The Art and Science of Making the New Man in Early 20th-Century

Russia Yvonne Howell, Nikolai Kremmentsov, 2021-12-02 The idea that morally mentally and physically superior new men might replace the currently existing mankind has periodically seized the imagination of intellectuals leaders and reformers throughout history This volume offers a multidisciplinary investigation into how the new man was made in Russia and the early Soviet Union in the first third of the 20th century The traditional narrative of the Soviet new man as a creature forged by propaganda is challenged by the strikingly new and varied case studies presented here The book focuses on the interplay between the rapidly developing experimental life sciences such as biology medicine and psychology and countless cultural products ranging from film and fiction dolls and museum exhibits to pedagogical projects sculptures and exemplary agricultural fairs With contributions from scholars based in the United States Canada the UK Germany and Russia the picture that emerges is emphatically more complex contradictory and suggestive of strong parallels with other new man visions in Europe and elsewhere In contrast to previous interpretations that focused largely on the apparent disconnect between utopian new man rhetoric and the harsh realities of everyday life in the Soviet Union this volume brings to light the surprising historical trajectories of new man visions their often obscure origins acclaimed and forgotten champions unexpected and complicated results and mutual interrelations In short the volume is a timely examination of a recurring theme in modern history when dramatic advancements in science and technology conjoin with anxieties about the future to fuel dreams of a new and improved mankind

Irishness and Womanhood in Nineteenth-Century British Writing Professor

Thomas Tracy, 2013-04-28 In The Wild Irish Girl the powerful Irish heroine's marriage to a heroic Englishman symbolizes the Anglo Irish novelist Lady Morgan's reimagining of the relationship between Ireland and Britain and between men and women Using this most influential of pro union novels as his point of departure Thomas J Tracy argues that nineteenth century debates over what constitutes British national identity often revolved around representations of Irishness especially Irish womanhood He maps out the genealogy of this development from Edgeworth's Castle Rackrent through Trollope's Irish novels focusing on the pivotal period from 1806 through the 1870s Tracy's model enables him to elaborate the ways in which gender ideals are specifically contested in fiction the discourses of political debate and social reform and the popular press for the purpose of defining not only the place of the Irish in the union with Great Britain but the nature of Britishness itself
