Effects Of Acid Deposition On The Forests Of Europe North America:

Effects of Acid Deposition on the Forests of Europe and North America George H. Tomlinson, II, 1990-04-30 The objective of this book is to outline the serious dangers to the soil and forest as a result of continuing emissions of acid producing gases thus pointing to the urgent need of their reduction This volume reviews relevant information dealing with changes due to acidification of the soil and with the physiological processes of the tree involved in nutrient uptake transfer and utilization as well as with the nature and degree of damage that has occurred Written in a comprehensive format it discusses the importance of viable forests the vital role of nutrients in the structure and physiology of the tree and the relevance of prior dieback episodes This is a valuable resource for those interested in forestry environmental science and the pulp and paper industry

Visualizing Physical Geography Timothy Foresman, Alan H. Strahler, 2012-01-11 With its unique approach Visualizing Physical Geography 2nd Edition captures the reader s attention and demonstrates why physical geography is relevant to them It relies heavily on the integration of National Geographic and other visuals with narrative to explore key concepts New emphasis is placed on environmental issues such as climate change overpopulation and deforestation from a geographical perspective Readers will appreciate this approach because it vividly illustrates the interconnectedness of physical processes that weave together to create our planet s dynamic surface and atmosphere

Stress physiology and forest productivity T.C. Hennessey, P.M . Dougherty, S.V.

Kossuth, J.D. Johnson, 2012-12-06 Maintaining or increasing stand productivity is the concern of forest land managers worldwide. Consequently, there is increasing interest in understanding the impact of environmental stress on productivity and the development of management strategies that ameliorate or reduce the deleterious effects. Invited scientists gathered in Fort Collins, Colorado, on July 30, 1985, to present the current state of knowledge regarding the impact of environmental stress on forest stand productivity. Particular attention was given to elucidating the mode of action by which individual stress elements reduce productivity. Environmental factors and the levels that constitute stressed suboptimal conditions in forest stands were identified, and the effects of stress intensity and duration on key stand parameters including photosynthesis, respiration, assimilate partitioning, senescence, and mortality were emphasized. The role of genetics and silvicultural treatments in lessening the stress impact on stand productivity was presented, particularly in regards to alternative methods for environmental stress management. Modeling of stand dynamics in response to environmental stress was explored as an effective research and management tool. VIII Improved forest management practices will develop as we improve our understanding of the nature of important environmental stresses and as we comprehend their impact on tree and stand performance manifested through physiological processes and genetic potential. This book is dedicated to such an understanding and comprehension.

Encyclopedia of Social Problems Vincent N. Parrillo, 2008-05-22 From terrorism to social inequality and from health care to environmental issues, social problems affect us all. The Encyclopedia will offer an interdisciplinary perspective into these and many other social problems that are a continuing concern in our lives, whether we confront them on a personal, local, regional, national, or global level.

The Goodwin Niering Center for Conservation Biology and Environmental Studies at Connecticut College is a comprehensive interdisciplinary program that builds on one of the nation's leading undergraduate environmental studies programs. The Center fosters research, education, and curriculum development aimed at understanding contemporary ecological challenges. One of the major goals of the Goodwin Niering Center involves enhancing the understanding of both the College community and the general public with respect to ecological, political, social, and economic factors that affect natural resource use. To this end, the Center has offered five conferences at which academicians, representatives of federal and state government, and individuals from non-government environmental organizations are brought together for an in-depth interdisciplinary evaluation of important environmental issues. On April 1 and 2, 2005, the Center presented the Elizabeth Babbott Conant interdisciplinary conference on Acid in the Environment: Lessons Learned and Future Prospects. The Connecticut Institute of Water Resources at the University of Connecticut, the Connecticut Chapter of The Nature Conservancy, and the Connecticut Sea Grant College Program joined the Center as conference sponsors. During the past twenty five years acid rain formally referred to as acid deposition has been the focus of much political debate and scholarly research Acid deposition occurs when important precursor pollutants such as sulfur dioxide SO₂ and nitrogen oxides NO_x mix with water vapor and oxidants in the atmosphere and fall back to earth in either wet or dry form
