Film As Ethnography:

Film As Ethnography Peter Ian Crawford, David Turton, 1992-11-15 This work examines the reasons why anthropologists have not used the camera as a research instrument or film as a means of communicating ethnographic knowledge It suggests that images and words in this discipline operate on different logical levels that they are hierarchically related that whereas writings may encompass the images produced by film the inverse of this cannot be true The author argues for this position further by suggesting that the visual is to the written mode as thin description giving a record of the form of behaviour is to thick description giving an account of meaning Ethnographic Film Karl G. Heider, 1976 Provides history of ethnographic film

Film Festivals and Anthropology María-Paz Peirano, Aida Vallejo, 2017-03-07 This collection explores the intersections between anthropology and film festival studies Film and anthropology scholars map ethnographic film festivals and ethnographic approaches to festivals worldwide The book provides a historical reconstruction of most of the main festivals exhibiting ethnographic film considering the parallel evolution of programming and organisational practices across the globe It also addresses the great value and challenges of ethnographic research tools for studying the wide ranging field of film festivals This volume is the first to collect long term experiences of curating and exhibiting ethnographic film as well as new approaches to the understanding of film festival practices Its contributions reflect on curatorial practices within visual anthropology and their implications for ethnographic filmmaking and they shed light on problems of cultural translation funding festival audiences and the institutionalisation of ethnographic cinema The book offers a novel perspective on film festivals as showcases for cinema socio cultural hubs and distribution nodes Aimed at anthropologists media scholars festival organisers and documentary film professionals it offers a starting point for the study of ethnographic film exhibition within its cultural and social contexts The Corporeal Image David MacDougall, 2006 David MacDougall argues for a new conception of how visual images create human knowledge in a world in which the value of seeing has often been eclipsed by words

New Worlds From Fragments Rosalind Morris, 2019-05-20 Bringing together the insights of literary criticism film theory history and anthropology this book explores the tradition of ethnographic film on the Northwest Coast and its relationship to the ethnography of the area Rosalind Morris takes account of these films organizing her discussions around a series of detailed readings and viewings that

Beyond observation Paul Henley, 2020-01-20 This electronic version has been made available under a Creative Commons BY NC ND open access license Beyond Observation is structured by the argument that the ethnographicness of a film should not be determined by the fact that it is about an exotic culture the popular view nor because it has apparently not been authored a long standing academic view but rather because it adheres to the norms of ethnographic practice more generally On these grounds the book covers a large number of films made in a broad range of styles across a 120 year period from the Arctic to Africa from the cities of China to rural Vermont Paul Henley discusses films made within reportage exotic melodrama and travelogue genres in the period before the Second World War as well as more conventionally ethnographic films made for academic or state funded educational purposes The book explores the work of film makers such as John Marshall Asen Balikci Ian Dunlop and Timothy Asch in the post war period considering ideas about authorship developed by Jean Rouch Robert Gardner and Colin Young It also discusses films authored by indigenous subjects themselves using the new video technology of the 1970s and the ethnographic films that flourished on British television until the 1990s In the final part of the book Henley examines the recent work of David and Judith MacDougall and the Harvard Sensory Ethnography Lab before concluding with an assessment of a range of films authored in a participatory manner as possible future models

Ethnographic Film Karl G. Heider, 2009-04-20

From reviews of the first edition Ethnographic Film can rightly be considered a film primer for anthropologists Choice This is an interesting and useful book about what it means to be ethnographic and how this might affect ethnographic filmmaking for the better It obviously belongs in all departments of anthropology and most ethnographic filmmakers will want to read it Ethnohistory Even before Robert Flaherty released Nanook of the North in 1922 anthropologists were producing films about the lifeways of native peoples for a public audience as well as for research and teaching Ethnographic Film 1976 was one of the first books to provide a comprehensive introduction to this field of visual anthropology and it quickly became the standard reference In this new edition Karl G Heider thoroughly updates Ethnographic Film to reflect developments in the field over the three decades since its publication focusing on the work of four seminal filmmakers Jean Rouch John Marshall Robert Gardner and Timothy Asch He begins with an introduction to ethnographic film and a history of the medium He then considers many attributes of ethnographic film including the crucial need to present whole acts whole bodies whole interactions and whole people to preserve the integrity of the cultural context Heider also discusses numerous aspects of making ethnographic films from ethics and finances to technical considerations such as film versus video and preserving the filmed record He concludes with a look at using ethnographic film in teaching

