Number in the World's Languages Paolo Acquaviva, Michael Daniel, 2022-06-21 The strong development in research on grammatical number in recent years has created a need for a unified perspective The different frameworks the ramifications of the theoretical questions and the diversity of phenomena across typological systems make this a significant challenge This book addresses the challenge with a series of in depth analyses of number across a typologically diverse sample unified by a common set of descriptive and analytic questions from a semantic morphological syntactic and discourse perspective Each case study is devoted to a single language or in a few cases to a language group They are written by specialists who can rely on first hand data or on material of difficult access and can place the phenomena in the context of the respective system The studies are preceded and concluded by critical overviews which frame the discussion and identify the main results and open questions With specialist chapters breaking new ground this book will help number specialists relate their results to other theoretical and empirical domains and it will provide a reliable guide to all linguists and other researchers interested in number

Saracens and Franks in 12th - 15th Century European and Near Eastern Literature Aman Y. Nadhiri,2016-06-10 Saracens and Franks in 12th 15th Century European and Near Eastern Literature examines the tension between two competing discourses in the medieval Muslim Mediterranean and medieval Christian Europe one rooted in the desire to understand the world and one s place in it and another promoting an ethnocentric narrative To this end it examines the construction of an image of the Other for Muslims in the Eastern Mediterranean and for Christians in Western Europe in works of literature particularly in the works produced in the centuries preceding the Crusades and it explores the ways in which both Muslim and Christian writers depicted the Enemy in historical accounts of the Crusades The author focuses on medieval works of ethnography and geography travel literature Muslim and Christian accounts of the Crusades and the romances of Western Europe to trace the evolution of the image of the Eastern Mediterranean Muslim in medieval Western Europe and the Western European Christian in the medieval Muslim world first to understand the construct in the respective scholarly communities and then to analyze the ways in which this conception informs subsequent works of non fiction and fiction in the Western European context in which this Muslim or Christian Other plays a prominent role In its analysis of the medieval Mediterranean Muslim and European Christian approaches to difference this book interrogates the premises underlying the concept of the Other challenging formulations of binary opposition such as the West versus Islam Muslims

The Long Disenchantment Ilaria Poggiolini,2024-12-27 This book seeks to replace a comforting European narrative of British missed opportunities with a chronicle of the complexity of UK EC EU relations After nearly a decade of Brexit 2016 it revisits the historical evolution of the relationship between Britain and Europe since the 1970s Building on an in depth study of primary and secondary sources the author sheds new light on the intricacies of that relationship The book is structured in six chapters the first of which reflects on the causes of the UK s lack of engagement in the early and crucial developments of the European Community The second chapter revisits ten years of stop go diplomacy of accession and the meaning of the first enlargement for Britain and its partners The third chapter argues that in the early years entry represented for Britain an opportunity to deliver change working with France and Germany inside the EC and as an EC member building new relationships with countries outside including in the Commonwealth The fourth chapter focuses on the dawning realisation that EC membership meant for Britain joining its partners on a journey towards an unknown destination in search of whatever closer Union would mean The Fifth chapter concentrates on the 1980s when on the one hand the British government was to the fore in the creation of a single market while on the other it openly challenged an agreed upon narrative among the continental member states This narrative was one which sought to reshape European values and relationships together with its culture geography and history round a commitment to greater integration The final chapter is an epilogue that examines the political decisions of the last four British prime ministers Major Brown Blair and Cameron in confronting and reacting to the reality of European Union from the Maastricht Treaty 1992 onward This examination suggests that rather than political continuity discontinuity led the UK through Prime Minister David Cameron s efforts at renegotiation in the EU to Brexit and his instant resignation This book invites readers to rethink refine and challenge the dominant narrative of Britain as a predictable permanent outsider condemned to irrelevance in the EC EU It will appeal to scholars of international relations and political history as well as political decision makers both in Britain and the EU

Saxon Identities, AD 150-900 Robert Flierman, 2017-07-13 This study is the first up to date comprehensive analysis of Continental Saxon identity in antiquity and the early middle ages Building on recent scholarship on barbarian ethnicity this study emphasises not just the constructed and open ended nature of Saxon identity but also the crucial role played by texts as instruments and resources of identity formation This book traces this process of identity formation over the course of eight centuries from its earliest beginnings in Roman ethnography to its reinvention in the monasteries and bishoprics of ninth century Saxony Though the Saxons were mentioned as early as AD 150 they left no written evidence of their own before c 840 Thus for the first seven centuries we can only look at the Saxons through the eyes of their Roman enemies Merovingian neighbours and Carolingian conquerors Such external perspectives do not yield objective descriptions of a people but rather reflect an ongoing discourse on Saxon identity in which outside authors described who they imagined wanted or feared the Saxons to be dangerous pirates noble savages bestial pagans or faithful subjects Significantly these outside views deeply influenced how ninth century Saxons eventually came to think about themselves using Roman and Frankish texts to reinvent the Saxons as a noble and Christian people

Representations of Anne Frank in American Literature Rachael McLennan, 2016-08-05 This book explores portrayals of Anne Frank in American literature where she is often invoked if problematically as a means of encouraging readers to think widely about persecution genocide and victimisation often in relation to gender ethnicity and race It shows how literary representations of Anne Frank in America over the past 50 years reflect the continued dominance of the American dramatic adaptations of Frank s Diary in the 1950s and argues that authors feel compelled to engage with the problematic elements of these adaptations and their iconic power At the same time though literary representations of Frank are associated with the adaptations critics often assume that these texts unquestioningly perpetuate the problems with the adaptations This is not true This book examines how American authors represent Frank in order to negotiate difficult questions relating to representation of the Holocaust in America and in order to consider gender coming of age and forms of inequality in American culture in various historical moments and of course to consider the ways Frank herself is represented in America This book argues that the most compelling representations of Frank in American literature are alert to their own limitations and may caution against making Frank a universal symbol of goodness or setting up too easy identifications with her It will be of great interest to researchers and students of Frank the Holocaust in American fiction and culture gender studies life writing young adult fiction and ethics
