students to develop their full potential In an effort to draw from the experiences of two other major societies the book also looks at the education systems in Europe and Japan It examines Europe s Bologna Process identifying its advantages and shortcomings as an attempt at standardization It then travels to Japan a country that represents the epitome in terms of standardization It discusses the damage that this over emphasis on standardization has done to Japanese society and especially to the Japanese education system The authors then present an exciting new paradigm of teaching that incorporates computer technology into education This new paradigm allows students to use computer programs to progress at their own rate in subjects they enjoy and excel at while concurrently ensuring that they still get the basics they need to function successfully in society The book details the key logistics of the new paradigm including the way classes are run the way subjects are taught and the way students are graded

Studio Teaching in Higher Education Elizabeth Boling, Richard A. Schwier, Colin M. Gray, Kennon M. Smith, Katy Campbell, 2016-06-10 Well established in some fields and still emerging in others the studio approach to design education is an increasingly attractive mode of teaching and learning though its variety of definitions and its high demands can make this pedagogical form somewhat daunting Studio Teaching in Higher Education provides narrative examples of studio education written by instructors who have engaged in it both within and outside the instructional design field These multidisciplinary design cases are enriched by the book's coverage of the studio concept in design education heterogeneity of studio commonalities in practice and existing and emergent concerns about studio pedagogy Prefaced by notes on how the design cases were curated and key perspectives from which the reader might view them Studio Teaching in Higher Education is a supportive exploratory resource for those considering or actively adapting a studio mode of teaching and learning to their own disciplines
