and researchers who study the family will find practical suggestions on how to assess and evaluate the family with cultural considerations clinical suggestions on providing culturally relevant effective care of the family and theoretical elaboration on the cultural implications of family therapy Instead of focusing on families of a particular ethnic or cultural background the book gives comprehensive coverage to subjects that related to cultural aspects of the family function problems and therapy The authors unique backgrounds which include analysis of the cross cultural aspects of human behavior knowledge in family research and clinical experience in family therapy add immeasurably to this new book s important contribution Family Decision Making Protocols for Purchase Decision Making Linda Michele Vorce Beck,1983 Family Decision Making Lori L. Hayungs,1997 Family Communication Chris Segrin,Jeanne Flora,2011-10-14 Family Communication carefully examines state of the art research and theories of family communication and family relationships In addition to presenting cutting edge research it focuses on classic theories and research findings that have influenced and revolutionized the way scholars conceptualize family interaction This text offers a thorough and up to date presentation of scientific research in family communication for both teachers and students of family communication as well as professionals who work with families This second edition features Chapters updated with the latest research including over 2000 references Material on understudied family relationships such as extended family relationships and gay and lesbian relationships Recent research on understudied topics in family communication including the influence of technology on mate selection negotiating work and family stress single parenting cohabitation elder abuse forgiveness in marriage and the links among communication culture and mental health A revised chapter on parent child communication taking a lifespan perspective that helps organize the large body of research in this area A new chapter devoted to extended family relationships with special focus on grandparent grandchild relationships in law relationships and adult children and their parents An expanded review of family conflict processes especially in relation to decision making and power A companion website provides chapter outlines exam questions and PowerPoint slides for students and instructors Undergraduate readers should find the information easy to understand while advanced readers such as graduate students and professionals will find it a useful reference to classic and contemporary research on family communication and relationships The Family and Social Change in Chinese Societies Dudley L. Poston, Jr.,Wen Shan Yang,Demetrea Nicole Farris,2013-11-26 This book focuses on families and their changes in Taiwan and China Traditional notions of what constitutes a family have been changing in China Taiwan and other Asian countries The chapters in this book provide interesting methodological and substantive contributions to the discourse on family and social change in Chinese societies They also underscore the implications of the various social changes in Chinese families Written by Chinese and Western scholars they provide an unprecedented overview of what is known about the effects of social change on Chinese families One might think that defining a family is an easy task because the family is so significant to society and is universal The family is the first place we learn culture norms values and gender roles Families

exist in all societies throughout the world but their constitution differs In the past several decades there have been many changes in the family in Taiwan and China For instance whereas in the West we use a bilineal system of descent in which descent is traced through both the mother s side and the father s side of the family in many parts of China descent is patrilineal although this is changing and China and Taiwan are starting to assume a family constitution similar to that in the West This and other issues are discussed in great detail in this book Indeed it is the very nature of the differences that motivated the writing of this book on changing families in Taiwan and China The chapters in Part I The Family in Taiwan and China focus on the basic family issues in Taiwan and China that provide the groundwork for many of the chapters that follow Chapter 1 is about the distribution of resources in the family in Taiwan Chapter 2 focuses on filial piety and the autonomous development of adolescents in the Taiwanese family and Chapter 3 explores the important issue of family poverty in Taiwan Chapter 4 moves away from Taiwan and looks at several issues of family growth and change in Hong Kong noting the interesting similarities and differences between Hong Kong and China Part II Issues of Marriage the Family and Fertility in Taiwan and China focuses specifically on marriage family and fertility In Chapter 5 the authors discuss the relationships between marital status socioeconomic status and the subjective well being among women in Hong Kong and Taiwan Chapter 6 describes patterns of sexual activity in China and the United States Chapter 7 considers gender imbalances in Taiwan and their impact on the marriage market Chapter 8 also focuses on Taiwan and examines the effects of mothers attitudes on daughters interaction with their mothers in law Chapter 9 compares female and male fertility trends and changes in Taiwan Part III Children and the Family in East Asia and in Western Countries consists of comparative studies of the family and children Chapter 10 examines the dynamics of grandparents caring for children in China Chapter 11 explores family values and parent child interaction in Taiwan Chapter 12 examines the significant amount of diversity among families in contemporary Taiwan Chapter 13 describes adolescent development in Taiwan Chapter 14 examines the impact of son preference on fertility in China South Korea and the United States And Chapter 15 explores the determinants of intergenerational support in Taiwan The final chapter in our book the only chapter in Part IV The Family and the Future in Taiwan examines the future of the family in Taiwan with respect especially to the marriage market and aged dependency

Expanding the Boundaries of Work-Family Research S. Poelmans,J. Greenhaus,M. Cowan,Dorothy Field,Donald A. Hansen,Arlene Skolnick,Guy E. Swanson,2014-05-22 Any agenda for family research in the 1990s must take seriously a contextual approach to the study of family relationships The editors and contributors to this volume believe that the richness in family studies over the next decade will come from considering the diversity of family forms different ethnic groups and cultures different stages of family life as well as different historical cohorts Their goal is to make more explicit how we think about families in order to study them and understand them To illustrate the need for diversity in family studies examples are presented from new and old families majority and minority families American and Japanese families and intact and divorcing families This variety is intended to push the limits of current thinking not only for researchers but also for all who are struggling to live with and work with families in a time when family life is valued but fragmented and relatively unsupported by society s institutions Students and researchers interested in family development from the viewpoint of any of the social sciences will find this book of value Family Life in Adolescence Patricia Noller,Sharon Atkin,2014-01-01 Many parents fear the time when their beautiful happy children will become unmanageable adolescents continually engaging in risky or destructive behaviour Unfortunately this view of adolescents is the focus of the media even though it relates to just a small proportion of young people As the large amount of research we report shows most adolescents are responsible young people who care about their families and crave the support of their parents It is also true however as much research indicates that the quality of the relationship parents have with their adolescents is crucial to the wellbeing of those young people We discuss the need for parents to set reasonable limits on their adolescents and to expect appropriate behavior We also show on the basis of research that children who have experienced positive caring relationships with their parents are more likely than other adolescents to behave responsibly In other words behavior in adolescence does not come out of nowhere but builds on earlier experiences in the family Because of the large amount of research reported in this volume we expect that it will be useful to practitioners from a range of professions that are likely to focus on adolescents social workers youth leaders welfare workers religious leaders psychologists and psychiatrists and contribute to a better understanding of young people and their development and the importance of families to that development

Family Roles and Social Influences on Buying Decision Making Nafees,2022-11-17 INTRODUCTION This study examines the family roles and social influence on purchase decision of household utility and lifestyle products Family and family consumer behavior are no doubt complex areas compared to individual decision making It may be that the reciprocal relationships among members of the family are far too complex to unravel into meaningful constructs However this does not mean that family behavior should forever remain out of the grasp of researchers The biggest block to understanding families is a mindset that attempts to understand it from a perspective that has been developed for understanding individual behavior The first step to overcoming the complexity of family decision making is to give up the individual and become concerned with only the family as the unit of analysis Family has been anything but static It has been witness to radical changes over the years and continues to surprise scholars in the discipline It is a fertile domain offering researchers a continuous source of research This study examines the family role and social influence in purchase decisions of household products
