of family Indeed their coherence depends on the establishment of nontraditional families that admit vampires demons witches werewolves and other bizarre characters without censuring them for their peculiarities This work argues that what makes these characters enduring and engaging is their critical family connections for their most involved struggles occur not within the graveyard but around the dinner table just as the most challenging adversarial forces that they must face are not demons or vampires but the stuff of everyday life. What does family encompass within these two series? How does it relate to concepts of gender, sexuality, power, and the supernatural as they emerge from the shows' complex narratives? This book explores such questions. It also examines the chosen family, an idea marketed specifically by successful programs such as Friends and Sex in the City within the past ten years, juxtaposing it against various images of the fractured biological family displayed in both Buffy and Angel. Through eight chapters addressing various family-related aspects within both shows, this work plots the trajectory of this unstable notion of family even as it is transformed, remediated, and rendered unrecognizable from a family-values perspective by the unique and supernatural relationships that proliferate in Buffy and Angel.

Genocide and the Geographical Imagination James A. Tyner, 2012 This groundbreaking book brings an important spatial perspective to our understanding of genocide through a fresh interpretation of Germany under Hitler, Cambodia under the Khmer Rouge, and China's Great Leap Forward famine under Mao. James A. Tyner's powerful analysis of these horrifying cases provides insight into the larger questions of sovereignty and state policies that determine who will live and who will die. Specifically, he explores the government practices that result in genocide and how they are informed by the calculation and valuation of life and death.

People and Place Lewis Holloway, Phil Hubbard, 2014-01-14 An innovative introduction to Human Geography exploring different ways of studying the relationships between people and place and putting people at the centre of human geography. The book covers behavioural, humanistic, and cultural traditions, showing how these can lead to a nuanced understanding of how we relate to our surroundings on a day-to-day basis. The authors also explore how human geography is currently influenced by postmodern ideas stressing difference and diversity. While taking the importance of these different approaches seriously as ways of thinking about the role of place in people's everyday lives, the book also tries to encapsulate what has been so vibrant and exciting about human geography over the last couple of decades. By using examples to which students can relate, such as how they imagine and represent their home, the way they avoid certain spaces, how they move through retail spaces where they choose to go to university, how they use the Internet, how they represent other nations, and so on, the authors show how geography shapes everyday life in a manner that is seemingly mundane yet profoundly important.

Building the City Mark Jayne, Wu Siying, Wu Chenhui, 2025-09-23 Building the City elaborates new critical insights into the everyday lives of migrant workers in cities around the world. The book offers complementary blending of longstanding political-economic accounts of migration, gender, labour, and urban life alongside advances in feminist, postcolonial, post-structural, materialist, and more than representational theories. Drawing on these critical resources, the authors explore the complexities of migrants' everyday past, present, and future lives. More specifically, they interrogate diverse and heterogeneous connections between work, domestic, and family times and spaces, as well as foregrounding new theoretical and empirical terrain regarding consumption, pleasure, leisure, fashioned sexual identities, and digital lives within and beyond cities. Premised on ethnographic research undertaken in cities across China the authors develop a detailed relational comparative dialogue with the most up to date international interdisciplinary research This critically challenging yet engaging and accessible research monograph provides an excellent resource for scholars at all career stages as well as undergraduate and postgraduate students in diverse disciplines including anthropology cultural studies economics management organisation and business studies human geography planning political science sociology and urban studies

Researching Children's Popular Culture Claudia Mitchell,Jacqueline Reid-Walsh,2005-06-29 The place of childhood in popular culture is one that invites new readings both on childhood itself but also on approaches to studying childhood Discussing different methods of researching children s popular culture they argue that the interplay of the age of the players the status of their popular culture the transience of the objects and indeed the ephemerality and long lastingness of childhood all contribute to what could be regarded as a particularized space for childhood studies and one that challenges many of the conventions of doing research involving children Rematerialising Children's Agency Matej Blazek,2016-06-01 This book is a detailed study of children s everyday practices in a small deprived neighbourhood of post socialist Bratislava called Kop any It provides a novel empirical insight on what it is like to be growing up after 25 years of post socialist transformations and questions the formation of children s agency and the multitude of resources it comes from What happens if we accept children s practices as cornerstones of communities What is uncovered if we examine adults co presence with children in everyday community spaces With a background in youth work the author writes from the unique position of being able to develop in depth insights into both children s life worlds and practitioners priorities and needs

Geographies of Young People Stuart C. Aitken,2001 Anxieties over children s safety or teenage propensities towards violence and sex have precipitated a moral panic in a large swathe of our society This provocative work traces the changing scientific and societal notions of what it is to be a young person and argues that there is a need to rethink how we view childhood spaces child development and the politics of growing up The book challenges popular myths that evoke general notions of childhood as a natural stage in the development towards adulthood and offers alternative theories that value the embodiment and local embeddedness of young people Publisher s description
