Frank Lloyd Wright on Architecture, Nature, and the Human Spirit Frank Lloyd Wright, 2011 The architect of the Guggenheim Museum Fallingwater the Robie House and the Johnson Wax Administration Building Frank Lloyd Wright once said You do not learn by way of your successes No one does Just as he flouted convention in a series of astonishing buildings so did Wright go against the grain in his career as a writer and lecturer On subjects as diverse as McCarthyism he called the senator from Wisconsin a political pervert and cement blocks he produced countless lectures and articles a half dozen books and a remarkable series of informal talks delivered to his apprentices on Sunday mornings Bruce Brooks Pfeiffer the author of several collections of Wright's writings and Director of Archives for the Frank Lloyd Wright Foundation has culled more than two hundred quotations from a wide range of sources drawing heavily on transcripts of the Sunday talks. The themes to which Wright returned most often serve as the books' sections: the value of architecture takes precedence but topics such as government and the getting of wisdom elicited memorable and pungent comments. Wright was brash, outspoken, funny, irreverent, and unafraid of the most sweeping generalizations. In Frank Lloyd Wright on Architecture: Nature and the Human Spirit, all those qualities shine but so do the architect's religious faith, his unswerving commitment to hard work, and a firm moral scheme that connected the two.

Budding architects will delve into architectural and design concepts while having fun through 21 hands-on projects such as creating an edible model of Fallingwater, making a miniature Japanese kite, reading an architectural plan, and much more.
