Who Controls Teachers' Work? Richard M. Ingersoll, 2009-07-01 Schools are places of learning but they are also workplaces and teachers are employees As such are teachers more akin to professionals or to factory workers in the amount of control they have over their work And what difference does it make Drawing on large national surveys as well as wide ranging interviews with high school teachers and administrators Richard Ingersoll reveals the shortcomings in the two opposing viewpoints that dominate thought on this subject that schools are too decentralized and lack adequate control and accountability and that schools are too centralized giving teachers too little autonomy Both views he shows overlook one of the most important parts of teachers work schools are not simply organizations engineered to deliver academic instruction to students as measured by test scores schools and teachers also play a large part in the social and behavioral development of our children As a result both views overlook the power of implicit social controls in schools that are virtually invisible to outsiders but keenly felt by insiders Given these blind spots this book demonstrates that reforms from either camp begin with inaccurate premises about how schools work and so are bound not only to fail but to exacerbate the problems they propose to solve Resources in Education ,2000-10

Out-of-Field Teaching Practices Anna Elizabeth du Plessis,2017-04-17 Society perceives the role of school leaders as fixers Yet the author poses some confronting questions can they fix or manage the out of field phenomenon without having in depth knowledge and understanding Can educators teach the next generation of teachers and school leaders without appreciating the realities of the workplace Can policymakers develop effective policies without a deeper understanding of the workforce issues that influence quality education beyond the obvious issues Many dilemmas face today s teaching workforce and workplaces The book takes the reader on a journey as experienced in real life by teachers and school leaders It aims an extreme global focus on the quality of education and on governments achievements in providing opportunities to prepare the next generation of students for their future The author s assessment exposes more concerns than assurances Anna du Plessis academic career includes more than 25 years of classroom experience across three countries Her journey in leadership positions started during her fourth year of teaching Her compassion for teachers school leaders and students stimulated a search for a deeper understanding of the lifeworld and challenges facing educational practitioners The objective in this book is to share information that will improve education systems strategies decisions policies and actions Readers of this book might be parents student teachers prospective school leaders educational directors policymakers or teacher educators Only knowing and understanding can inform well directed decisions
