Hyper/Text/Theory George P. Landow,1994-12-05 In his widely acclaimed book Hypertext George P Landow described a radically new information technology and its relationship to the work of such literary theorists as Jacques Derrida and Roland Barthes Now Landow has brought together a distinguished group of authorities to explore more fully the implications of hypertextual reading for contemporary literary theory Among the contributors Charles Ess uses the work of Jürgen Habermas and the Frankfurt School to examine hypertext's potential for true democratization Stuart Moulthrop turns to Deleuze and Guattari as a point of departure for a study of the relation of hypertext and political power Espen Aarseth places hypertext within a framework created by other forms of electronic textuality David Kolb explores what hypertext implies for philosophy and philosophical discourse Jane Yellowlees Douglas Gunnar Liestol and Mireille Rosello use contemporary theory to come to terms with hypertext narrative Terrence Harpold investigates the hypertextual fiction of Michael Joyce Drawing on Derrida Lacan and Wittgenstein Gregory Ulmer offers an example of the new form of writing hypertextuality demands The Visual Culture Reader Nicholas Mirzoeff,2002 The diverse essays collected here constitute an exploration of the emerging interdisciplinary field of visual culture and examine why modern and postmodern culture place such a premium on rendering experience in visual form Humane Economics Jack C. From Text to Hypertext Silvio Gaggi, 2015-07-27 It is a tenet of postmodern writing that the subject the self is unstable fragmented and decentered One useful way to examine this principle is to look at how the subject has been treated in various media in the premodern modern and postmodern eras Silvio Gaggi pursues this strategy in From Text to Hypertext analyzing the issue of subject construction and deconstruction in selected examples of visual art literature film and electronic media Gaggi concentrates on a few paradigmatic works in each chapter he contrasts van Eyck s Wedding of Arnolfini with the photography of Cindy Sherman and Barbara Kruger examines fiction that centers on an elusive subject in works by Conrad Faulkner and Calvino and explores the ability of such films as Coppola's One from the Heart and Altman's The Player to emancipate the subject through cinematography and editing. In considering electronic media, Gaggi takes his argument to an entirely new level. He focuses on computer-controlled media, specifically examples of hypertextual fiction by Michael Joyce and Stuart Moulthrop. Besides recognizing how the computer has enabled artists to create works of fiction in which readers themselves become decentered, Gaggi also observes the impact of literature created on computer networks where even the limitations of CD-ROM are lifted and the notion of individual authorship may for all practical purposes be lost.

The Absent Body Drew Leder, 1990-07-20

The body plays a central role in shaping our experience of the world. Why then are we so frequently oblivious to our own bodies? We gaze at the world but rarely see our own eyes. We may be unable to explain how we perform the simplest of acts. We are even less aware of our internal organs and the physiological processes that keep us alive. In this fascinating work, Drew Leder examines all the ways in which the body is absent, forgotten, alien, uncontrollable, obscured. In part 1, Leder explores a wide range of bodily functions with an eye to structures of concealment and alienation. He discusses not only perception and movement skills and tools but a variety of bodies that philosophers tend to overlook: the inner body with its anonymous rhythms, the sleeping body into which we nightly lapse, the prenatal body from which we first came to be. Leder thereby seeks to challenge the primacy of perception. In part 2, Leder shows how this phenomenology allows us to rethink traditional concepts of mind and body. Leder argues that Cartesian dualism exhibits an abiding power because it draws upon life-world experiences. Descartes' corpus is filled with disruptive bodies which can only be subdued by exercising disembodied reason. Leder explores the origins of this notion of reason as disembodied, focusing upon the hidden corporeality of language and thought. In a final chapter, Leder then proposes a new ethic of embodiment to carry us beyond Cartesianism. This original, important, and accessible work uses examples from the author's medical training throughout. It will interest all those concerned with phenomenology, the philosophy of mind, or the Cartesian tradition, those working in the health care professions, and all those fascinated by the human body.

Doing Things with Things Ole Dreier, 2016-05-23

It has been claimed that the natural sciences have abstracted for themselves a material world set apart from human concerns, and social sciences in their turn constructed a world of actors devoid of things. While a subject such as archaeology, by its very nature, takes objects into account, other disciplines such as psychology emphasize internal mental structures and other non-material issues. This book brings together a team of contributors from across the social sciences who have been taking things more seriously to examine how people relate to objects. The contributors focus on everyday objects and how these objects enter into our activities over the course of time. Using a combination of different theoretical approaches, including actor-network theory, ecological psychology, cognitive linguistics, and science and technology studies, the book argues against the standard notion of objects and their properties as inert and meaningless and argues for the need to understand the relations between
