Jean-François Millet, Peasant and Painter Alfred Sensier, 1881      Jean François Millet Estelle M. Hurll, 2022-09-16

Estelle M Hurll's Jean François Millet offers an incisive exploration into the world of the eponymous French painter renowned for his depictions of peasant life. Skillfully assembling a collection of fifteen canonical works complemented by a portrait of Millet, Hurll crafts a meticulously detailed narrative that doubles as an art historical study and a scholarly interpretation. Her prose envelops the reader in the prevalent themes of realism and the embodiment of peasant toil within the nineteenth-century literary context while reflecting on the aesthetic nuances and the profound social commentary inherent in Millet's artistry. A revered interpreter of art, Estelle M Hurll's expertise and passion for the subject matter manifest in the depth of her analysis and understanding of Jean François Millet's oeuvre. Drawing upon her broad knowledge of art history and her nuanced appreciation of Millet's technique and symbolism, Hurll constructs a bridge between the artist's intentions and the audience's perception, shedding light on the historical and cultural significance of Millet's work in a period rife with transformations in art and society. This edition, thoughtfully reproduced by DigiCat Publishing, is an indispensable read for both art enthusiasts and scholars of nineteenth-century culture. Through Hurll's insightful lens, readers are ushered into a deeper appreciation of Millet's masterpieces, fostering a renewed consideration for the legacy of the rural narrative in fine art. The book is a luminous endorsement for anyone yearning to fathom the profundity of Millet's contribution to visual art and the pervasive themes that defined an era.      Jean-François Millet Jean-François Millet, William Ernest Henley, 1881

The view from the upper studio will be glorious, he wrote to Sensier when the plan was first proposed in September 1859. I am longing to be there already for it will be of the greatest use to me. Rousseau has started for Besançon this morning and I am a prey to the usual headaches. Another letter regarding the work which had been done for Sensier belongs to this autumn and is among those published by Mr Bartlett Thursday morning. My Dear Sensier Monday Tuesday and Wednesday were most religiously consecrated to curing myself of a bad headache and this is why I have not answered your letter sooner although I went yesterday evening to see Pere Ribouillard whom I found seated in the corner of his fireplace devouring a very large plate of soup. I mention this last fact because it was really a very fantastic picture. The room was dark and the candle was not lighted. As I have just said Pere Ribouillard sat in the corner of the fireplace eating while Eugénie Bélon was in the opposite corner looking like a gnome very busily engaged in eating soup out of an old kettle.

and so intent on the task that she never even turned her head as I came in You can imagine what ornaments to the fireplace Pere Ribouillard and Eugene Belon were Though their faces were only dimly lighted by the little blaze on the hearth you could easily see their general form Mere Ribouillard that old layer out of dead bodies sat between them I asked Ribouillard what he wanted of you and his wife replied that they heartily wished you would pay them a little money Their bill was 15 francs for clearing the wood and 17 sous for half a day's work But my wife thinks the wood clearing ought

SENSIER, 2018 Jean Francois Millet Estelle M. Hurl, 2018-07-10 Jean Francois Millet Estelle M Hurl In figure painting Millet sought neither grace nor beauty but expression That he regarded neither of these first two qualities as intrinsically unworthy we may infer from the grace of the Sower and the naive beauty of the Shepherdess and the Woman Sewing But that expression was of paramount interest to him we see clearly in the Angelus and the Man with the Hoe The leading characteristic of his art is strength and he distrusted the ordinary elements of prettiness as taking something from the total effect he wished to produce Let no one think that they can force me to prettify my types he said I would rather do nothing than express myself feebly It was always his first aim to make his people look as if they belonged to their station We are delighted to publish this classic book as part of our extensive Classic Library collection Many of the books in our collection have been out of print for decades and therefore have not been accessible to the general public The aim of our publishing program is to facilitate rapid access to this vast reservoir of literature and our view is that this is a significant literary work which deserves to be brought back into print after many decades The contents of the vast majority of titles in the Classic Library have been scanned from the original works To ensure a high quality product each title has been meticulously hand curated by our staff Our philosophy has been guided by a desire to provide the reader with a book that is as close as possible to ownership of the original work We hope that you will enjoy this wonderful classic work and that for you it becomes an enriching experience Jean Francois Millet Hurl Estelle M., 1901 Jean-Francois Millet Jean-Francois Millet, 2014-08-07 This Is A New Release Of The Original 1881 Edition Jean François Millet, 1814-1875. [With Illustrations, Including a Portrait.] Ruth Janette WARNER, Jean François Millet, 1898 Jean Francois Millet Estelle M. Hurl, 2013-08 The distinctive features of Millet's art are so marked that the most inexperienced observer easily identifies his work As a painter of rustic subjects he is unlike any other artists who have entered the same field even those who have taken his own themes We get at the heart of the matter when we say that Millet derived his art directly from nature If I could only do what I like he said I would paint nothing that was not the result of an impression directly received from nature whether in landscape or in figure His pictures are convincing evidence that he acted upon this theory They have a peculiar quality of genuineness beside which all other rustic art seems forced and artificial The human side of life touched him most deeply and in many of his earlier pictures landscape was secondary Gradually he grew into the larger conception of a perfect harmony between man and his environment Henceforth landscape ceased to be a mere setting or background in a figure picture and became an organic part of the composition As a critic once wrote of the Shepherdess the earth and sky the scene and the actors all answer one another all hold together belong together The description applies equally well to many other pictures and particularly to the Angelus the Sower and the Gleaners In all these landscape and figure are interdependent fitting together in a perfect unity     Jean François Millet, his life and letters Julia Mary Cartwright, Jean François Millet, 1896
