Gender, Geography and Empire Cheryl McEwan, 2019-06-03 This title was first published 2000 This text is intended to draw together two important developments in contemporary geography firstly the recognition of the need to write critical histories of geographical thought and particularly the relationship between modern geography and European imperialism and secondly the attempt by feminist geographers to countervail the absence of women in the histories The author focuses on the narratives of British women travellers in West Africa between 1840 and 1915 exploring their contributions to British imperial culture the ways in which they were empowered in the imperial context by virtue of both race and class and their various representations of West African landscapes and peoples The book argues for the inclusion of women and their experiences in histories of geographical thought and explores the possibilities and problems of combining feminist and post colonial approaches to these histories

Lovecraft's Cthulhu Mythos His search takes him from the streets of Vancouver to the fantasy realm of the Goths at the World Horror Convention in Seattle to a nail biting climax in the Kingdom of Bones on the cannibal island of Tangaroa in the South Pacific where suddenly Chandler is in a struggle for his own survival Bed of Nails could stand tall beside the horrific works of Stephen King or Anne Rice

Eating Beauty Ann W. Astell, 2016-02-09 The enigmatic link between the natural and artistic beauty that is to be contemplated but not eaten on the one hand and the eucharistic beauty that is both seen with the eyes of faith and eaten on the other intrigues me and inspires this book One cannot ask theological aesthetic questions about the Eucharist without engaging fundamental questions about the relationship between beauty art broadly defined and eating from Eating Beauty In a remarkable book that is at once learned startlingly original and highly personal Ann W Astell explores the ambiguity of the phrase eating beauty The phrase evokes the destruction of beauty the devouring mouth of the grave the mouth of hell To eat beauty is to destroy it Yet in the case of the Eucharist the person of faith who eats the Host is transformed into beauty itself literally incorporated into Christ In this sense Astell explains the Eucharist was productive of an entire way of life a virtuous life form an artwork with Christ himself as the principal artist The Eucharist established for the people of the Middle Ages distinctive schools of sanctity Cistercian Franciscan Dominican and Ignatian whose members were united by the eucharistic sacrament that they received Reading the lives of the saints not primarily as historical documents but as iconic expressions of original artworks fashioned by the eucharistic Christ Astell puts the faceless Host in a dynamic relationship with these icons With the advent of each new spirituality the Christian idea of beauty expanded to include first the marred beauty of the saint and finally that of the church torn by division an anti aesthetic beauty embracing process suffering deformity and disappearance as well as the radiant lightness of the resurrected body This astonishing work of intellectual and religious history is illustrated with telling artistic examples ranging from medieval manuscript illuminations to sculptures by Michelangelo and paintings by Salvador Dal Astell puts the lives of medieval saints in conversation with modern philosophers as disparate as Simone Weil and G W F Hegel
