Hauling By Hand The Life Times Of A Maine Island:

Hauling by Hand Dean Lawrence Lunt,1999 Hauling by Hand Dean Lunt,2022-10-25 Hauling by Hand tells the remarkable story of Frenchboro Long Island which sits eight miles off the coast making it one of the state's most remote outposts. It is one of only 14 Maine islands still supporting a year-round community while only a century ago there were some 300 such communities. The island's roots were set in the 1820s by the Lunt family and a small band of pioneers who together carved an island community from the spruce and granite shores. Fueled by the shipping and fishing industries, Long Island evolved from outpost to important offshore port before economic changes transformed the island into a hardscrabble turn-of-the-century fishing village where nearly 200 residents scratched a living from depleted fishing stocks and rocky soil. Today the town of Frenchboro has a population of nearly 50 people but it has neither a general store nor tourist hotel nor daily ferry service. Instead there is a village, a soul, and a way of life. Boatbuilding on Mount Desert Island Laurie

Schreiber,2016-05-25 Mount Desert Island possesses a rich and diverse history of boatbuilding. Chester Clement was the first of the lobster-yacht builders and Bunker and Ellis elevated the concept. Henry Hinckley started on an old boat repair wharf and built a world-class brand. Members of the Rich family produced everything from gleaming yachts to rugged workboats while Sim Davis and Bink Sargent were considered the experts for big draggers. Author Laurie Schreiber highlights the histories of some of the major players in Mount Desert Island's boatbuilding community. Moon Maine Hilary Nangle,2017-07-18 Discover Maine with Moon Travel Guides. Exploring Atlantic Transitions Peter Edward Pope, Shannon Lewis-Simpson, 2013. Current approaches to the archaeological understanding of permanence and transience in the early modern period. Can we approach European expansion to the Americas and elsewhere without colonial triumphalism? A research strategy which automatically treats early establishments overseas as embryonic colonies produces predictable results in retrospect; some were, some were not. The approach reflected in the essays collected here does not exclude an interest in colonialism as an enduring practice, but the focus of the volume is population mobility and stability. Post-medieval archaeology has much to contribute to our understanding of the gradual drift of ordinary people, the cast of thousands, anonymous or almost forgotten, behind the famous names of history. The main concern of the articles here is the post-medieval expansion of the English-speaking world to North America, particularly Newfoundland and the Chesapeake, but the volume includes perspectives on Ireland and New France also. While most attend to the movement of Europeans, interactions with Native peoples, using the Labrador Inuit as a case study, are not neglected. PETER E. POPE was University Research Professor and former Head of the Department of Archaeology at Memorial University in St. John's, Newfoundland. SHANNON LEWIS-SIMPSON researches aspects of cultural identity and interaction in the Viking Age North Atlantic. She lectures part-time at Memorial University.
