Emotions In Croblinguistic Perspective:

Emotions in Crosslinguistic Perspective Jean Harkins, Anna Wierzbicka, 2001 This volume aims to enrich the current interdisciplinary theoretical discussion of human emotions by presenting studies based on extensive linguistic data from a wide range of languages of the world Each language specific study gives detailed semantic descriptions of the meanings of culturally salient emotion words and expressions offering fascinating insights into people's emotional lives in diverse cultures including Amharic Chinese German Japanese Lao Malay Mbula Polish and Russian The book is unique in its emphasis on empirical language data analyzed in a framework free of ethnocentrism and not dependent upon English emotion terms but relying instead on independently established conceptual universals Students of languages and cultures psychology and cognition will find this volume a rich resource of description and analysis of emotional meanings in cultural context

Linguistic Approaches to Emotions in Context Fabienne Baider, Georgeta Cislaru, 2014-03-15 This book presents new issues in the study of the interface of emotions and language and their use in social context Two fundamental questions are tackled the way different languages encode emotional information and the core role emotions play in languages structure use and learning Seldom treated means of expressing emotions such as interjections conditionals scalarity allocentric constructions the social and professional impact of emotions and the latest developments in the interface of speech recognition emotions are some of the key contributions to this volume The cross cultural perspective contrasts new couples of languages among which Australian aboriginal languages Cypriot Greek Italian Japanese Romanian Russian and addresses sociolinguistic pragmatic and discursive issues Most of the papers attempt interesting theoretical articulations that aim at a better understanding of the linguistic and sociolinguistic nature of emotions This book will be highly relevant for students and researchers interested in emotions semantics pragmatics discourse analysis as well as prosody and philosophy of language

Landscape and Culture - Cross-linguistic Perspectives Helen Bromhead, 2018-09-07 The relationship between landscape and culture seen through language is an exciting and increasingly explored area This ground breaking book contributes to the linguistic examination of both cross cultural variation and unifying elements in geographical categorization The study focuses on the contrastive lexical semantics of certain landscape words in a number of languages The aim is to show how geographical vocabulary sheds light on the culturally and historically shaped ways people see and think about the land around them Notably the study presents landscape concepts as anchored in a human centred perspective based on our cognition vision and experience in places The Natural Semantic Metalanguage NSM approach allows an analysis of meaning which is both fine grained and transparent The book is aimed first of all at scholars and students of linguistics Yet it will also be of interest to researchers in geography environmental studies anthropology cultural studies Australian Studies and Australian Aboriginal Studies because of the book's cultural take

Contextual and Crosslinguistic Facets of Emotion Concepts Liane Ströbel, 2023-07-12 Emotions permeate every aspect of our lives and not only provide us with invaluable information about our environment and the people in it but also influence our perception of situations and events Interestingly this domain so ubiquitous in our everyday lives largely resists attempts at scientific definition One reason for this could be that emotions rarely occur in isolation but are usually combined or embedded in other states of mind Moreover the experience of emotions may be influenced not only by culture but also by individual language Analysis is further complicated by the fact that emotions are abstract and require complex linguistic coding to make an invisible emotional state of the speaker at least rudimentarily visible to the listener For this reason the present volume aims to investigate the perception encoding reception and influence potential of emotions in context and across languages using different corpora The following questions are central To what extent do emotions influence our perception of events and facts and To what extent can emotion concepts be defined language specifically but also universally on the basis of our perception Therefore the eight contributions analyze emotions in different contexts and from different starting points to uncover the cognitive mechanisms underlying the perception and influence of emotion concepts The first four papers focus primarily on emotional and sensory experiences and interactions that are set in motion when we are confronted with emotions while the following four focus on the different facets of emotion across languages to show which emotion concepts are language specific or universal and thus contribute to a better understanding of this complex field