Picturing Culture Jay Ruby, 2000-08-15

Here Jay Ruby a founder of visual anthropology distills his thirty year exploration of the relationship of film and anthropology Spurred by a conviction that the ideal of an anthropological cinema has not even remotely begun to be realized Ruby argues that ethnographic filmmakers should generate a set of critical standards analogous to those for written ethnographies Cinematic artistry and the desire to entertain he argues can eclipse the original intention which is to provide an anthropological representation of the subjects The book begins with analyses of key filmmakers Robert Flaherty Robert Garner and Tim Asch who have striven to generate profound statements about human behavior on film Ruby then discusses the idea of research film Eric Michaels and indigenous media the ethics of representation the nature of ethnography anthropological knowledge and film and lays the groundwork for a critical approach to the field that borrows selectively from film communication media and cultural studies Witty and original yet intensely theoretical this collection is a major contribution to the field of visual anthropology

Experimental Ethnography Catherine Russell,1999 A sophisticated theoretical consideration of the related aesthetics and histories of ethnographic and experimental non fiction films Bad Film Histories Katherine Groo,2019-02-26 A daring

deep investigation into ethnographic cinema that challenges standard ways of writing film history and breaks important new ground in understanding archives Bad Film Histories is a vital work that unsettles the authority of the archive Katherine Groo daringly takes readers to the margins of the film record addressing the undertheorization of film history and offering a rigorous corrective Taking ethnographic cinema as a crucial case study Groo challenges standard ways of thinking and writing about film history and questions widespread assumptions about what film artifacts are and what makes them meaningful Rather than filling holes Groo endeavors to understand the imprecisions and absences that define film history and its archives Bad Film Histories draws on numerous works of ethnographic cinema from Edward S Curtis's In the Land of the Head Hunters to a Citroën sponsored croisi re across Africa to the extensive archives of the Maison Lumi re and the Musée Albert Kahn to dozens of expedition films from the 1910s and 1920s The project is deeply grounded in poststructural approaches to history and throughout Groo draws on these frameworks to offer innovative and accessible readings that explain ethnographic cinema's destabilizing energies As Groo describes ethnographic works are mostly untitled unauthored seemingly infinite in number and largely unrestored even in their digital afterlives Her examination of ethnographic cinema provides necessary new thought for both film scholars and those who are thrilled by cinema's boundless possibilities In so doing she boldly reexamines what early ethnographic cinema is and how these films produce meaning challenging the foundations of film history and prevailing approaches to the archive

Exploring Culture and Gender Through Film Christian Hammons, 2023-07-20 First published in the United States of America in 2016 by Cognella Inc

Memories of the Origins of Ethnographic Film Beate Engelbrecht, 2007 Ethnographic Film which combines documentary filming and anthropological research originated in the late 19th century Early on anthropologists used film to record cultures Documentary filmmakers in the early 20th century developed different strategies with technical developments aiding further advances In the 1950s to 1970s intense debates among anthropologists filmmakers and artists many of whom met regularly at conferences and festivals took place on the methodology of ethnographic filmmaking Their discussions were handed on by word of mouth but rarely recorded or published In 2001 the pioneers of ethnographic film met in Gottingen and put together their recollections of the genre's Origins thus giving an unusual insight into the development of ethnographic film Innovation in Ethnographic Film Peter Loizos, 1993-07-15

In the first comprehensive introduction to the nature and development of ethnographic film Peter Loizos reviews fifty of the most important films made between 1955 and 1985 Going beyond programmatic statements he analyzes the films themselves identifying and discussing their contributions to ethnographic documentation Loizos begins by reviewing works of John Marshall and Timothy Asch in the 1950s and moves through those of Jean Rouch Robert Gardner and many more recent filmmakers He reveals a steady course of innovations along four dimensions production technology subject matter strategies of argument and ethnographic authentication His analyses of individual films address questions of realism authenticity genre authorial and subjective voice and representation of the films creators as well as their subjects Innovation in Ethnographic Film as a systematic and illuminating review of developments in ethnographic film will be an important resource for the growing number of anthropologists and other scholars who use such films as tools for research and teaching How do we know? Evidence, Ethnography, and the Making of Anthropological Knowledge Liana Chua, Casey High, 2009-05-05 Since its inception modern anthropology has stood at the confluence of two mutually constitutive modes of knowledge production participant observation and theoretical analysis This unique combination of practice and theory has been the subject of recurrent intellectual and methodological debate raising questions that strike at the very heart of the discipline How Do We Know is a timely contribution to emerging debates that seek to understand this relationship through the theme of evidence Incorporating a diverse selection of case studies ranging from the Tibetan emotion of shame to films of Caribbean musicians it critically addresses such questions as What constitutes viable anthropological evidence How does evidence generated through small scale intensive periods of participant observation challenge or engender abstract theoretical models Are certain types of evidence inherently better than others How have recent interdisciplinary collaborations and technological innovations altered the shape of anthropological evidence Extending a long standing tradition of reflexivity within the discipline the contributions to this volume are ethnographically grounded and analytically ambitious meditations on the theme of evidence Cumulatively they challenge the boundaries of what anthropologists recognise and construct as evidence while pointing to its thematic and conceptual potential in future anthropologies
