Levstik,Cynthia A. Tyson,2010-04-15 This Handbook outlines the current state of research in social studies education a complex dynamic challenging field with competing perspectives about appropriate goals and on going conflict over the content of the curriculum Equally important it encourages new research in order to advance the field and foster civic competence long maintained by advocates for the social studies as a fundamental goal In considering how to organize the Handbook the editors searched out definitions of social studies statements of purpose and themes that linked or divided theory research and practices and established criteria for topics to include Each chapter meets one or more of these criteria research activity since the last Handbook that warrants a new analysis topics representing a major emphasis in the NCSS standards and topics reflecting an emerging or reemerging field within the social studies The volume is organized around seven themes Change and Continuity in Social Studies Civic Competence in Pluralist Democracies Social Justice and the Social Studies Assessment and Accountability Teaching and Learning in the Disciplines Information Ecologies Technology in the Social Studies Teacher Preparation and Development The Handbook of Research in Social Studies is a must have resource for all beginning and experienced researchers in the field

Improving Service-Learning Practice Susan Root, Jane Callahan, Shelley H. Billig, 2005-11-01 This fifth book in the Advances in Service Learning Research series continues to expand the discussion of service learning research and practice The chapters were selected through a refereed blind review process from papers presented at the 4th Annual International K H Service Learning Research Conference held October 2004 in Greenville South Carolina The chapters focus on topics that address a variety of issues in higher education and teacher education and are organized into four sections

Coming of Political Age Rebecca M. Callahan, Chandra Muller, 2013-03-07 As one of the fastest growing segments of the American population the children of immigrants are poised to reshape the country's political future The massive rallies for immigration rights in 2006 and the recent push for the DREAM Act both heavily supported by immigrant youth signal the growing political potential of this crucial group While many studies have explored the political participation of immigrant adults we know comparatively little about what influences civic participation among the children of immigrants Coming of Political Age persuasively argues that schools play a central role in integrating immigrant youth into the political system The volume shows that the choices we make now in our educational system will have major consequences for the country's civic health as the children of immigrants grow and mature as citizens Coming of Political Age draws from an impressive range of data including two large surveys of adolescents in high schools and interviews with teachers and students to provide an insightful analysis of trends in youth participation in politics Although the children of both immigrant and native born parents register and vote at similar rates the factors associated with this likelihood are very different While parental educational levels largely explain voting behavior among children of native born parents this volume demonstrates that immigrant children's own education in particular their exposure to social studies strongly predicts their future political participation Learning more about civic society and putting effort into these classes may encourage an interest in politics suggesting that the high school civics curriculum remains highly relevant in an increasingly disconnected society

Interestingly although their schooling predicts whether children of immigrants will vote how they identify politically depends more on family and community influences As budget cuts force school administrators to realign academic priorities this volume argues that any cutback to social science programs may effectively curtail the political and civic engagement of the next generation of voters While much of the literature on immigrant assimilation focuses on family and community Coming of Political Age argues that schools and social science courses in particular may be central to preparing the leaders of tomorrow The insights and conclusions presented in this volume are essential to understand how we can encourage more participation in civic action and improve the functioning of our political system The Public Schools Susan Fuhrman, Marvin

Elareshi,2014-09-18 This book aims to understand the relationship between Libyan students consumption of satellite TV news services and their perceptions of news issues This involves examining students news consumption habits and their motives for the choices they make In the face of competition from well resourced broadcasters such as Al Jazeera TV what can Libyan news services do to retain audience interest and loyalty Do they need to do anything different Is there room for local and international news in Libya The book also explores whether Al Jazeera and Al Arabiya have affected students use of local TV news services Have local channels been displaced by newer channels and is the use of different channels driven by the same or different news consumption motives The book reveals that there are distinct variations in news consumption defined in part by news platform TV versus radio versus newspaper and in part by type of news providers local versus international TV Students seek out news sources they believe to be credible and that local TV news provision does not reach the students standards of credibility In content there may be room in the evolving news landscape for local TV services to occupy a niche market that still has value for the Libyan public To retain this market however quality of delivery will also be crucial IJER

Lin,2023-08-29 Winner 2024 Robert E Park Book Award Section on Community and Urban Sociology American Sociological Association Environmental organizing in Beijing emerged in an unlikely place in the 2000s new gated residential communities After rapid population growth and housing construction led to a ballooning trash problem and overflowing landfills many first time homeowners found their new neighborhoods facing an unappetizing prospect waste incinerator projects slated for their backyards Delving into the online and offline conversations of communities affected by the proposed incinerators A Spark in the Smokestacks demonstrates how a rising middle class acquires the capacity for organizing in an authoritarian context Jean Yen chun Lin examines how urban residents create civic life through everyday associational activities learning to defend property rights fostering participation and mobilizing to address housing related grievances She shows that homeowners cultivated petitioning skills informational networks and community leadership which they would later deploy against incinerator projects To interact with government agencies they developed citizen science based tactics a middle class alternative to disruptive protests Homeowners drew on their professional connections expertise and fundraising capabilities to produce reports that boosted their legitimacy in city level dialogue Although only one of the three incinerator projects Lin follows was ultimately canceled some communities established durable organizations that went on to tackle other environmental problems Drawing on interviews participant observation and ethnography A Spark in the Smokestacks casts urban Chinese communities as schools of democracy in which residents learn civic skills and build capacity for collective organizing Through compelling case studies of local activism this book sheds new light on the formation of civil society and social movements more broadly