Cross-Linguistic Semantics Cliff Goddard, 2008-04-10 Cross linguistic semantics investigating how languages package and express meanings differently is central to the linguistic quest to understand the nature of human language This set of studies explores and demonstrates cross linguistic semantics as practised in the natural semantic metalanguage NSM framework originated by Anna Wierzbicka The opening chapters give a state of the art overview of the NSM model propose several theoretical innovations and advance a number of original analyses in connection with names and naming clefts and other specificational sentences and discourse anaphora Subsequent chapters describe and analyse diverse phenomena in ten languages from multiple families geographical locations and cultural settings around the globe Three substantial studies document how the metalanguage of NSM semantic primes can be realised in languages of widely differing types Amharic Ethiopia Korean and East Cree Each constitutes a lexicogrammatical portrait in miniature of the language concerned Other chapters probe topics such as inalienable possession in Koromu Papua New Guinea epistemic verbs in Swedish hyperpolysemy in Bunuba Australia the expression of momentariness in Berber ethnogeometry in Makasai East Timor value concepts in Russian and virtuous emotions in Japanese This book will be valuable for linguists working on language description lexical semantics or the semantics of grammar for advanced students of linguistics and for others interested in language universals and language diversity

The Routledge Handbook of Language and Emotion Sonya Pritzker, Janina Fenigsen, James Wilce, 2019-12-06 The Routledge Handbook of Language and Emotion offers a variety of critical theoretical and methodological perspectives that interrogate the ways in which ideas about and experiences of emotion are shaped by linguistic encounters and vice versa

Taking an interdisciplinary approach which incorporates disciplines such as linguistic anthropology sociolinguistics applied linguistics psychology communication studies education sociology folklore religious studies and literature this book explores and illustrates the relationship between language and emotion in the five key areas of language socialisation culture translation and transformation poetry pragmatics and power the affective body self and emotion communities situates our present day thinking about language and emotion by providing a historical and cultural overview of distinctions and moral values that have traditionally dominated Western thought relating to emotions and their management provides a unique insight into the multiple ways in which language incites emotion and vice versa especially in the context of culture With contributions from an international range of leading and emerging scholars in their fields The Routledge Handbook of Language and Emotion is an indispensable resource for students and researchers who are interested in incorporating interdisciplinary perspectives on language and emotion into their work

The Language of Memory in a Crosslinguistic Perspective Mengistu Amberber, 2007-11-14 This book offers for the first time a detailed comparative study of how speakers of different languages express memory concepts While there is a robust body of psycholinguistic research that bears on how memory and language are related there is no comparative study of how speakers themselves conceptualize memory as reflected in their use of language to talk about memory This book addresses a key question how do speakers of different languages talk about the experience of having prior experiences coming to mind remembering or failing to come to mind forgetting A complex array of answers is provided through detailed grammatical and semantic investigation of different languages including English German Polish Russian and also a number of non Indo European languages Amharic Cree Dalabon Korean and Mandarin In addition the book calls for a broader interdisciplinary engagement by urging that cognitive semantics be integrated with other sciences of memory

Anglo-Saxon Emotions Alice Jorgensen, Frances McCormack, Jonathan

Wilcox,2016-04-15 Research into the emotions is beginning to gain momentum in Anglo Saxon studies In order to integrate early medieval Britain into the wider scholarly research into the history of emotions a major theme in other fields and a key field in interdisciplinary studies this volume brings together established scholars who have already made significant contributions to the study of Anglo Saxon mental and emotional life with younger scholars The volume presents a tight focus on emotion rather than psychological life more generally on Anglo Saxon England and on language and literature with contrasting approaches that will open up debate The volume considers a range of methodologies and theoretical perspectives examines the interplay of emotion and textuality explores how emotion is conveyed through gesture interrogates emotions in religious devotional literature and considers the place of emotion in heroic culture Each chapter asks questions about what is culturally distinctive about emotion in Anglo Saxon England and what interpretative moves have to be made to read emotion in Old English texts as well as considering how ideas about and representations of emotion might relate to lived experience Taken together the essays in this collection indicate the current state of the field and preview important work to come By exploring methodologies and materials for the study of Anglo Saxon emotions particularly focusing on Old English language and literature it will both stimulate further study within the discipline and make a distinctive contribution to the wider interdisciplinary conversation about emotions Polysemy, Diachrony, and the Circle of Cognition Michael

Fortescue,2021-01-25 Verbs of mental states or activity constitute a subject of considerable interest to both Cognitive Linguistics and Linguistic Typology They promise to open a window on the invisible workings of the mind while at the same time displaying a wide variety of historical sources across languages In this book Michael Fortescue presents an innovative approach to the semantics and diachronic source of cognitive verbs across a representative array of the world s languages The relationship among the cognitive verbs of individual languages is essentially one of metonymy and the book investigates in detail the specific metonymic relationships involved as revealed largely by the polysemous spread of word meanings The data is projected against a circular map of interrelated cognitive categories Culture, Body, and Language Farzad

