Family And Kinship East London:

Family and Kinship in East London Michael Young, Peter Willmott, 2013-05-13 First published in 1957 and reprinted with a new introduction in 1986 Michael Young and Peter Willmott's book on family and kinship in Bethnal Green in the 1950s is a classic in urban studies. A standard text in planning, housing, family studies and sociology, it predicted the failure in social terms of the great rehousing campaign which was getting under way in the 1950s. The tall flats built to replace the old slum houses were unpopular. Social networks were broken up. The book had an immediate impact when it appeared; extracts were published in the newspapers; the sales were a record for a report of a sociological study. Government ministers quoted it. But the approach it advocated was not accepted until the late 1960s and by then it was too late. This Routledge Revivals reissue includes the authors' introduction from the 1986 reissue, reviewing the impact of the book and its ideas thirty years on. They argue that if the lessons implicit in the book had been learned in the 1950s, London and other British cities might not have suffered the anomie and violence manifested in the urban riots of the 1980s. Family and Kinship in East London

Michael Dunlop Young, 1964 Family and Kinship in East London [by] Michael Young & Peter Willmott. Foreword by Richard M. Titmuss. Michael Dunlop Young, Peter Willmott, 1957 The New East End Michael Young, Kate Gavron, Geoff

Dench, 2011-09-30 This is non-fiction. Brick Lane: what life is really like around Brick Lane and the East End. One of the most influential non-fiction books of the 1950s was Family and Kinship in East London, which examined in great depth the life of people living in the dockland areas that had been so comprehensively destroyed in the blitz. What has happened since? In the 50 years since the whole area has gone into terrible decline, has been comprehensively redeveloped, sometimes more than once, and most important of all, has seen the traditional families largely leave to be replaced by a huge influx of Bangladeshi families, many of whom are now into the second generation. What are their lives like? How is the community coping with the radical change? What are relations like between the old white population and the new Asian population? Does government policy affect racism Here the authors show startlingly that housing policies have made race relations much worse and must be changed This will be very controversial The book is a comprehensive examination of life in one of the most intriguing parts of England but it stands for all Britain and indeed everywhere in the world with large new immigrant populations

Housing and Young Families in East London Anthea Holme,2023-08-09 Originally published in 1985 Anthea Holme focuses her study on Bethnal Green in East London and Wanstead and Woodford in outer East London the areas covered by Michael Young and Peter Willmott in their celebrated books Family and Kinship in East London and Family and Class in a London Suburb Her aim was to discover how things had changed in the twenty five years or so since the publication of these classic studies She makes a four way comparison between then and now and between two neighbourhoods of the present a relatively prosperous outer London suburb and a London East End district carrying its full quota of inner city problems The book takes as its starting point a crucial event in a family s history the birth of the first child Housing may contribute to the happiness or the stress of the family at this time The author looks at the present housing and the housing history of families who have just had their first child and discusses their satisfactions problems and aspirations She draws attention to the contrasts in housing in tenure dwelling type condition surroundings and in the opportunity to acquire a home in the first place already evident twenty five years ago She also shows that while in many ways in patterns of consumption for instance change has brought the two places together housing has driven them further apart Owner occupation dominant in Woodford and council tenancy dominant in Bethnal Green are rapidly becoming the respective symbols of the have and the have nots Anthea Holme concludes that in the present political economic and social climate this division can only grow wider unless or until housing is regarded as the vitally important component it is in inner city life Family and Social Network Elizabeth

Young,Peter Willmott,1957 Michael Young, Social Science, and the British Left, 1945-1970 Lise Butler,2020-09-02 In post war Britain left wing policy maker and sociologist Michael Young played a major role in shaping British intellectual political and cultural life using his study of the social sciences to inform his political thought In the mid twentieth century the social sciences significantly expanded and played a major role in shaping British intellectual political and cultural life Central to this intellectual shift was the left wing policy maker and sociologist Michael Young As a Labour Party policy maker in the 1940s Young was a key architect of the Party's 1945 election manifesto Let Us Face the Future. He became a sociologist in the 1950s publishing a classic study of the East London working class Family and Kinship in East London with Peter Willmott in 1957 which he followed up with a dystopian satire The Rise of the Meritocracy about a future society in which social status was determined entirely by intelligence. Young was also a prolific social innovator founding or inspiring dozens of organisations including the Institute of Community Studies, the Consumers Association, Which magazine, the Social Science Research Council and the Open University. Moving between politics, social science and activism, Young believed that disciplines like sociology, psychology and anthropology could help policy makers and politicians understand human nature which in turn could help them to build better political and social institutions. This book examines the relationship between social science and public policy in left wing politics between the end of the Second World War and the end of the first Wilson government through the figure of Michael Young. Drawing on Young's prolific writings and his intellectual and political networks, it argues that he and other social scientists and policy makers drew on contemporary ideas from the social sciences to challenge key Labour values like full employment and nationalisation and to argue that the Labour Party should put more emphasis on relationships, family and community. Showing that the social sciences were embedded in the project of social democratic governance in post war Britain, it argues that historians and scholars should take their role in British politics and political thought seriously.

