Financing The Future Canadas Capital Markets In The Eighties:

Financing the Future Arthur Donner, 1982-01-01 In this study first published in 1982 Arthur Donner examines capital market issues that have significant economic impact and are affected by public policy In addition to interest rates inflation energy concern the author also examines the financing of pension funds the state of housing finance and the interaction between inflation and capital markets Donner finds that at the root of all capital market problems are the same factors high inflation high and volatile interest rates and saving and investment distortions caused by the interaction of inflation and the tax system Financing the Future is an immediate and detailed analysis of the state of Canadian capital markets in the early 1980s

Canada's Video Revolution Peter Lyman, Canadian Institute for Economic Policy, 1983 From the back cover While Canadians have been leaders in many aspects of communications technology the content has been mainly foreign So too have the applications of new technology typically been property of alliances of corporations in the U S Europe and Japan As the pace of the globalization of culture quickens Canada s broadcasting recording film and publishing industries will face formidable challenges Communications analyst Peter Lyman describes the impact of the new technologies on Canadian cultural industries and proposes strategies he feels must be accepted to make these industries viable in an ever changing marketplace

Marketing Canada's Energy Ian McDougall, 1983-01-01 Written in the early 1980s author I A McDougall shows that as an import dependent country Canada was ill prepared for possible disruptions in its oil supply McDougall envisioned a future in which superpower rivalry over dwindling world reserves coupled with rationing of supply by OPEC members and volatility in the Persian Gulf would make Canada s dependence on foreign oil increasingly precarious He asserted that the contemporary Liberal government s National Energy Program was a usefull first step in promotion an independent energy strategy Marketing Canada's Energy is a passionate addition to the lively debate over Canada s independence during the 1980s

Rebuilding From Within Rotstein, Abraham, 1984-01-01 In this study written in 1984 the author discusses problems and weaknesses in Canada s economy and offers solutions for improving in the future Skeptical of the benefits of free trade proposals and deeply critical of the effects of monetarism the author proposes an alternative vision of the nation s development Rotstein outlines the sorts of industrial policies that Canada must have in a balanced portfolio to better exploit the domestic market and survive in a changing global marketplace Rebuilding from Within is a clear headed response to the economic upheavals experienced in Canada in the early 1980s

The World Economy in Crisis Lorie Tarshis, 1984-01-01 Lorie Tarshis held that much of the economic suffering in the 1970s was not necessary that the crisis could have been easily eased had it not been for governments faulty diagnoses and poorly designed prescriptions Faced with increasingly serious energy shortages economic slowdowns rising unemployment and skyrocketing Third World debt Western governments responded with inflation fighting policies left over from the Second World War that served only to exacerbate the situation In this book Tarshis recommended an overall strategy to confront these problems without resorting to the stopgaps then in vogue with government decision makers World Economy in Crisis offers an acute diagnosis of the pervasive malaise facing the world economy in the 1970s and a critical perspective on contemporary official responses to it

Planning and the Economy Hugh Thorburn,1984-01-01 Since World War II the way economic policy has been formed both in Canada and abroad has changed radically This book shows that the course taken in Canada has much to do with the crisis in the Canadian economy in the post war period Thorburn examines the response of other Western nations to the changing economic order of the postwar world and then turns to an analysis of Canadian economic policy making at the federal level and in all ten provinces Thorburn points to the need for a central planning agency to correct the drift in Canada s economic policy First published in 1984 Planning and the Economy is a strongly argued entry into the vital debates over Canadian political and economic policy in the early 1980s

Financing the Future Arthur Donner,1982-01-01 In this study first published in 1982 Arthur Donner examines capital market issues that have significant economic impact and are affected by public policy In addition to interest rates inflation energy concern the author also examines the financing of pension funds the state of housing finance and the interaction between inflation and capital markets Donner finds that at the root of all capital market problems are the same factors high inflation high and volatile interest rates and saving and investment distortions caused by the interaction of inflation and the tax system Financing the Future is an immediate and detailed analysis of the state of Canadian capital markets in the early 1980s

