The Fratricidal Global Village Elliott White, 2001-05-30 As Elliott White shows we live increasingly within a global village but one that remains stubbornly fragmentized It is split along ethnic racial and linguistic lines as well as by socioeconomic inequalities Even within the same ethnic group or socioeconomic stratum fissures appear that can be deep and are not easily remedied This fragmented global village is underlaid by a human genetic diversity a variability that plays itself out in the formation of clusters of like minded individuals These are people who share similar interests or aptitudes be they scientific artistic or athletic all at least to some degree genetically influenced People who share similar interests and ends and who come together in a common endeavor reinforce the tendencies that bring them together in the first place This resulting synergy or hypertrophy also intensifies the distinctive features of the group as a whole These features therefore will tend to be exaggerated in contrast to those of other groups or to some statistical norm of the larger population Hence a certain level of tension and division inheres and persists within the larger social world The explication of these centrifugal tendencies is at the core of White s analysis and will be of considerable interest to political social and psychological theorists involved in issues of ethnic violence and social conflict

The Evolutionary Neuroethology of Paul MacLean Gerald A. Cory Jr., Russell Gardner Jr., 2002-12-30 In the mid 20th century integrative efforts began concerning the brain and its social and humanistic functions These efforts were led by Paul D MacLean s integrative research and thought As the century ended however such efforts were lost in the surge of new effort in brain and genome research Nobel Prizes were awarded on biochemical and cellular findings relevant to psychiatry Findings on these levels seemed to provide ultimate answers By contrast Cory Gardner and their contributors provide a more comprehensive view by extending MacLean s findings and integrative theory Supported by new findings and extended by critical analyses of current work the collection provides foundations for more integrative efforts that the editors and contributors believe will prevail increasingly in coming decades. Looked at from another vantage point, therapeutic, social, economic, and political sciences have proceeded without operating theories congruent with or based on brain functions. Across species, perspectives have been lacking. This collection redresses this problem and leads the way toward more comprehensive 21st century research on the one hand and practical applications on the other. Multiple approaches extend from modeling efforts to across species comparisons to the basic science of psychiatry to theoretical explanations of political and economic systems. But most important, these essays abolish the Berlin wall that currently separates the brain from its social functions. A major guide for scholars, students, and researchers involved in the neurobehavioral sciences for psychologists, psychiatrists, and others involved with human clinical sciences and for social scientists concerned with the impact of the nervous system and its function.

IQ and the Wealth of Nations Richard Lynn, Tatu Vanhanen, 2002-02-28. Lynn and Vanhanen test the hypothesis on the causal relationship between the average national intelligence IQ and the gap between rich and poor countries by empirical evidence. Based on an extensive survey of national IQ tests, the results of their work challenge the previous theories of economic development and provide a new basis to evaluate the prospects of economic development throughout the world. They begin by reviewing and evaluating some major previous theories. The concept of intelligence is then described and intelligence quotient IQ introduced. Next, they show that intelligence is a significant determinant of earnings within nations and they connect intelligence with various economic and social phenomena. The sociology of intelligence at the level of sub-populations in nations is examined and the independent national IQ and dependent various measures of per capita income and economic growth rates variables are defined and described. They then provide empirical analyses starting from the 81 countries for which direct evidence of national IQs is available; the analysis is then extended to the world group of 185 countries. The hypothesis is tested by the methods of correlation and regression analyses. The results of statistical analyses support the hypothesis strongly. The results of the analyses and various means to reduce the gap between rich and poor countries are discussed. A provocative analysis that all scholars, students, and researchers involved with economic development need to confront.
