man To Aleo Billy represents all that is wrong with today's FBI. They are there to observe the Tonpoweas, a Native American tribe involved in a land dispute with the federal government. The FBI agents pose as father and son, with Leo claiming that he came out west for health reasons. Billy and Leo meet Chief Stillwater, the leader of the Tonpoweas. They attend a Native American ceremony with him during which Leo has visions from his past. He also receives a message from Stillwater about a mission. The FBI agent cannot grasp his meaning until the devastating drought the area is experiencing causes a lake near the disputed territory to evaporate. As a result, the Spanish mission that has been submerged since the man-made lake was created is exposed. Leo and Billy discover there is something with far-reaching political and economic implications in the mission. Aleo also encounters the Russian spy who killed his partner 30 years earlier. The two agents then learn that the FBI had an ulterior motive for sending them to Taurus. To further complicate matters, Agent Aleo falls in love with a local woman named Consuella Lopez. These circumstances combine to provide a new purpose in life for Leo Aleo.

These wide-ranging accounts span the Americas, Britain, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia, and the Pacific over a period of more than two centuries. Showing fascinating connections between people, places, and historical eras, they unfold against the backdrop of events and social movements of global significance that have influenced the world in which we live today. Many of the authors document and celebrate lives that have been lost, hidden, or neglected. They are reconstituted from the archives, restored through testimony and reimagined through art. The effects of colonialism, war, and conflict on individual lives can be seen throughout the book, alongside themes of transnational connection, displacement, and exile; migration of individuals, families, and peoples; and recovery and recuperation through memory and writing, creativity, and performance.
