Taylor, 2013-10-03 I have always wanted to create poems of feeling and love pain and anger that I have felt in life I would like to publish them and make a life of writing my feelings and insights Some insights are born of problems of my own creation some not One insight is that I have been wanting to write and have the work in print before more than just me If most of my work were read it would have to do with my search for Love and my need to be committed to someone I always seem to be involved but not fully committed I ask myself time and time again am I incapable of being committed or has the person I would commit too come and pass in my many involvement s At this point in my life I don't know what the lord has in store for me in this respect but I keep Hoping I have been involved with some of the most fantastic Black women in the world of every day Black women Light ones Dark ones American Non American all of them Great I am starting to believe the problem of which I speak was not with them but with ME Eighteen Songs of a Nomad Flute: The Story of Lady Wen-chi. A Fourteenth-Century Handscroll in The Metropolitan Museum of Art, The Eighteenth-Century British Verse Epistle B. Overton, 2007-10-23 This is the first book to cover the whole range of epistolary verse in the period including the discursive type favoured by Pope and the familiar and dramatic epistles It advances a new model for defining the form demonstrates the form's importance in the period and pays attention to non canonical epistles by women and labouring class writers British Women Poets of the Long Eighteenth Century Paula R. Backscheider, Catherine E. Ingrassia, 2009-10-30 This anthology gathers 368 poems by 80 British women poets of the long eighteenth century Few of these poems have been reprinted since originally published and all are crucial to understanding fully the literary history of women writers Paula R Backscheider and Catherine E Ingrassia demonstrate the enormous diversity of poetry produced during this time by organizing the poems in three broad and deliberately overlapping categories by genre establishing that women wrote in all of the forms that men did with equal mastery and creativity by theme offering a revisionary look at the range of topics these writers addressed including war ecology friendship religion and the stages of life and by the poems more specific focus on the women's experiences as writers Backscheider and Ingrassia have selected poems that represent the best work of skilled poets creating a wonderful mix of canonical and little known pieces They include the complete texts of longer poems that are abridged or omitted in other collections Their substantial part introductions textual notes bibliographical information and biographical sketches situate the poets and their writings within the cultural and political milieu in which they appeared To generate further scholarship on this subject this essential anthology puts primary texts in front of students scholars and general readers It fills the persistent need to document women s poetic expression during the long eighteenth century and to rewrite the literary history of the period a history from which women have largely been excluded