Canada Ernest Ingles,1990 Financial Markets and Regional Economic Development Sheila C. Dow,1990 Money, Financial Markets and Economic Activity

Norman E. Cameron,1992 Studies in Political Economy ,1992 Canadian Books in Print ,2000 The Political

Economy of Pensions Richard Lee Deaton,1989 In 2011 the Baby Boom generation will begin to retire Bythen the stark reality of the greying of the population inNorth America and Western Europe will have brought the inadequacies ofthe state and private pension systems home to all levels of society and the pension crisis will be actual rather than impending In The Political Economy of Pensions Richard Deatonexplores the factors involved in this high profile issue of publicpolicy and shows the insufficiency of recent reform initiatives inCanada the United States and Britain Four converging considerations explain the imminence of the pensioncrisis First while it is commonly assumed that 70 percent ofpre retirement income will be sufficient for a one earner couple tomaintain its standard of living few pensioners receive this amount and polls show that those not yet retired expect or want full incomereplacement Second the proportion of elderly people in the populationwill dramatically increase in coming decades the number of employedworkers for each retired person will fall from seven to three whilethe costs for elderly dependants rise Third the majority of workersin all three countries have no coverage under employer sponsoredprivate pension schemes the percentage of those covered has beendropping in recent years and many of those who do have privatepensions receive only partial or unindexed payments Finally thecorporate sector and the state have been appropriating pension funds asa source of investment and social capital to meet their financialrequirements The pension system now occupies a strategic economic position in advanced market economies. Consequently the conflicting interests underlying the pension crisis could generate a heightened awareness of power and politics in capitalist countries and increase social tensions manifesting themselves through intergenerational sectoral political and industrial relations conflicts. The Political Economy of Pensions identifies personal problems and structural issues which may have significance in terms of power politics and social change in the future. This timely and provocative comparative interdisciplinary study will be of interest to those involved in social policy gerontology economics industrial relations or social work and others concerned with pensions and aging or with the social impact of public policies. Analyse de Politiques, 1983 Canadiana, 1982

Canada's Cultural Industries Paul Audley, 1983. From the back cover: Books, television, records, media such as these provide a country with its entertainment information, opinion and analysis, a major part of its culture. But the import of culture from more powerful countries has always meant disadvantages for Canada's cultural industries, whose smaller market dictates higher costs. As these industries suffer economically so does Canadian culture. However, by both their buying habits and responses to polls, Canadians have shown that they support Canadian content. Despite this fact, an annual cultural deficit of 750 million and an obvious threat to Canadian autonomy, responses from government have been fitful and sometimes even counterproductive. For both English and French Canada, Paul Audley provides a wealth of information on the state of the cultural industries: newspapers, magazines, books, recording, radio, television and film. Audley pays particular attention to problems of Canadian content and control and how government could formulate new policies to strengthen these vital industries. Issues for Pacific Economic Cooperation, 1984. Canada and the Reagan Challenge Stephen Clarkson, 1985. Canada and Reagan Challenge, first published in 1982, has gained wide acclaim for its analysis of the crisis of 1981 when Ottawa and Washington went head to head over the economic nationalism of the National Energy Program and the Foreign Investment Review Agency. Stephen Clarkson's study demonstrated that the crisis extended to a great many fronts including defence, the environment and the survival of Canadian culture. The September 1984 election brought to Ottawa a new Conservative government, one that seemed determined to embrace Ronald Reagan's view of the world. The Conservatives soon came on side with Washington on the Stars Wars debate. As for foreign investment, the Tories declared Canada open for business. With many challenges for the bilateral relationship on the horizon, further protectionist threats, free trade negotiations, the modernization of NORAD, the acid rain crisis and American withdrawal from international institutions such as UNESCO, Stephen Clarkson asks whether the Conservatives' super relations with the United States will result in the sacrifice of Canadian interests. Canadian Book Review Annual, 1982. Financial Services Industry, 1984.
