century Other artists showcased in this volume are John James Audubon George Caleb Bingham Alfred E Mathews and finally Frederic Remington who famously sought to capture the last glimmers of the old frontier A common thread throughout Western Art Western History is the important role that technology especially the development of lithography played in the dissemination of images As the author emphasizes many works by western artists are valuable not only as illustrations but as scientific documents imbued with cultural meaning By placing works of western art within these broader contexts Tyler enhances our understanding of their history and significance

Frederic Remington Margaret Keenan, Martin Howard, 2008-05 Frederic Remington was born on October 4 1861 in Canton New York Related to painter George Catlin and sculptor Earl W Bascom he attended the art school at Yale University but dropped out when his father died and soon went west to Kansas City He married Eva Caten in 1884 and after trying the frontier life soon moved to Brooklyn He began to submit illustrations sketches and other works for publication with the western theme Much of his early work appeared in Collier's and Harper's It was during this time that Remington's art career bloomed and he developed into a prolific artist In his sketches he portrayed the subject matter that most captivated his interests horses military and the western frontier His technical ability to reproduce the physical beauty of the Western landscape made him a sought after illustrator but it was his insight into the heroic nature of American settlers that made him great Unlike Charlie Russell who lived the life of a wrangler Remington spent little time out west visiting the region briefly several months at a time when necessary But he captured the scenes in a way that fueled the eastern fantasy of the Wild West in a way that no one else did He was just in time to show the west before the wilder elements were subdued and the inroads of civilization that ended the frontier lifestyle This frisson of deadly excitement was what gave Remington his appeal Remington briefly interrupted his work with western themes in 1898 when he went to Cuba as a war correspondent and illustrator during the Spanish Civil War He was deeply disillusioned by the realities of war finding it not heroic but appalling Retiring to an island retreat on the St Lawrence River he continued to perfect his craft creating much of his most famous work Remington of course was not just a painter In the mid 1890s he had turned his talent to sculpture and quickly mastered the medium In bronzes such as The Bronco Buster and The Cheyenne he gave Frederic Remington a new dimension to his subjects charging them with such detail movement and energy they seemed ready to leap to life In 1908 Remington made his last trip west and died after an emergency appendectomy led to peritonitis His extreme obesity possibly led to his abdominal problems Over the course of his career Frederic Remington produced more than 3000 drawings and paintings and 22 bronze sculptures Dramatic subjects striking realism powerful images Remington's art fired the American imagination and his vision of the western character independent individual and heroic was the way Americans wanted to see themselves Margaret Keenan shows off Remington's talents in this large format tribute to the artist with over 200 of his works

Discovered Lands, Invented Pasts Jules David Prown, Buffalo Bill Historical Center, William Cronon, Yale University. Art Gallery, Nancy K. Branding the American West Marian Wardle, Sarah E. Boehme, 2016-02-17 Artists and filmmakers in the early twentieth century reshaped our vision of the American West In particular the Taos Society of Artists and the California based artist Maynard Dixon departed from the legendary depiction of the Wild West and fostered new images or brands for western art This volume illustrated with more than 150 images examines select paintings and films to demonstrate how these artists both enhanced and contradicted

earlier representations of the West Prior to this period American art tended to portray the West as a wild frontier with untamed lands and peoples Renowned artists such as Henry Farny and Frederic Remington set their work in the past invoking an environment immersed in conflict and violence This trademark perspective began to change however when artists enamored with the Southwest stamped a new imprint on their paintings The contributors to this volume illuminate the complex ways in which early twentieth century artists as well as filmmakers evoked a southwestern environment not just suspended in time but also permanent rather than transient Yet as the authors also reveal these artists were not entirely immune to the siren call of the vanishing West and their portrayal of peaceful yet exotic Native Americans was an expansion rather than a dismissal of earlier tropes Both brands cast a romantic spell on the West and both have been seared into public consciousness Branding the American West is published in association with the Brigham Young University Museum of Art Provo Utah and the Stark Museum of Art Orange Texas

The New American West in Literature and the Arts Amaia Ibarraran-Bigalondo, 2020-05-12 The story of the American West is that of a journey It is the story of a movement of a geographical and human transition of the delineation of a route that would soon become a rooted myth The story of the American West has similarly journeyed across boundaries in a two way movement sometimes feeding the idea of that myth sometimes challenging it This collection of essays relates to the notion of the traveling essence of the myth of the American West from different geographical and disciplinary standpoints The volume originates in Europe in Spain where the myth traveled was received assimilated and re presented It intends to travel back to the West in a two way cross cultural journey which will hopefully contribute to the delineation of the New always self renewing American West It includes the work of authors of both sides of the Atlantic ocean who propose a cross cultural transdisciplinary dialogue upon the idea the geography and the representation of the American West
