Global Perspectives on Critical Architecture Gevork Hartoonian, 2016-03-03 Judging from the debates taking place in both education and practice it appears that architecture is deeply in crisis New design and production techniques together with the globalization of capital and even skilled labour have reduced architecture to a commodified object its aesthetic qualities tapping into the current pervasive desire for the spectacular These developments have changed the architect's role in the design and production processes of architecture Moreover critical architectural theories including those of Breton Heidegger and Benjamin which explored the concepts of technology modernism labour and capital and how technology informed the cultural along with later theories from the 1960s which focused more on the architect's theorization of his/her own design strategies seem increasingly irrelevant In an age of digital reproduction and commodification these theoretical approaches need to be reassessed Bringing together essays and interviews from leading scholars such as Kenneth Frampton Peggy Deamer Bernard Tschumi Donald Kunze and Marco Biraghi this volume investigates and critically addresses various dimensions of the present crisis of architecture It poses questions such as Is architecture a conservative cultural product servicing a given producer consumer system Should architecture's affiliative ties with capitalism be subjected to a measure of criticism that can be expanded to the entirety of the cultural realm Is architecture's infusion into the cultural the reason for the visibility of architecture today What room does the city leave for architecture beyond the present delirium of spectacle Should the thematic of various New Left criticisms of capitalism be taken as the premise of architectural criticism Or alternatively putting the notion of criticality aside is it enough to confine criticism to the production of insightful and pleasurable texts

Reuse Value Richard Brilliant, Dale Kinney, 2016-04-08 This book offers a range of views on spolia and appropriation in art and architecture from fourth century Rome to the late twentieth century Using case studies from different historical moments and cultures contributors test the limits of spolia as a critical category and seek to define its specific character in relation to other forms of artistic appropriation Several authors explore the ethical issues raised by spoliation and their implications for the evaluation and interpretation of new work made with spolia The contemporary fascination with spolia is part of a larger cultural preoccupation with reuse recycling appropriation and re presentation in the Western world All of these practices speak to a desire to make use of pre-existing artifacts objects images expressions for contemporary purposes Several essays in this volume focus on the distinction between spolia and other forms of reused objects While some authors prefer to elide such distinctions others insist that spolia entail some form of taking often violent and a diminution of the source from which they are removed The book opens with an essay by the scholar most responsible for the popularity of spolia studies in the later twentieth century Arnold Esch whose seminal article Spolien was published in 1969 Subsequent essays treat late Roman antiquity the Eastern Mediterranean and the Western Middle Ages medieval and modern attitudes to spolia in Southern Asia the Italian Renaissance the European Enlightenment modern America and contemporary architecture and visual culture
