L. Benedict,1887 Kafka's Zoopoetics Naama Harel,2020-05-04 Nonhuman figures are ubiquitous in the work of Franz Kafka from his early stories down to his very last one Despite their prominence throughout his oeuvre Kafka s animal representations have been considered first and foremost as mere allegories of intrahuman matters In recent years the allegorization of Kafka s animals has been poetically dismissed by Kafka s commentators and politically rejected by posthumanist scholars Such critique however has yet to inspire either an overarching or an interdiscursive account This book aims to fill this lacuna Positioning animal stories as a distinct and significant corpus within Kafka's entire poetics and closely examining them in dialogue with both literary and posthumanist analysis Kafka's Zoopoetics critically revisits animality interspecies relations and the very human-animal contradistinction in the writings of Franz Kafka Kafka's animals typically stand at the threshold between humanity and animality fusing together human and nonhuman features Among his liminal creatures we find a human transformed into vermin in The Metamorphosis an ape turned into a human being in A Report to an Academy talking jackals in Jackals and Arabs a philosophical dog in Researches of a Dog a contemplative mole-like creature in The Burrow and indiscernible beings in Josefine the Singer or the Mouse People Depicting species boundaries as mutable and obscure Kafka creates a fluid human-animal space which can be described as humanimal The constitution of a humanimal space radically undermines the stark barrier between human and other animals dictated by the anthropocentric paradigm Through denying animalistic elements in humans and disavowing the agency of nonhuman animals excluding them from social life and neutralizing compassion for them this barrier has been designed to regularize both humanity and animality The contextualization of Kafka's animals within posthumanist theory engenders a post-anthropocentric arena which is simultaneously both imagined and very real Space Mouse Richard

Saunders, 2017-07-21 BMW is an unusual mouse having remarkably keen hearing and enormous ears that he has been part of our space agency's search for messages from outer space Logically with the billions of galaxies out there it would be peculiar if our earth was the only one with people Actually BMW failed to hear any messages from space while orbiting in his space capsule but what he did hear led to his being honored by our president His story is told by a professor he befriended by chance after making a nest in the professor's old car called a BMW The Volume Library Abram Royer Brubacher, 1923
