Frederick Engels November 1820 August 1895:

The Condition of the Working-Class in England In 1844 Frederick Engels, 2019-11-14 Friedrich Engels German sometimes anglicised Frederick Engels 28 November 1820 5 August 1895 was a German philosopher communist social scientist journalist and businessman His father was an owner of large textile factories in Salford England and in Barmen Prussia what is now in Wuppertal Germany Engels developed what is now known as Marxist theory together with Karl Marx and in 1845 he published The Condition of the Working Class in England based on personal observations and research in English cities In 1848 Engels co authored The Communist Manifesto with Marx and also authored and co authored primarily with Marx many other works Later Engels supported Marx financially allowing him to do research and write Das Kapital After Marx's death Engels edited the second and third volumes of Das Kapital Additionally Engels organised Marx's notes on the Theories of Surplus Value which he later published as the fourth volume of Capital In 1884 he published The Origin of the Family Private Property and the State on the basis of Marx's ethnographic research Engels died in London on 5 August 1895 at the age of 74 of laryngeal cancer and following cremation his ashes were scattered off Beachy Head near Eastbourne Friedrich Engels' Karl Marx Commemoration Friedrich Engels, 2025-03-15 Comrade Engels spoke as follows On March 14th at a quarter to three in the afternoon the greatest of living thinkers ceased to think He had been left alone for barely two minutes but when we entered his room we found that seated in his chair he had quietly gone to sleep forever The loss which his death has inflicted upon the fighting proletariat in Europe and America and upon the science of history is immeasurable The gaps that will be made by the death of this titan will soon be felt What Marx Contributed Just as Darwin discovered the law of evolution in organic nature so Marx discovered the law of evolution in human history He discovered the simple fact heretofore hidden beneath ideological excrescences that human beings must have food and drink clothing and shelter first of all before they can interest themselves in politics science art religion and the like This implies that the production of the immediately requisite material means of subsistence and therewith the extant economic developmental phase of a nation or an epoch constitute the foundation upon which the state institutions the legal outlooks the artistic and even the religious ideas of those concerned have been built up It implies that these latter must be explained out of the former whereas usually the former have been explained as issuing from the latter Nor was this all Marx likewise discovered the special law of motion proper to the contemporary capitalist method of production and to the bourgeois society which that method of production has brought into being The discovery of the surplus value suddenly threw light here whereas all previous investigators socialist critics no less than bourgeois economists had been groping in the dark Two such discoveries might suffice for one man's lifetime Fortunate is he who is privileged to make even one discovery so outstanding But in every field he studied the fields were many and the studies were exhaustive Marx made independent discoveries even in mathematics I have pictured the man of science But the man of science was still only half the man For Marx science was a motive force of history was a revolutionary force Whilst he took a pure delight in a purely theoretical discovery in one which had not and perhaps never would have a practical application he experienced a joy of a very different kind when he was concerned with a discovery which would forthwith exert a revolutionary influence on industry on historical evolution in general For instance he paid close attention to the advances of electrical science and in late years to the discoveries of Marcel Deprez But above all else Marx was a revolutionist To collaborate in one way or another in the overthrow of capitalist society and of the state institutions created by that society to collaborate in the freeing of the modern proletariat which he was the first to inspire with a consciousness of its needs with a knowledge of the conditions requisite for its emancipation this was his true mission in life Fighting was his natural element Few men ever fought with so much passion tenacity and success His work on the Rheinische Zeitung in 1843 on the Parisian Vorwaerts in 1844 on the Deutsche Br ssler Zeitung in 1847 on the Neue Rheinische Zeitung in 1848 and 1849 on the New York Tribune from 1852 to 1861 a great number of pamphlets multifarious activities in Paris Brussels and London finally as crown of his labours the foundation of the International Workingmen s Association there you have his record Had Marx done nothing but found the International that was an achievement of which he might well have been proud Because he was an active revolutionist Marx was the best hated and most calumniated man of his time He was shown the door by various governments republican as well as absolute Bourgeois ultra democrat as well as conservative vied with one another in spreading libels about him He brushed these aside like cobwebs ignored them only troubled to answer them when he positively had to Yet he has gone down to his death honoured loved and mourned by millions of revolutionary workers all over the world in Europe and Asia as far eastward as the Siberian mines and in America as far westward as California I can boldly assert that while he may still have many adversaries he has now hardly one personal enemy His name and work will live on through the centuries

The Principles of Communism Friedrich Engels,1847-11-23 In 1847 Engels wrote two draft programmes for the Communist League in the form of a catechism one in June and the other in October At the June 1847 Congress of the League of the Just which was also the founding conference of the Communist League it was decided to issue a draft confession of faith to be submitted for discussion to the sections of the League The document which has now come to light is almost certainly this draft Comparison of the two documents shows that Principles of Communism is a revised edition of this earlier draft In Principles of Communism Engels left three questions unanswered in two cases with the notation unchanged bleibt this clearly refers to the answers provided in the earlier draft The new draft for the programme was worked out by Engels on the instructions of the leading body of the Paris circle of the Communist League The instructions were decided on after Engles sharp criticism at the committee meeting on October 22 1847 of the draft programme drawn up by the true socialist Moses Hess which was then rejected

Saigon at the Turn of the Millennium Klaus H. Carl, 2025-06-24 Saigon is the city known for the unexplainable languidness that possessed the French and American Europeans that lived in Vietnam At night in front of a drink the memories of flowery young girls in their traditional costumes surrounded by the thick smells of the night the feverish sounds of the city's motion piercing through the humid heat of the Asian nights hauntingly reappear A city of contrasts Saigon has lived through dramatic changes the turbulence of the South for which it was renowned was replaced by the terrible coldness of the North and the joyfulness of the city was imposed a rigid doctrine Saigon became Ho Chi Minh and a new city was created But although appearances may change people remain the same So what came of these changes A few red flags and a number of Japanese motorbikes
