Sephardic Jews in America Aviva Ben-Ur, 2012 A significant number of Sephardic Jews tracing their remote origins to Spain and Portugal immigrated to the United States from Turkey Greece and the Balkans from 1880 through the 1920s joined by a smaller number of Mizrahi Jews arriving from Arab lands Most Sephardim settled in New York establishing the leading Judeo Spanish community outside the Ottoman Empire With their distinct languages cultures and rituals Sephardim and Arab speaking Mizrahim were not readily recognized as Jews by their Ashkenazic coreligionists At the same time they forged alliances outside Jewish circles with Hispanics and Arabs with whom they shared significant cultural and linguistic ties The failure among Ashkenazic Jews to recognize Sephardim and Mizrahim as fellow Jews continues today More often than not these Jewish communities are simply absent from portrayals of American Jewry Drawing on primary sources such as the Ladino Judeo Spanish press archival documents and oral histories Sephardic Jews in America offers the first book length academic treatment of their history in the United States from 1654 to the present focusing on the age of

Arkin, 2013-12-18 During the course of her fieldwork in Paris anthropologist Kimberly Arkin heard what she thought was a surprising admission A French born North African Jewish Sephardi teenage girl laughingly told Arkin she was a racist When asked what she meant by that the girl responded It means I hate Arabs This girl was not unique She and other Sephardi youth in Paris insisted again and again that they were not French though born in France and that they could not imagine their Jewish future in France Fueled by her candid and compelling informants Arkin's analysis delves into the connections and disjunctures between Jews and Muslims religion and secular Republicanism race and national community and identity and culture in post colonial France Rhinestones argues that Sephardi youth as both Arabs and Jews fall between categories of class religion and culture Many reacted to this liminality by going beyond religion and culture to categorize their Jewishness as race distinguishing Sephardi Jews from Arab Muslims regardless of similarities they shared while linking them to European Jews Ashkenazim regardless of their differences But while racializing Jewishness might have made Sephardi Frenchness possible it produced the opposite result it re grounded national community in religion as race thereby making pluri religious community appear threatening Rhinestones thus sheds light on the production of race alienation and intolerance within marginalized French and European populations Israel and China: From the Tang Dynasty to Silicon Wadi Mark O'Neill, 2018-01-01 The Jews first arrived in China during the Tang dynasty 618 907 AD and settled as businessmen civil servants and professionals They assimilated into Chinese society and lost their Jewish character The next wave came in the mid 19th century with the opening of the treaty ports and settled in Shanghai They went into trading especially opium and diversified into property manufacturing finance public transport and retail Another Jewish community settled in Harbin after the opening of the China Eastern Railway in 1903 They also prospered in trading and business Both communities built synagogues schools social clubs and welfare institutions During World War Two 25 000 Jews from Nazi occupied Europe took refuge in Shanghai one of the few cities in the world open to them Many received visas from Asian diplomats who defied their governments to issue them The Japanese military refused the Nazi demand to carry out the final solution of the Jews in Shanghai After 1945 inflation civil war and Communist rule made most Jews leave China for new homes in Israel North America Australia and elsewhere The new state of Israel worked hard to establish diplomatic ties with the People's Republic it became an important supplier of weapons in the 1980s But it took 42 years for the two countries to sign the ties in 1992 Since then relations have blossomed and China has become one of Israel's biggest foreign investors In the reform and open door era Jewish people have returned to China and form important communities in Beijing Shanghai Guangzhou and other cities Part of this narrative are remarkable individuals who have left a deep imprint on China Karl Marx Sir Victor Sassoon Silas Hardoon the Kadoorie family Henry Kissinger and Sigmund Freud To tell this extraordinary story Mark O'Neill conducted many interviews with rabbis businessmen entrepreneurs professors and journalists in Beijing Shanghai Hong Kong and Israel It is largely a joyful page in Jewish history The Jewish