Sharifian,René Dirven,Ning Yu,Susanne Niemeier,2008-11-03 One of the central themes in cognitive linguistics is the uniquely human development of some higher potential called the mind and more particularly the intertwining of body and mind which has come to be known as embodiment Several books and volumes have explored this theme in length However the interaction between culture body and language has not received the due attention that it deserves Naturally any serious exploration of the interface between body language and culture would require an analytical tool that would capture the ways in which different cultural groups conceptualize their feelings thinking and other experiences in relation to body and language A well established notion that appears to be promising in this direction is that of cultural models constituting the building blocks of a group s cultural cognition The volume results from an attempt to bring together a group of scholars from various language backgrounds to make a collective attempt to explore the relationship between body language and culture

by focusing on conceptualizations of the heart and other internal body organs across a number of languages The general aim of this venture is to explore a the ways in which internal body organs have been employed in different languages to conceptualize human experiences such as emotions and or workings of the mind and b the cultural models that appear to account for the observed similarities as well as differences of the various conceptualizations of internal body organs The volume as a whole engages not only with linguistic analyses of terms that refer to internal body organs across different languages but also with the origin of the cultural models that are associated with internal body organs in different cultural systems such as ethnomedical and religious traditions Some contributions also discuss their findings in relations to some philosophical doctrines that have addressed the relationship between mind body and language such as that of Descartes

Components of emotional meaning Johnny J. R. Fontaine, Klaus R. Scherer, Cristina Soriano, 2013-08-01 Publications on emotion and the affective sciences in general have exploded in the last decade Numerous research teams and individual scholars from many different disciplines have published research papers or books about many different aspects of emotions and their role in behaviour and society However One aspect of emotional research that has been somewhat neglected is the way in which emotional terms translate into other languages When using terms like anger sadness fear disgust and joy for so called basic emotions as well as terms like shame guilt pride regret and contempt for more complex emotions it is naturally assumed that the emotion terms used for research in the native language of the researchers and translated into English are completely equivalent in meaning However this is not generally the case In many cases there is no direct one to one relationship between an English term and a term in an alternative language In fact there can be significant differences in the way that these seemingly similar emotional terms can be applied across various languages with important implications for how we review and appraise this work This book presents an extensive cross cultural and cross linguistic review of the meaning of emotion words adopting a novel methodological approach Based on the Component Process Model the authors developed a new instrument to assess the meaning of emotion terms This instrument the GRID questionnaire consists of a grid of 24 emotion terms spanning the emotion domain and 142 emotion features that operationalize five emotion components Appraisals Bodily reactions Expressions Action tendencies and Feelings For the operationalization of these five emotion components very different emotion models from the Western and the cultural comparative emotion literature were taken into account Components of Emotional Meaning includes contributions from psychological cultural comparative and linguistic perspectives demonstrating how this new instrument can be used to empirically study very different research questions on the meaning of emotion terms The implications of the results for major theoretical debates on emotion are also discussed For all researchers in the affective sciences this book is an important new reference work

The Oxford Handbook of Linguistic Analysis Bernd Heine, Heiko Narrog, 2015-02-19 This handbook compares the main analytic frameworks and methods of contemporary linguistics It offers a unique overview of linguistic theory revealing the common concerns of competing approaches By showing their current and potential applications it provides the means by which linguists and others can judge what are the most useful models for the task in hand Distinguished scholars from all over the world explain the rationale and aims of over thirty explanatory approaches to the description analysis and understanding of language Each chapter considers the main goals of the model the relation it proposes from between lexicon syntax semantics pragmatics and phonology the way it defines the interactions between cognition and grammar what it counts as evidence and how it explains linguistic change and structure The Oxford Handbook of Linguistic Analysis offers an indispensable guide for everyone researching any aspect of language including those in linguistics comparative philology cognitive science developmental philology cognitive science developmental psychology computational science and artificial intelligence This second edition has been updated to include seven new chapters looking at linguistic units in language acquisition conversation analysis neurolinguistics experimental phonetics phonological analysis experimental semantics and distributional typology Cognitive Linguistics, Second Language Acquisition, and Foreign Language Teaching Michel Achard, Susanne Niemeier, 2004 This book shows that the notions developed within the Cognitive Linguistics movement afford an insightful perspective on several important areas of second language acquisition and pedagogy The key concepts commonly invoked in cognitive analyses such as the usage based conception of grammar the radial organization of categories metaphors or cultural scripts do not only represent powerful constructs within which the process of second language acquisition can be valuably investigated but also allow teachers to successfully introduce problematic material in the foreign language classroom Emotions in the Human Voice, Volume 2 Krzysztof Izdebski, 2008-04-01 Challenges of Second and Foreign Language Education in a Globalized World Mirosław Pawlak, Anna

