Dialogue on Dialect Standardization Carrie Dyck, Tania Granadillo, Keren Rice, 2015-01-12 This volume provides a space for the development of dialogue between dialectologists language community activists and other researchers working on the development of orthographies regarding issues that arise during the creation of writing systems in places where there is dialect variation and an absence of writing systems or where there is a writing system for a national language but not for the particular related language The chapters in this volume address two major themes first the imperative for standardization is influenced by many social and political factors including identity age ease of use of the language and familiarity as well as the nature of the language itself The second theme investigated by the authors is the assumption of the value of standardization which in many cases leads to overt or covert negotiations or conflicts in the process of language planning and orthography development These themes are addressed through the experiences of the authors of working with languages and dialects in various parts of the world including Cyprus Poland Canada the Caribbean and Mexico among others The languages examined in this volume include both those for which there have long been writing systems for standard dialects such as Cypriot Greek and Podlachian which is sometimes said to be a Belarusian Ukrainian variety and those for which writing has been only recently introduced such as Cayuga Oneida and Mixean

Florists' review, 1929 Philadelphia Florist and Horticultural Journal, 1853 The Florist and Horticultural Journal, 1854 Botany, sexuality and women's writing, 1760-1830 Sam George, 2017-10-03 In this fascinating study Samantha George explores the cultivation of the female mind and the feminised discourse of botanical literature in eighteenth century Britain In particular she discusses British women s engagement with the Swedish botanist Carl Linnaeus and his unsettling discovery of plant sexuality Previously ignored primary texts of an extraordinary nature are rescued from obscurity and assigned a proper place in the histories of science eighteenth century literature and women s writing The result is groundbreaking the author explores nationality and sexuality debates in relation to botany and charts the appearance of a new literary stereotype the sexually precocious female botanist She uncovers an anonymous poem on Linnaean botany handwritten in the eighteenth century and subsequently traces the development of a new genre of women s writing the botanical poem with scientific notes The book is indispensable reading for all scholars of the eighteenth century especially those interested in Romantic women s writing or the relationship between literature and science Good

Observers of Nature Tina Gianquitto,2010-01-25 In Good Observers of Nature Tina Gianquitto examines nineteenth century American women s intellectual and aesthetic experiences of nature and investigates the linguistic perceptual and scientific systems that were available to women to describe those experiences Many women writers of this period used the natural world as a platform for discussing issues of domesticity education and the nation To what extent asks Gianquitto did these writers challenge the prevalent sentimental narrative modes like those used in the popular flower language books and use scientific terminology to describe the world around them The book maps the intersections of the main historical and narrative trajectories that inform the answer to this question the changing literary representations of the natural world in texts produced by women from the 1820s to the 1880s and the developments in science from the Enlightenment to the advent of evolutionary biology Though Gianquitto considers a range of women s nature writing botanical manuals plant catalogs travel narratives seasonal journals scientific essays she focuses on four writers and their most influential works Almira Phelps Familiar Lectures on Botany 1829 Margaret Fuller Summer on the Lakes in 1843 Susan Fenimore Cooper Rural Hours 1850 and Mary Treat Home Studies in Nature 1885 From these writings emerges a set of common concerns about the interaction of reason and emotion in the study of nature the best vocabularies for representing objects in nature local scientific or moral and the competing systems for ordering the natural world theological taxonomic or aesthetic This is an illuminating study about the culturally assumed relationship between women morality and science Arte A.
