Institutional Learning and Knowledge Transfer Across Epistemic Communities Elias G. Carayannis, Ali Pirzadeh, Denisa Popescu, 2011-11-25 Over the past several decades as the pace of globalization has accelerated operational issues of international coordination have often been overlooked For example the global financial crisis that began in 2007 is attributed in part to a lack of regulatory oversight As a result supranational organizations such as the G 20 the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund have prioritized strengthening of the international financial architecture and providing opportunities for dialogue on national policies international co operation and international financial institutions Prevailing characteristics of the global economic systems such as the increasing power of financial institutions changes in the structure of global production decline in the authority of nation states over their national economy and creation of global institutional setting e g global governance have created the conditions for a naturally evolving process towards enabling national epistemic communities to create institutions that comply with global rules and regulations can control crises In this context transfer of technical knowledge from the larger organizations and its global epistemic communities to member communities is becoming a policy tool to convince participants in the international system to have similar ideas about which rules will govern their mutual participation In the realm of finance and banking regulation the primary focus is on transfer of specialized and procedural knowledge in technical domains such as accounting procedures payment systems and corporate governance principles thereby promoting institutional learning at national and local levels In this volume the authors provide in depth analysis of initiatives to demonstrate how this type of knowledge generated at the international organization level is codified into global standards and disseminated to members particularly in the developing world where the legal and regulatory infrastructure is often lacking They argue that despite the challenges when a country intends to join the global system its institutions and economic structures need to move toward the global norms In so doing they shed new light on the dynamics of knowledge transfer financial regulation economic development with particular respect to supporting global standards and avoiding future crises

The Bank for International Settlements James C. Baker, 2002-03-30 In a world of increasing cross border financial transactions The Bank for International Settlements stands out as the oldest existing international financial institution and among the most controversial For many it is a mystery What does it actually do For others it poses an ethical dilemma What DID it do to aid the Nazis during World War II Baker examines the history administration evolution and operations of this reclusive institution He discusses the work of its permanent committees such as the Basle Concordats of 1975 and 1983 and the Basle Capital Accords of 1988 and 2001

Among other products and services he notes The BIS's studies of the use of derivatives by banks its analysis of payment and settlement systems worldwide and its supervision of the insurance and investment banking businesses Then in a cool and balanced appraisal he looks at the Bank's operations during World War II its relationship with the Nazis in their gold and foreign exchange transactions Throughout he underlines the importance of The BIS and its value in maintaining stability of the international monetary system The result is a major academic study a work of special interest to scholars teachers and students and an important readable engrossing account for finance and investment professionals as well
