Scharff, 2020-12-30

Marriage and Family in Modern China is a groundbreaking psychoanalytic examination of how 70 years of widespread social change have transformed the intimacies of life in modern China. The book describes the evolution of marriage and family structure from the ancient tradition of large families preferring sons, arranged marriages, and devaluation of girls to a contemporary dominance of free choice marriages and families that now prefer to remain small, even after the ending of the One Child Policy. David Scharff uses extensive reports of his psychoanalytic interventions to demonstrate how the residue of widespread trauma suffered by Chinese families during past centuries has interacted with the effects of rapid modernization to produce new patterns of individual identity, personal ambition, and family structure. This wholly original book offers new insight into Chinese families for all those interested in psychoanalytic psychotherapy and in the intricacies of Chinese domestic life.

Family Life in China William R. Jankowiak, Robert L. Moore, 2016-11-28. The family has long been viewed as both a microcosm of the state and a barometer of social change in China. It is no surprise therefore that the dramatic changes experienced by Chinese society over the past century have produced a wide array of new family systems. Where a widely accepted Confucian based ideology once offered a standard framework for family life, current ideas offer no such uniformity. Ties of affection rather than duty have become prominent in determining what individuals feel they owe to their spouses, parents, children, and others. Chinese millennials, facing a world of opportunities and at the same time feeling a sense of heavy obligation, are reshaping patterns of courtship, marriage, and filiality in ways that were not foreseen by their parents nor by the authorities of the Chinese state. Those whose roots are in the countryside but who have left their homes to seek opportunity and adventure in the city face particular pressures, as do the children and elders they have left behind. The authors explore this diversity, focusing on rural vs. urban differences, regionalism, and ethnic diversity within China. Family Life in China presents new perspectives on what the current changes in this institution imply for a rapidly changing society.

Village and Family in Contemporary China William L. Parish, Martin King Whyte, 1980-08-15. After 1949, the Chinese Communists carried out land reform, the collectivization of agriculture, and the formation of people's communes. The new economic and political organizations that emerged have made peasant life more comfortable and secure, but many economic and status differentials and traditional customs remain resistant to change. Focusing on rural Kwangtung province, William L. Parish and Martin King Whyte examine the rural work incentive system, village equality and inequality, rural health care and education, marriage customs, and the position of women among other topics to determine what and how much of the organization from traditional times through the Yanan period the land reform of the late 1940s and the collectivization of the mid 1950s to communization in 1958 Although organization has been constantly changing in China basic patterns are apparent The book analyzes the most characteristic pattern in all aspects of organization the conflict between two incompatible elements or in the Chinese Communist terms contradictions The basic contradiction is that between professional expert and political red elements This contradiction dominates the two distinctive periods in the short history of Communist China the First Five Year Plan 1953-1957 and the so called Great Leap Forward 1958-1960 The book describes how the Chinese Communists attempted during the former period to emulate the Soviet organizational experience with stress on techniques and technology and during the latter period to use their own organizational methods to achieve economic progress The presentation of the contrast between these two models of organization sheds light on the significant differences between the Soviet Union and Communist China This title is part of UC Press's Voices Revived program which commemorates University of California Press's mission to seek out and cultivate the brightest minds and give them voice reach and impact Drawing on a backlist dating to 1893 Voices Revived makes high quality peer reviewed scholarship accessible once again using print on demand technology This title was originally published in 1966 Asian American Family Life and Community Franklin Ng, 2014-06-23 Before World War II family life in Asian American communities was greatly influenced by immigration policies and cultural practices For some groups such as the Chinese and the Filipinos a dearth of females resulted in the appearance of bachelor societies Among the Japanese a healthy family society was maintained by the practice of sponsoring picture brides The essays in this volume examine such issues as the role of the family generational changes and the significance of kinship networks newspapers and credit associations in various Asian American groups Displaced Intellectuals in Twentieth Century China I.W. Mabbett, 1975-04-01 The twofold purpose of this paper is to survey the factors affecting intellectual displacement in China during the twentieth century and to suggest speculatively a scheme of analysis of social change in modern China into which the role of displaced intellectuals fits as an important but not as an omnipotent element With 4 tables Feminism and Socialism in China Elisabeth Croll, 2011 First published in 1978 Feminism and Socialism in China explores the inter relationship of feminism and socialism and the contribution of each towards the redefinition of the role and status of women in China In her history of the women's movement in China from the late nineteenth century onwards Professor Croll provides an opportunity to study its construction its ideological and structural development over a number of decades and its often ambiguous relationship with a parallel movement to establish socialism Based on a variety of material including eye witness accounts the author examines a wide range of fundamental issues including women's class and oppression the relation of women's solidarity groups to class organisations reproduction and the accommodation of domestic labour women in the labour process and the relationship between women's participation in social production and their access to and control of political and economic resources The book includes excerpts from studies of village and communal life documents of the women's movement and interviews with members of the movement

