Hartshorne Process Philosophy And Theology:

Hartshorne, Process Philosophy, and Theology Robert Kane, Stephen H. Phillips, 1989-07-03 This book provides an introduction to Hartshorne's contributions to contemporary philosophy and theology. It also covers some of the current controversies in philosophy and theology that Hartshorne's contributions have generated. The opening chapter is a lucid and penetrating introduction to Hartshorne's thought. Some of the following chapters break new ground on issues that have concerned Hartshorne throughout his career: the nature and methods of metaphysics; the existence and nature of God; and the place of religion and metaphysics in the modern world. Many chapters survey the current state of controversies on those topics. Other chapters relate Hartshorne's work to other traditions and to trends in contemporary philosophy: to postmodernism; classical Western theism; Indian philosophy; analytical philosophy; and American pragmatism.

Whitehead's View of Reality W. Creighton Peden, 2010-03-08 Whitehead's View of Reality developed from conversations between the authors about the need for a work that would be of assistance to students ready to undertake a study of Alfred North Whitehead's Process and Reality. The volume begins with a biographical sketch of Whitehead's life in order that one can understand the various stages in his professional development as well as the radically changing times in which his thought progressed. It is hoped that the Whiteheads' encounter with Gertrude Stein will provide the student with a stronger feeling of Whitehead as a person. Charles Hartshorne undertook the task of placing Whitehead within a historical context. The context in which Whitehead is presented is that of being one of the few great philosophers in Western culture who engaged in speculative or metaphysical philosophy. The influence of Plato and Leibniz is noted as well as Hartshorne's personal preference for Peirce and Bergson in relation to Whitehead's speculative philosophy. Whitehead agreed with all these great metaphysicians that the explanation of matter was to be sought in mind, not that of mind in matter. Hume, Kant, Russell, and William James are noted as major non-speculative thinkers whose thought received careful consideration by Whitehead. Hume, the Buddhists, and Whitehead agreed that strictly speaking, a so-called substance is a new concrete reality each moment. It is Hartshorne's judgment that Whitehead does the best job of retaining aspects of truth in our commonsense notions of individual things and persons. Hartshorne also discusses the paradoxes that arise as we search for our self-identity. He contends that we can escape from these paradoxes if we accept Whitehead's contention that concrete actualities are not in the last analysis enduring changing substances but successive momentary stages of what are called substances or individuals. This should lead us to understand that we have an asymmetrical identity with the successive momentary stages of our relations. Hartshorne also notes that the basic concepts developed by Whitehead are based on his understanding that actual entities are the real subjects that experience, perceive, remember, and think. Thus the basic form of experience is perception. Hartshorne further suggests that perhaps Whitehead is the first philosopher to view perception which includes memory as experience of the past rather than of the present. In discussing Whitehead's philosophical theology, Hartshorne indicates that his view of God was an alternative to the standard metaphysical conception of deity which had prevailed since Aristotle. The problem of divine knowledge had been at the core of the problems with classical theism. The issue was whether everything I do is decided at my coming to exist. If so then we are nothing but a clog in the cosmic machinery. Hartshorne suggests that the first theologian to view this issue sharply was Fausto Socinus who took the idea of human decision making seriously and rejected the notion that divine omnipotence determines human decisions. He suggested among others had something in common with the Socinians. Hartshorne concludes his remarks focusing on unresolved problems in Whitehead's theism. Creighton Peden's responsibility is to present an exposition of Whitehead's philosophy with primary attention at first given to his basic terms as well as to the foundation principles and structure of his method. Analysis is then given his metaphysical scheme from the perspective of his method. The focus of attention then shifts to Whitehead's doctrine of God and his view of religion. Peden concludes with a comparative evaluation of Whitehead's position with traditional Christian thought. Consideration is given to three general problems raised by traditional Christians. The first point of contention is that Whitehead's God is not the infinite and eternal God of the Universe but is rather a limited God within the Universe. In the second case traditional Christian theology would assert that Whitehead's God does not actually save because he does not save the individual. The third problem would hold that Whitehead's God is not the or a personal God.

God in Process Thought S. Sia, 2012-12-06 One of the controversial issues which have recently come into prominence among philosophers and theologians is how one should understand the term I God. It seems that despite the fact that a certain idea of God is assumed by not most people there is a degree of disagreement over the meaning many if of the term God is generally taken to refer to a supreme Being the Creator who is perfect and self-existent holy personal and loving. This understanding of God corresponds to what many have either been brought up to believe in or have come to accept as the meaning of this word. Nevertheless theists appear to be defending a particular idea of God and to be accusing atheists of attacking another one which does not tie in with the theistic interpretation. Cardinal Maximus IV for instance is quoted as saying 'The God the atheists don't believe in is a God I don't believe in either.' 2 On the other hand atheists have been challenging believers to explain clearly what they mean by God because these critics cannot see how that idea can have any acceptable meaning. Furthermore theists themselves seem to be divided over the issue. H. P. Owen in his book Concepts of Deity shows quite convincingly that there is a bewildering variety of concepts of God among theists. One has only to ask around for confirmation of this observation. Omnipotence and other Theological Mistakes Charles Hartshorne, 2010-03-29 This book presents Hartshorne's philosophical theology briefly simply and vividly. Throughout the centuries some of the world's most brilliant philosophers and theologians have held and perpetuated six beliefs that give the word God a meaning untrue to its import in sacred writings or in active religious devotion. God is absolutely perfect and therefore unchangeable 2 omnipotence 3 omniscience 4 although always in an eminent way Inasmuch as he has elaborated this concept in close dialogue with classical theism he also refers to it as neo classical Because of the emphasis he places on the reality of change and becoming in his metaphysics which regards God as the chief exemplification of metaphysical principles the term 6 process has likewise been used to describe his notion of God The Zero Fallacy and Other Essays in Neoclassical Philosophy Charles Hartshorne,1997
