

A movie poster for 'The Creator'. The background is a lush, green landscape with rolling hills and a body of water. In the distance, there are large, white, dome-shaped structures. Two bright blue vertical beams of light shine down from the sky. At the top, a large, white, mechanical structure resembling a giant's hand or a piece of machinery is visible. In the foreground, a man with a beard and a blue jacket with a dark cape is walking towards the right. He is carrying a large, futuristic weapon on his back. Next to him is a small child in a white spacesuit with a red life-support tank. The sky is filled with clouds and several small, green, flying machines.

provides a new and comprehensive survey of one of the world's most fascinating and widely admired filmmaking regions. In terms of its historical coverage, broad thematic approach, and the significant international range of its authors, it is the largest and most wide-ranging publication of its kind to date. Ranging from renowned directors such as Akira Kurosawa to neglected popular genres such as the film musical, and encompassing topics such as ecology, spectatorship, home movies, colonial history, and relations with Hollywood and Europe, The Japanese Cinema Book presents a set of new and often surprising perspectives on Japanese film. With its plural range of interdisciplinary perspectives based on the expertise of established and emerging scholars and critics, The Japanese Cinema Book provides a groundbreaking picture of the different ways in which Japanese cinema may be understood as a local, regional, national, transnational, and global phenomenon. The book's innovative structure combines general surveys of a particular historical topic or critical approach with various micro-level case studies. It argues there is no single fixed Japanese cinema, but instead a fluid and varied field of Japanese filmmaking cultures that continue to exist in a dynamic relationship with other cinemas, media, and regions. The Japanese Cinema Book is divided into seven inter-related sections: Theories and Approaches, Institutions and Industry, Film Style, Genre, Times and Spaces of Representation, Social Contexts, Flows and Interactions. Film: an Anthology Daniel Talbot, 1975. An anthology of writings on film studies.

Though video systems are now growing ever more accessible and practical, video work is undertaken at every level of education; this is the first book-length historical and theoretical study of the medium. On Video explores video on two levels: first, it examines the relationship between technology and society, and second, it probes the connection between production methods and the communication of meaning. The Documentary Film Reader Jonathan Kahana, 2016. The Documentary Film Reader brings together an expansive range of writing by scholars, critics, historians, and filmmakers to provide a stimulating foundational text for students and others who want to undertake study of nonfiction film. Guerilla Film Makers Movie Blueprint Chris Jones, 2003-06-20. Central to The Guerilla Film Makers Movie Blueprint are flow charts, crystal-clear diagrams detailing every single thing, no matter how small, that needs to be done to make your film. This visual approach to the filmmaking process ensures that new and established filmmakers get an instant overview of each and every discipline. Backing up the diagrams are copious notes, humorous in tone yet broad and deep in content. Wherever possible, the text is broken apart into box-outs, hot tips, and sub-diagrams. This book is entertaining, irreverent, and never less than painfully practical. The Guerilla Film Makers Movie Blueprint will have its own dedicated website where readers can download the tools, forms, software, and artwork detailed in the book. Jones's latest endeavor is packed with over a decade's worth of experience, know-how, and insider tips. A must-read for every budding filmmaker.
