Kafka's Zoopoetics Naama Harel, 2020-05-04

Nonhuman figures are ubiquitous in the work of Franz Kafka from his early stories down to his very last one. Despite their prominence throughout his oeuvre, Kafka's animal representations have been considered first and foremost as mere allegories of intrahuman matters. In recent years, the allegorization of Kafka's animals has been poetically dismissed by Kafka's commentators and politically rejected by posthumanist scholars. Such critique, however, has yet to inspire either an overarching or an interdiscursive account. This book aims to fill this lacuna. Positing animal stories as a distinct and significant corpus within Kafka's entire poetics and closely examining them in dialogue with both literary and posthumanist analysis, Kafka's Zoopoetics critically revisits animality, interspecies relations, and the very human-animal contradistinction in the writings of Franz Kafka. Kafka's animals typically stand at the threshold between humanity and animality, fusing together human and nonhuman features. Among his liminal creatures, we find a human transformed into vermin in The Metamorphosis, an ape turned into a human being in A Report to an Academy, talking jackals in Jackals and Arabs, a philosophical dog in Researches of a Dog, a contemplative mole-like creature in The Burrow, and indiscernible beings in Josefine the Singer or the Mouse People. Depicting species boundaries as mutable and obscure, Kafka creates a fluid human-animal space which can be described as humanimal. The constitution of a humanimal space radically undermines the stark barrier between human and other animals dictated by the anthropocentric paradigm. Through denying animalistic elements in humans and disavowing the agency of nonhuman animals, excluding them from social life and neutralizing compassion for them, this barrier has been designed to regularize both humanity and animality. The contextualization of Kafka's animals within posthumanist theory engenders a post-anthropocentric arena which is simultaneously both imagined and very real.

Elsa Morante's Politics of Writing Stefania Lucamante, 2014-12-18

Elsa Morante's Politics of Writing is a collected volume of twenty-one essays written by Morante specialists and international scholars. Essays gather attention on four broad critical topics: namely, the relationship Morante entertained with the arts, cinema, theatre, and the visual arts; new critical approaches to her four novels; treatment of body and sexual politics; and Morante's prophetic voice as it emerges in both her literary works and her essayistic writings. Essays focus on Elsa Morante's strategies to address her wide disinterest and contempt for the Italian intellectual status quo of her time, regardless of its political side, while showing at once her own kind of ideological commitment. Further contributors tackle the ways in which Morante's writings shape classical oppositions such as engagement and enchantment with the world, sin and repentance, self-reflection and corporality, as well as how her engagement in the visual arts, theatre, and cinematic adaptations of her works garner further perspectives to her stories and characters. Her works, particularly the novels Menzogna e sortilegio (1948), La Storia (1974), and Romanzo History (1974), and more explicitly Aracoeli (1982), foreshadowed and advanced tenets and structures later affirmed by