Mystkowska-Wiertelak, 2017-09-07 This edited collection brings together papers by eminent scholars who attempt to demonstrate how challenges can most successfully be ameliorated with an eye to enhancing the effectiveness of the processes of language teaching and learning In Part One emphasis is placed on challenges that second language education has to face both those more general dealing with language policy issues and those more specific concerned with instructional options in the language classroom Part Two focuses on challenges involved in researching the processes of teaching and learning in the second and foreign languages classroom both with respect to research methodology and efforts to tap some variables impinging upon the effects of instruction Finally Part Three is devoted to challenges involved in second and foreign language teacher education the quality of which to a large extent determines the outcomes of second language education in any educational context

The Language of Emotions Maïa Ponsonnet, 2014-12-15 The Language of Emotions The case of Dalabon Australia is the first extensive study of the linguistic encoding of emotions in an Australian language and further in an endangered non European language Based on first hand data collected using innovative methods the monograph describes and analyzes how Dalabon speakers express emotions using interjections prosody evaluative morphology and the words they use to describe and discuss emotions Like many languages Dalabon makes broad use of body part words in descriptions of emotions The volume analyzes the figurative functions of these body part words as well as their non figurative functions Correlations between linguistic features and cultural patterns are systematically questioned Beyond Australianists and linguists working on emotions the book will be of interest to anthropological linguists cognitive linguists or linguists working on discourse and communication for instance It is accessible also to non linguists with an interest in language in particular anthropologists and psychologists

Words and the Mind Barbara Malt, Phillip Wolff, 2010-03-01 The study of word meanings promises important insights into the nature of the human mind by revealing what people find to be most cognitively significant in their experience However as we learn more about the semantics of various languages we are faced with an interesting problem Different languages seem to be telling us different stories about the mind For example important distinctions made in one language are not necessarily made in others What are we to make of these cross linguistic differences How do they arise Are they created by purely linguistic processes operating over the course of language evolution Or do they reflect fundamental differences in thought In this sea of differences are there any semantic universals Which categories might be given by the genes which by culture and which by language And what might the cross linguistic similarities and differences contribute to our understanding of conceptual and linguistic development The kinds of mapping principles structures and processes that link language and non linguistic knowledge must accommodate not just one language but the rich diversity that has been uncovered The integration of knowledge and methodologies necessary for real progress in answering these questions has happened only recently as experimental approaches have been applied to the cross linguistic study of word meaning In Words and the Mind Barbara Malt and Phillip Wolff present evidence from the leading researchers who are carrying out this empirical work on topics as diverse as spatial relations events emotion terms motion events objects body part terms causation color categories and relational categories By bringing them together Malt and Wolff highlight some of the most exciting cross linguistic and cross cultural work on the language thought interface from a broad array of fields including linguistics anthropology cognitive and developmental psychology and cognitive neuropsychology Their results provide some answers to these questions and new perspectives on the issues surrounding them The Pragmatics of Managing Negative Emotions in a Chinese Context Rong Lei, 2024-09-19 Drawing from rich naturally occurring language data and synthesizing insights from the fields of interpersonal pragmatics and Chinese interpersonal communication this book presents a compelling exploration of the management of negative emotions through an interpersonal pragmatics lens The volume seeks to answer a number of key questions at the intersection of these two fields including how do negative interpersonal emotions manifest in the context of Chinese culture What connections exist between emotions and interpersonal dynamics In what ways are these emotions intertwined with the moral framework of Chinese society How are such negative emotions effectively navigated and regulated The analysis goes beyond mere examination of emotional expressions delving into the cultural nuances that shape the understanding and handling of emotions The book elucidates for instance how unmet ganqing expectations can trigger emotions like anger and sadness and in turn the employment of rapport management strategies in their mitigation The book provides profound insights into a previously overlooked and little understood area of study making it of interest to students and researchers in pragmatics discourse analysis communication studies and psychotherapy
