Raised in a secluded island mansion deep in the woods and kept isolated by her true-crime-obsessed parents, she spent the last several years living on her own but unable to move beyond her past, especially the disappearance of her twin brother, Andy, when they were sixteen. But the rest of the Lighthouse family arrives for the memorial, a gruesome discovery is made: buried in the reserved plot is another body. Andy's skull split open with an ax. Each member of the family handles the revelation in unusual ways. Her brother, Charlie, pours his energy into creating a family memorial museum, highlighting their research into the lives of famous murder victims; her sister, Tate, forges ahead with her popular dioramas portraying crime scenes, and their mother affects a cheerfully domestic facade, becoming unrecognizable as the woman who performed murder reenactments for her children. belonging loss and recovery Rubenstein argues that nostalgia functions narratively as a strategy for interrogating not only notions of home homesickness and homeland but also cultural historical dislocation aging and moral responsibility These narratives re frame a significant locus of concern in contemporary female experience personal and or cultural displacement and longing for home are ultimately transmuted imaginatively at least by a restorative vision that enables healing and emotional repair
