

Flor Garduño: Inner Light
Still Lives and Nudes

Photographs by Flor Garduño
Introduction by Verónica Volkow

"The nude and the flower are instantaneous epiphanies, feasts of an excessive truth, of softness and freedom, so often hand in hand. Both the flower on the stem and the lightning of skin that is the nude break into reality as exotically as an angel."

— Verónica Volkow, from the Introduction

Sensual female nudes and exquisite still lifes form this collection of symbolic work by acclaimed Mexican photographer Flor Garduño. In contrast to her first three books, which were essentially diaries of her travels through the Americas, Flor Garduño: Inner Light is a diary of her personal, interior landscape. The images—still lifes, nudes, and portraits of her daughter Azul—were taken in and around her homes in Mexico and Switzerland. Using the quiet elegance of natural light, she has created a stunning series of photographs that, beautifully reproduced here in tritone, bring a magical lyricism to black-and-white photography.

The introduction by Verónica Volkow, a highly respected Mexican poet, explores the metaphorical qualities of Garduño's images and the sensuality inherent to both the flower and the nude.
