Convergence to Very Low Fertility in East Asia: Processes, Causes, and Implications Noriko O. Tsuya, Minja Kim Choe, Feng Wang, 2019-03-23 This book examines the trends underlying factors and policy implications of fertility declines in three East Asian countries Japan South Korea and China In contrast to Western countries that have also experienced fertility declines to below replacement levels fertility decline in these East Asian countries is most notable in its rapidity and sheer magnitude After a rapid decline shortly after the war in which fertility was halved in one decade from 4.5 children per woman in 1947 to 2.1 in 1957 Japan's fertility started to decline to below replacement levels in the mid 1970s

reaching 1.3 per woman in the early 2000s Korea experienced one of the most spectacular declines ever recorded with fertility falling continuously from very high 6.0 per woman to a below replacement level 1.6 per woman between the early 1960s and mid 1980s reaching 1.1 per woman in 2005 Similarly after a dramatic decline from very high to low levels in one decade from the early 1970s to early 1980s China's fertility reached around 1.5 per woman by 2005 Despite differences in timing tempo and scale of fertility declines dramatic fertility reductions have resulted in extremely rapid population aging and foreshadow a long term population decline in all three countries This monograph provides a systematic comparison of fertility transitions in these East Asian countries and discusses the economic social and cultural factors that may account for their similarities and differences After an overview of cultural backgrounds economic transformations and the evolution of policies the trends and age patterns of fertility are examined The authors then investigate changes in women's marriage and childbearing within marriage the two major direct determinants of fertility followed by an analysis of the social and economic factors underlying fertility and nuptiality changes such as education women's employment and gender relations at home

Convergence, Persistence and Diversity in Male and Female Careers - Does Context Matter in an Era of Globalization? Daniela Grunow, 2006-10-24 Little comparative knowledge exists on how the radical transformations that constitute the late 20th century's era of globalization have affected gender relations and their particular structural manifestation on the labour market thereby neglecting a core element of the changes and problems currently underway This book analyses how converging tendencies in the life courses and employment careers of men and women interfere with developments of increasing diversity and instability both within and between sexes as economies move from industrial to global Using the shifting welfare regimes of West Germany and Denmark as illustrative evidence of how national context genders the risks and chances associated with globalisation and increasing employment flexibility this study provides a timely comprehensive longitudinal analysis of the gendered career consequences of recent political and economic change

Family, Justice, and Delinquency Brenda Geiger, Michael Fischer, 1995-01-30 Nuclear family and kibbutz childrearing practices are compared from a Rawlsian perspective of justice Based upon the kibbutz educational system which has reinstituted the family Geiger and Fischer propose a model of educational change for consideration in the United States This model is designed to strengthen the nuclear family while improving the prospects of disadvantaged anomic and unattached youth Geiger and Fischer examine within a Rawlsian perspective several child rearing institutions affecting children Justice as fairness would consider a child rearing institution and its inequalities as fair if there are no alternative arrangements under which the prospects of least advantaged children could be improved Among these least advantaged children are those who are neglected abused and stripped of self respect As the nuclear family disintegrates the authors ask whether it can fulfill its child rearing function Utilizing a self report study conducted on socialization and delinquency in Israel as well as several other observational studies the authors demonstrate that in a more egalitarian structure such as the kibbutz least advantaged children have more opportunities to develop into autonomous responsible individuals For Americans the kibbutz educational system shows new paths for change from nursery school through high school that would allow for greater bonds between the family school work and the community An emerging sense of community would also stimulate the moral and intellectual growth of disadvantaged youth This book is recommended to researchers and policy makers in the areas of education delinquency and social welfare
