The Figure in Fired Clay Betty Blandino, 2002 Provides the historical mythological and methodological background to this subject trading similarities and nuances shared by cultures vastly separated in both geography and time Jacket The Nature of Paleolithic Art R. Dale Guthrie, 2005 Publisher Description Art as Contemplative Practice Michael A. Franklin, 2017-09-01 Drawing upon his personal experience as a practitioner researcher visual artist and cancer survivor Michael A Franklin offers a rich and thought provoking guide to art as contemplative practice His firsthand experience and original artwork complement this extensive discussion by consulting various practice traditions including yoga rasa and darshan experiences imaginal intelligence and the contemplative instincts of select early twentieth century artists From this synthesis Franklin suggests that we treat art as a form of yoga and meditation with the potential to awaken deeper insight into the fundamental nature of the Self Exercises and rubrics are included that offer accessible instruction for any artist meditation or yoga practitioner art educator or art therapist Ringelmann Smoke Chart United States. Rebecca Martin, Stephanie M. Langin-Hooper, 2018-10-16 Miniature and fragmentary objects are both eye catching and yet easily dismissed Tiny scale entices users with visions of Lilliputian worlds The ambiguity of fragments intrigues us offering tactile reminders of reality's transience Yet the standard scholarly approach to such objects has been to see them as secondary incomplete things whose principal purpose was to refer to a complete and often life size whole The Tiny and the Fragmented offers a series of fresh perspectives on the familiar concepts of the tiny and the fragmented Written by a prestigious group of internationally acclaimed scholars the volume presents a remarkable diversity of case studies that range from Neolithic Europe to pre Colombian Honduras to the classical Mediterranean and ancient Near East Each scholar takes a different approach to issues of miniaturization and fragmentation but is united in considering the little and broken things of the past as objects in their own right Whether a life size or whole thing is made in a scaled down form deliberately broken as part of its use or only considered successful in the eyes of ancient users if it shows some signs of wear it challenges our expectations of representation and wholeness of what it means for a work of art to be finished and affective Overall The Tiny and the Fragmented demands a reconsideration of the social and contextual nature of miniaturization fragmentation and incompleteness making the case that it was because of rather than in spite of their small or partial state that these objects were valued parts of the personal and social worlds they inhabited Tan Men/Pale Women Mary Ann Eaverly, 2013-12-10 Investigating the history behind color as a method of gender differentiation in ancient Greek and Egyptian art

Geomaterials Under the Microscope Jeremy Ingham, 2010-12-15 The first comprehensive guide to the petrography of geomaterials making the petrographers specialist knowledge available to practitioners educators and students worldwide interested in modern and historic construction materials Oursi Hu-beero Lucas Pieter Petit, Maya von Czerniewicz, Christoph Pelzer, 2011 This final report describes the study of an exceptionally well preserved Iron Age building discovered in northern Burkina Faso West Africa The site of Oursi hu beero meaning the big house of Oursi in the locally spoken Songhay language was excavated in 2000 and 2001 by a scientific team from the universities of Frankfurt am Main and Ouagadougou It is situated in the middle of a group of settlement mounds nearby the modern village of Oursi In the year 2000 deep erosion gullies were threatening the architectural remains on the surface which were provisionally dated to the 10th century AD Scholars from both universities saw the importance of this site and undertook immediate action But even

they were not prepared for what they uncovered under only one metre of destruction debris The rich diversity of incredible finds in the 25 different rooms rendered their exposure of enormous importance for the archaeology and history of Burkina Faso Complete storage jars metal equipment wooden furniture rope and textile fragments grinding stones and charred botanical remains are only a fraction of the total assemblage of finds Although we are dealing with the results of a single occupation phase and from one building only the density of finds the preservation of the architecture and the absence of later disturbances add considerably to our understanding of daily life in this part of West Africa Up to now the limited contextual information about life in villages and towns prior to the historical periods has promoted divergent and weakly argued interpretations This volume breaks open new grounds of investigation and calls for further study Additionally the editors hope that this report will stimulate and encourage the discussion between historians and archaeologists of the fascinating West African past The current volume presents an introduction to the expedition an analysis of the site formation processes the presentation of the architectural features in depth studies of the findings and a lively account of the heritage management project that resulted in an on site museum Nine authors contributed to this rich and multifaceted final report The account of the construction intensive use violent destruction and subsequent rediscovery of the building is the enthralling subject of this volume which is richly illustrated with numerous coloured drawings photographs maps and reconstruction drawings It melds archaeological historical and environmental data into a thrilling story A story that reads like a new Crime Scene Investigation episode but happens to have been a real life tragedy in the African Sahel almost 1 000 years ago

Cahokia's Complexities Susan M. Alt, 2018-04-24 Critical new discoveries and archaeological patterns increase understanding of early Mississippian culture and society The reasons for the rise and fall of early cities and ceremonial centers around the world have been sought for centuries In the United States Cahokia has been the focus of intense archaeological work to explain its mysteries Cahokia was the first and exponentially the largest of the Mississippian centers that appeared across the Midwest and Southeast after AD 1000 Located near present day East St Louis Illinois the central complex of Cahokia spanned more than 12 square kilometers and encompassed more than 120 earthen mounds As one of the foremost experts on Cahokia Susan M Alt addresses long standing considerations of eastern Woodlands archaeology the beginnings character and ending of Mississippian culture AD 1050 1600 from a novel theoretical and empirical vantage point Through this case study on farmers immigration and resettling Alt s narrative reanalyzes the relationship between administration and diversity incorporating critical new discoveries and archaeological patterns from outside of Cahokia Alt examines the cultural landscape of the Cahokia flood plain and the layout of one extraordinary upland site Grossman as an administrative settlement where local farmers might have seen or participated in Cahokian rituals and ceremonies involving a web of ancestors powers and places Alt argues that a farming district outside the center provides definitive evidences of the attempted centralized administration of a rural hinterland

Trypillia Mega-Sites and European Prehistory Johannes

Müller, Knut Rassmann, Mykhailo Videiko, 2016-01-22 In European prehistory population agglomerations of more than 10 000 inhabitants per site are a seldom phenomenon A big surprise to the archaeological community was the discovery of Trypillia mega sites of more than 250 hectares and with remains of more than 2000 houses by a multidisciplinary approach of Soviet and Ukrainian archaeology including aerial photography geophysical prospection and excavations nearly 50 years ago The extraordinary development took place at the border of the North Pontic Forest Steppe and Steppe zone ca 4100 3400 BCE Since then many questions arose which are of main relevance Why how and under which environmental conditions did Trypillia mega sites develop How long did they last Were social and or ecological reasons responsible for this social experiment Are Trypillia and the similar sized settlement of Uruk two different concepts of social behaviour Paradigm change in fieldwork and excavation strategies enabled research teams during the last decade to analyse the mega sites in their spatial and social complexity High precision geophysics target excavations and a new design of systematic field strategies deliver empirical data representative for the large sites Archaeological research contributed immensely to aspects of anthropogenic induced steppe development and subsistence concepts that did not reach the carrying capacities Probabilistic models based on 14C dates made the contemporaneity of the mega site house structures most probable In consequence Trypillia mega sites are an independent European phenomenon that contrasts both concepts of urbanism and social stratification that is seen with similar demographic figures in Mesopotamia The new Trypillia research can be read as the methodological progress in European archaeology