China's Revolutions and Intergenerational Relations Martin Whyte, 2020-08-06 China's Revolutions and Intergenerational Relations counters the widely accepted notion that traditional family patterns are weakened by forces such as economic development and social revolutions China has experienced wrenching changes on both the economic and the political fronts yet from the evidence presented here the tradition of filial respect and support for aging parents remains alive and well Using collaborative surveys carried out in 1994 in the middle sized industrial city of Baoding and comparative data from urban Taiwan the authors examine issues shaping the relationships between adult Chinese children and their elderly parents The continued vitality of intergenerational support and filial obligations in these samples is not simply an instance of strong Confucian tradition trumping powerful forces of change Instead and somewhat paradoxically the continued strength of filial obligations can be attributed largely to the institutions of Chinese socialism forged in the era of Mao Zedong With socialist institutions now under assault in the People's Republic of China the future of intergenerational relations in the twenty first century is once again uncertain

Family Change and Family Policies in Contemporary China Hu Zhan, 2025-09-05 This book examines the dramatic transformation of Chinese families in recent decades analyzing how economic and social policies and changes have reshaped family structures and relationships The book explores government policy responses to emerging family related challenges while balancing traditional values with modern realities In seven detailed chapters the author explores key aspects of China's family evolution including changing family structures intergenerational dynamics social services and institutional reconfiguration The work provides an in depth analysis of how policies have adapted to address population aging shifting Special attention is given to the delicate balance between preserving traditional family values and accommodating inevitable demographic and economic changes This title will be essential reading for scholars policymakers and students of Chinese studies sociology and social policy It will also provide valuable insights for anyone interested in understanding contemporary Chinese society and family dynamics

The Individualization of Chinese Society Yunxiang Yan, 2020-08-19 Chinese society has seen phenomenal change in the last 30 years Two of the most profound changes have been the rise of the individual in both public and private spheres and the consequent individualization of Chinese society itself Yet despite China's recent dramatic entrance into global politics and economics neither of these significant shifts has been fully analysed China may indeed present an alternative model of social transformation in the age of globalisation so its path to development may have particular implications for the developing world The Individualization of Chinese Society reveals how individual agency has been on the rise since the 1970s and how this has impacted on everyday life and Chinese society more broadly The book presents a wide range of detailed case studies on the impact of economic policy patterns of kinship changes in marriage relations and the socio economic position of women the development of youth culture the politics of consumerism and shifting power relations in everyday life

Families Upside Down: Intergenerational Dynamics and Neo-Familism in the Early 21st Century ,2021-03-15

Chinese Families Upside Down offers the first systematic account of how intergenerational dependence is redefining the Chinese family. The authors make a collective effort to go beyond the conventional model of filial piety to explore the rich, nuanced and often unexpected new intergenerational dynamics. Supported by ethnographic findings from the latest field research, novel interpretations of neo familism address critical issues from fresh perspectives such as the ambivalence in grandparenting, the conflicts between individual and family interests, the remaking of the moral self in the face of family crises and the decisive influence of the Chinese state on family change. The book is an essential read for scholars and students of China studies in particular and for those who are interested in the present day family and kinship in general.
