understanding of these systems in other words for a fully developed comparative economic science The field of investigation opened up by these two questions is vast touching on the foundations of social reality and on how to understand them The author being a Marxist sought the answers as he writes not in philosophy or by philosophical means but in and through examining the knowledge accumulated by the sciences The stages of his journey from philosophy to economics and then to anthropology are indicated by the divisions of his book Godelier rejects at the outset any attempt to tackle the question of rationality or irrationality of economic science and of economic realities from the angle of an a priori idea a speculative definition of what is rational Such an approach can yield only he feels an ideological result Rather he treats the appearance and disappearance of social and economic systems in history as being governed by a necessity wholly internal to the concrete structures of social life
