

STAGE 5: THE PRODUCTION OF A FINAL ARGUMENT

Each student makes sense of their experiences by producing a final argument

- State the question and claim you are trying to support
- Include evidence (data + analysis + interpretation)
- Provide a justification of your evidence
- Organize your argument in a way that enhances readability
- Correct grammar, punctuation, and spelling errors

The image shows a handwritten student argument on lined paper. It is organized into sections with blue horizontal lines. At the top, 'Research Question' is written in blue ink, followed by the question 'What caused these trends in the coloration of the paper?' in red ink. Below this, 'Our Claim' is written in blue ink, followed by a claim in red ink: 'We claim the rate of survival increases when the turbidity and predators decrease.' To the right of the claim, there are small drawings of a fish and a predator. The bottom section is divided into two columns. The left column is headed 'Our evidence' in blue ink and contains red ink text: 'We noticed, the turbidity was 2150-4500, there were only 5 bright males. When turbidity was 10-450, there were 100 bright males.' The right column is headed 'Our justification (of evidence)' in blue ink, with '(reasoning)' written above it. It contains red ink text: 'Since 100 > 5, more ♂ were able to survive in the less turbid water. The predators might be able to see the bright males better than the dark in the turbid water.'

Research Question What caused these trends in the coloration of the paper? Our Claim We claim the rate of survival increases when the turbidity and predators decrease.	(reasoning) Our justification (of evidence) Since 100 > 5, more ♂ were able to survive in the less turbid water. The predators might be able to see the bright males better than the dark in the turbid water.