The Locus of Care Peregrine Horden, Richard Smith, 2013-01-11 The care of the needy and the sick is delivered by various groups including immediate family, the wider community, religious organisations and the State funded institutions. The Locus of Care provides an historical perspective on welfare, detailing who carers were in the past, where care was provided and how far the boundary between family and state or informal and organised institutions have changed over time. Eleven international contributors provide a wide ranging examination of themes such as child care, mental health and provision for the elderly and question the idea that there has been a recent evolutionary shift from informal provision to institutional care. Chapters on Europe and England use case studies and link evidence from ancient and medieval periods to contemporary problems and the recent past, whilst studies on China and South Africa look to the future of welfare throughout the world. By placing welfare in its historical, social, cultural and demographic contexts, Locus of Care reassesses community and institutional care and the future expectations of welfare provision.

Working Class Cultures in Britain, 1890-1960 Joanna Bourke, 1994 Integrating a variety of historical approaches and methods, Joanna Bourke looks at the construction of class within the intimate contexts of the body, the home, the marketplace, the locality and the nation to assess how the subjective identity of the working class in Britain has been maintained through seventy years of radical social, cultural and economic change. She argues that class identity is essentially a social and cultural rather than an institutional or political phenomenon and therefore cannot be understood without constant reference to gender and ethnicity. Each self-contained chapter consists of an essay of historical analysis introducing students to the ways historians use evidence to understand change as well as useful chronologies statistics and tables suggested topics for discussion and selective further reading

Family and Community Life of Older People Miriam Bernard, Jim Ogg, Judith and Phillips, Chris Phillipson, 2002-09-11 Family life has changed rapidly over the past fifty years and the number of people living longer increases year on year Family and Community Life of Older People revisits three areas Bethnal Green in London Wolverhampton in the Midlands and Woodford in Essex which were the subject of classic studies in the late 1940s and 1950s and explores changes to the family and community lives of older people The book examines issues such as changes in household composition changes in the geographical proximity of kin and relatives the extent and type of help provided by the family contact and relationships with neighbours relationships with friends involvement in social and leisure activities experiences of minority ethnic groups These questions are explored through a unique set of data including census material and survey data from interviews with over 600 older people A key finding is that over the past 50 years we have moved from an old age experienced within the context of the family group to one shaped by personal communities in which friends may feature as significantly as immediate kin and relatives Family and Community Life of Older People is a major contribution to the sociology of the family of ageing and of urban life and points up the social policy issues for an ageing society

Family and Class in a London Suburb Peter Willmott, Michael Young, 2023-08-09 Originally published in 1960 the authors of Family and Kinship in East London then made an intensive study of a middle class dormitory suburb Here families were more often on their own than in the East End but despite the differences between the districts there were some similarities The bond between mother and married daughter was almost as strong in the suburb as in the city Most old people too were cared for in both places by their children and other relatives though the authors show how serious were the special problems of the aged in this suburban setting The enquiry examined the influence of social class upon community life This is reviewed in relation to club and church membership and to friendship patterns and the behaviour of middle and working class people to each other is discussed Class tensions and their effect on the otherwise friendly and neighbourly atmosphere that the authors found in the suburb provide the main theme of the final chapters

Family Law and Family Values Mavis Maclean, 2005-06-15 Each individual experiences obligations arising from personal relationships These are often hard to fulfil and give rise to tension between the demands of various relationships between meeting current or future needs but also between private norms and the demands of a public set of rules The international contributors to this volume consider the relationship between family law and family values in the way law is framed the way we are developing the legal context for new kinds of relationships such as cross household parenting same sex partner relationships and the obligations of adults to elders and closes with a plea to rethink family law in terms of the functions we want it to perform Contributors include Masha Antokolskaia Benoit Bastard John Eekelaar Lisa Glennon Jacek Kurczewski Jane Lewis Carol Smart Velina Todorova and Jean van Houtte

Me, Me, Me Jon Lawrence, 2019-09-01 Many commentators tell us that in today's world everyday life has become selfish and atomised that individuals live only to consume But are they wrong In Me Me Me Jon Lawrence re tells the story of England since the Second World War through the eyes of ordinary people including his own parents to argue that in fact friendship family and place all remain central to our daily lives and whilst community has changed it is far from dead He shows how in the years after the Second World War people came increasingly to question custom and tradition as the pressure to conform to societal standards became intolerable And as soon as they could millions escaped the closed face to face communities of Victorian Britain where everyone knew your business But this was not a rejection of community per se but an attempt to find another new way of living which was better suited to the modern world Community has become personal and voluntary based on genuine affection rather than proximity or need We have never been better connected or able to sustain the relationships that matter to us Me Me Me makes that case that it s time we valued and nurtured these new groups rather than lamenting the loss of more real forms of community it is all too easy to hold on to a nostalgic view of the past
