Bulletin of comparative labour relations ,2005      The Global Labour Market Roger Blanpain,Michele

Tiraboschi,Pablo Arellano Ortiz,2008-01-01 As global power relations increasingly favour international capital it becomes crucial for labour and employment lawyers to center their field in a supranational context As long as wages social security and taxes remain national matters states compete at this level in order to attract foreign investment This does not bode well for employees or the self employed Most ameliorative measures come in the form of unenforceable and soft law and guidelines and recommendations The conference recorded in this vitally important book confronts this losing battle of local responses to global challenges The book reprints the papers submitted to that conference by twenty three outstanding scholars from fourteen countries Among the many critical issues they expose and discuss are the following and the proliferation of varieties of non standard employment and protection of migrant workers and rights by regional organizations and global and regional trends in the human resources function and work training and education policy and effectiveness of equality and non discrimination standards and involvement of employees in workplace decisionmaking and and the need for an equitable social safety net In the course of the discussion the authors examine cases from many countries including not only EU Member States both West and East and the U S but also Japan Chile South Africa and Indonesia With a focus on the nexus of multinational enterprises and international standards the book provides both a sharp image of where labour law stands in today's world and revealing serious social problems in a clearer light than is usually encountered and a very valuable guide to directions to pursue and potential solutions offered by some of the most engaged and committed minds in the field It is an indispensable resource for legal workers in this and eye of the storm and of globalization      Labour Regulation in the 21st Century Pietro Manzella,2012-01-17 The economic crisis has highlighted major shortcomings in the EU flexicurity strategy which although suitable to tackle structural unemployment in a period of economic growth it proved unable to stand the impact of the recession which requires specific measures to maintain employment Against this background the authors of the present papers which were presented at the International Scientific Conference Labour Market of the 21st Century Looking for Flexibility and Security on the occasion of the 370th Anniversary of the establishment of Vilnius University's Faculty of Law that took place on 12-14 May 2011 investigate the development of labour regulation in the 21st century with particular reference to the relation between flexibility and security and to the need to strike a balance between these two elements The contributions address the issue in a comparative and transnational perspective and provide some insights into the development of national models of flexibility and social security      The Legal and Institutional Framing of Collective Bargaining in CEE Countries Ivana Palinkaš,2018-04-09 The formerly communist countries of Central and Eastern Europe CEE have witnessed a profound transformation of their labour laws since the 1990s and especially after their accession to the European Union Today in comparison to the other Member States they continue to have weak trade unions and employers associations and an underdeveloped system of collective bargaining. Moreover, the recent economic and financial crisis highlighted the need to invest further efforts in bringing the CEE industrial relations closer to the old Member States in order to facilitate a more meaningful enforcement of the EU wide economic and social policies. This is the first book to scrutinise this important matter in depth. Focusing on four current CEE labour law regimes in Slovenia, Slovakia, the Czech Republic and Poland that also have different collective bargaining trends and can be said to exemplify some of the main legal and institutional frameworks for collective bargaining that the CEE countries have developed, the author addresses the following major issues: the transition from a centralised to an open market economy and the degree of continuing residual characteristics; the extent to which labour laws since the 1990s have enabled an adequate institutionalisation of industrial relations to allow free and voluntary collective bargaining at the national, sectoral and company levels; and the effectiveness of the standard setting role of trade unions and employers associations insofar as they have persisted or come into play. The analysis always keeps in focus the development of labour laws in relation to a number of such interlinked elements as market transformation, type of privatisation of state ownership and attitudes towards welfare. It draws on both the relevant literature and on twenty-five interviews with legal and policy experts from social partners, organisations and staff within the ministries for social affairs in the selected countries. In support of the study's general finding that the laws in CEE countries could provide more stimulus for sectoral and cross sectoral collective bargaining, the author offers deeply informed recommendations and insights into legal shortcomings and pinpoints how the existing legal frameworks can be enhanced. Any professional or academic in the field of industrial relations and particularly those concerned with complex transitions such as those occurring in the CEE countries and elsewhere in the world will find this book of great value.

European Board-Level Employee Representation Jeremy Waddington, 2018-06-23. It is often assumed that employee representatives exert power at the company board but it is rarely made explicit how power is exercised and to what effect. This book, the first to assess national differences between board level employee representatives in their exercise of influence and power, examines coordination among board level employee representatives, trade unions, representatives from other institutions of labour representation within the company management and other board members. Drawing on a large scale survey distributed to board level employee representatives, eleven expert contributors analyse for seven European countries (Denmark, France, Germany, Hungary, Norway, Slovenia and Sweden) how such issues and topics as the following affect the participation of employee representatives at the board: capacity of board level employee representatives to exercise power over long term strategic corporate decision making; how changed circumstances impinge on the role of employee representatives; how coordination of workers' interests has been established and maintained if at all; how board level employee representatives are selected; influence of board level employee representatives on corporate restructuring; effect of corporate codes of governance; impact of the establishment of groups of companies and protections.

against dismissal and discrimination of board level employee representatives Each country chapter reviews the legislation that underpins board level employee representation the timeliness and quality of the information provided and the capacity of the representatives to apply information made available with the purpose of establishing whether the legislation tends to constrain or facilitate the exercise of influence and power This book takes a giant step towards answering the question of how board level employee representatives can fulfil their roles in a manner consistent with the intentions of the policymakers who framed the legislation Moreover it approaches the possibility of developing pan European legislation on board level employee representation that would accommodate national variations For these reasons the book will be welcomed by European policymakers concerned with industrial relations or corporate governance as well as by practitioners and academics in a wide swath of European legal and social studies      Comparative Labor Law Journal ,1992      IIRA Bulletin ,1991
