the light of these concerns about freedom of speech Eli Noam provides a comprehensive survey of media concentration in America covering everything from the early media empire of Benjamin Franklin to the modern day cellular phone industry

The Postwar Decline of American Newspapers, 1945-1965 David R. Davies, 2006-07-30 On the surface the American newspaper industry appears to have changed little from 1945 to 1965 remaining both healthy and prosperous The number of newspapers in 1965 was about the same as in 1945 while during the twenty year period advertising revenues increased substantially despite new competition from television Just as in 1945 the vast majority of newspapers went to press with improved but old fashioned letterpress methods in 1965 And newspaper reporters still professed a strong if now somewhat shaken faith in the federal government at the end of the twenty years But the surface appearance of both stability and profitability obscured profound change In the two decades after World War II the business of newspaper publishing changed significantly in myriad ways By 1965 editors and publishers had recognized the extent of these changes and were beginning to adjust Each of the changes was significant of its own accord and the range of challenges throughout the period combined to transform newspapers and the nation they served by 1965 This transformation was evident to varying degrees in newspapers content their production methods their economic position within the overall media marketplace and their relationship with government Newspapers some more than others made strides to keep up with and overcome some of these challenges But in each of these areas newspapers as a group were slow to respond to the problems facing journalism

Bridges, 2006 Technology in the 21st century has redesigned most editorial jobs and extended the potential reach of any publication no matter how small In effect not only the individual business models but also the overall industry competitive model has changed No longer confined to serving a physically defined environment individual newspapers can set their own goals both for news distribution and for advertising reach without concern for physical restrictions And the continual sales of newspaper properties result in mergers increased clustering and other types of group alliances The newspaper industry is also affected competitively by employee recruitment and retention the non daily market other news related media and non news carriers of advertising The industry related technology has in effect exploded reaching every news medium in some way Within the framework of the exploding technological environment the country s economy and changing demographics have created increased challenges for an industry so dependent on advertising revenue and reader reach This volume explores the competitive issues as they relate to the industry at this time Journalism Jo A.

Editorial and Opinion Steven M. Hallock, 2006-11-30 In 1930 there were 288 competitive major newspaper markets in the United States Today there are fewer than 30 The diminishing diversity of opinion and voices in newspapers editorials is taking place even as technological advances seemingly provide more sources of the same information As Hallock shows the concentration of media ownership in fewer and fewer hands allows those individuals and entities an inordinate amount of influence In this intriguing book he examines 18 newspaper markets to show us exactly how and where this troubling trend is occurring what it means for the political landscape and ultimately how it can affect us all Newspaper editorials say a lot about the society in which we live They are not just an indication and reflection of the issues of the day and of which way the political wind is blowing They are also a part of the political climate that sets the agenda for politicians and helps them discern which are the hot button issues and which side people are on Journalists and politicians enjoy a level of symbiosis in their relationships they influence each other indirectly It therefore follows that when fewer ideas and a narrower range of opinions are expressed in the nation's newspapers there is a real danger that our thinking can become more simplistic as well
