Family Foster Care In The Next Century:

Family Foster Care in the Next Century Kathy Barbell, Lois Wright, 2018-01-18 Family foster care is supposed to provide temporary protection and nurturing for children experiencing maltreatment. Although it has long been a critical service for millions of children in the United States, the increased attention given to this service in the last two decades has focused more on its inability to achieve its intended outcomes than on its successes. However, as social and political trends and new legislation reshape child welfare, policymakers and service providers continue to offer innovative policy and practice options for this child welfare service. Though use of the service has changed, family foster care remains important. Responding to a widespread sense of the drifting of children in care, Congress passed the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980. This legislation became a key factor shaping the current status of family foster care. Its goal was to reduce reliance on out-of-home care and encourage use of preventive and reunification services; it also mandated that agencies engage in planning efforts for permanent solutions for foster children. Yet despite federal mandates and funding, the child welfare system has continued to struggle to provide the level of services needed for children to reduce the amount of time children remain in temporary foster care. The latest response to these problems, the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997, established unequivocally that safety, permanency, and well-being were national goals for children in the child welfare system. To comply with the law, public and private agencies are required to initiate significant program and practice changes in the coming years to improve permanency outcomes and child well-being in family foster care. The central theme of the volume is accountability for outcomes, certainly a current driving force in child welfare as well as in other public and private service fields. This volume will be of interest to all concerned with the social welfare of children and families at the end of the twentieth century. Kathy Barbell is director of Foster Care of the Child Welfare League of America, Washington DC. Lois Wright is assistant dean at the College of Social Work, University of South Carolina, Columbia. Child Welfare Child Welfare League of America, 1999 Special Issue: Family Foster Care in the Next Century Kathy Barbell, Lois Wright, 1999

welfare outcomes of safety permanence and well being The topics covered not only are critical to child welfare practice and policy but also are of compelling interest to other child service sectors such as health mental health education and juvenile justice The authors of chapters in this volume are esteemed researchers within psychology social work economics and public health Together they represent the future of child welfare research showcasing the potential of NSCAW as a valuable resource to the research community and providing glimpses of how the data can be used to inform practice and policy

Child Maltreatment John E.B. Myers, 2011-05-02 Specifically created to complement the Third Edition of the APSAC Handbook on Child Maltreatment this collection of 23 carefully selected articles on child abuse and neglect parallels the structure of the Handbook It is also a great companion to other Sage books such as Barnett s Family Violence Across the Lifespan and Miller and Perrin s Child Maltreatment Children in Foster Care James Barber, Paul Delfabbro, Robyn Gilbertson, 2004-08-02 Researchers practitioners journalists and politicians increasingly recognise that foster care throughout the world is in a state of crisis There are more and more children needing care and as residential alternatives dry up more of these children are being assigned to foster families This book reports the major findings of a two year longitudinal study of 235 such children who entered the foster care system in Southern Australia between 1998 and 1999 As well as examining the changing policy context of children s services the book documents the psychosocial outcomes for these children their feedback on their experiences of care and the views of their social workers and carers In the process the book examines some cherished beliefs about foster care policy and sheds new light on them The research reveals that while most children do quite well in foster care up to the two year point there is a worrying amount of placement instability at a time when the concentration of emotionally troubled children in care is increasing throughout the western world Although surprisingly placement instability does not appear to produce psychosocial impairment for a period of up to eight months in care it has an extreme effect on children who are moved from placement to placement because no carer will tolerate their behaviour These children are consigned to a life of distribution and emotional upheaval because of the lack of alternative forms of care Another unexpected finding of the research is that increasing the rate of parental contact achieves little or nothing in relation to the likelihood of family reunification As child welfare increasingly enters a world of research based practice Children in Foster Care provides some much needed hard evidence of how foster care policy and practice can be improved Research Methods in Child Welfare Amy J. L. Baker, Benjamin J.

Charvat, 2008 In this text two highly experienced researchers offer the best techniques for conducting sound research in child welfare Covering not only the methodological challenges but also the real life constraints of research in child welfare settings Amy J L Baker and Benjamin S Charvat present a volume that can be used both for general research methods and as a practical guide for conducting research in the field Baker and Charvat devote an entire chapter to ethical issues involved in researching children and their families and the limits of confidentiality within this population Each chapter begins with a scenario that presents a question or problem to work through enabling readers to apply the methods to a specific setting Special sections explore the value of continuous quality improvement activities which enable the collection and analysis of data outside of the strictures of publishable research and the implementation of program evaluations which can be helpful in obtaining further research and programmatic funding

The Foster Care Crisis Patrick Almond Curtis, Grady Dale, Joshua C. Kendall, 1999-01-01 The inadequacy of the foster care system has long been recognized One of the biggest obstacles to reforming the system is the relative unavailability of research data from the field information that would shed light on key empirical trends and pressing issues This long overdue volume provides a much needed overview of the current state of foster care Leading researchers and practitioners summarize and discuss the results of their current research providing through their data an unparalleled detailed glimpse of the inner workings of the foster care system in its entirety The volume is also valuable for its survey and syntheses of important issues and trends affecting foster care Subjects discussed include welfare reform reporting systems family reunification mental health services and the needs of minority children Wide ranging and detailed in its coverage this collection is destined to become an essential reference and guide to the foster care system
