The Politics of Fashion in Eighteenth Century America Jefferson on Display G. S. Wilson, 2018-06-26 When we think of Thomas Jefferson a certain picture comes to mind for some of us combining his physical appearance with our perception of his character During Jefferson s lifetime this image was already taking shape helped along by his own assiduous cultivation In Jefferson on Display G S Wilson draws on a broad array of sources to show how Jefferson fashioned his public persona to promote his political agenda During his long career his image shifted from cosmopolitan intellectual to man of the people As president he kept friends and foes guessing he might appear unpredictably in old worn and out of date clothing with hair unkempt yet he could as easily play the polished gentleman in a black suit as he hosted small dinners in the President s House that were noted for their French inspired food and fine European wines Even in retirement his image continued to evolve as guests at Monticello reported being met by the Sage clothed in rough fabrics that he proudly claimed were created from his own merino sheep leading Americans by example to manufacture their own clothing free of Europe By paying close attention to Jefferson s controversial clothing choices and physical appearance as well as his use of portraiture architecture and the polite refinements of dining grooming and conversation Wilson provides invaluable new insight into this perplexing founder Labour of the Stitch Serena Dyer, 2024-04-11 The making of fashionable women s dress in Georgian England necessitated an inordinate amount of manual labour From the mantuamakers and seamstresses who wrought lengths of silk and linen into garments to the artists and engravers who disseminated and immortalised the resulting outfits in print and on paper Georgian garments were the products of many busy hands This Element centres the sartorial hand as a point of connection across the trades which generated fashionable dress in the eighteenth century Crucially it engages with recreation methodologies to explore how the agency and skill of the stitching hand can inform understandings of craft industry gender and labour in the eighteenth century The labour of stitching along with printmaking drawing and painting composed a comprehensive culture of making and manual labour which together constructed eighteenth century cultures of fashionable dress
