A black metal fence with vertical bars runs across the middle of the image. Behind the fence, there are more flowers, including purple ones and tall, thin stalks with small white flowers. The background is filled with dense green foliage and more flowers, creating a rich, colorful garden atmosphere.

House & Garden, 1917 The Northwest Garden Manifesto John J. Albers, 2017-12-18 Gardens are extensions of our homes places in which we get outside to relax entertain and get some physical exercise But our gardens are also extensions of the natural world Through our gardens as well as other neighborhood greenspaces we can help counter some of the woes faced by larger environments rampant development loss of plant and animal habitat spread of invasive species exploitation of natural resources air and water pollution and the impacts of global warming Yes even small urban backyard landscapes can combat such man made strains on our local environment and it's easy to do In his new book The Northwest Garden Manifesto scientist and gardener John J. Albers provides a comprehensive guide to encourage and enable homeowners to consider the local ecosystem in their own gardens and in their larger communities The ideas and concepts in this book reflect the most up to date thinking on urban ecology and how to best make our yards reflect the natural world around us The key to Albers's approach is for gardeners to first assess the current state of their property and then focus on the following key principles 1 Protect conserve and create healthy soil 2 Maintain healthy plants and create a sustainable landscape 3 Conserve water and other natural resources 4 Protect water and air quality 5 Protect and enhance wildlife habitat 6 Conserve energy 7 Use sustainable methods and materials Through clear explanation practical examples and full color photos Albers shows how to evaluate any yard in terms of these principles and then challenges the reader to improve each element one step at a time From creating better soil to starting a compost pile attracting pollinators to adding more native plants or creating a simple circulating water feature to building a fence from recycled wood gardeners will ultimately turn their backyards into beautiful healthy and happy habitat for all      God's Metaphor - Cancerous Thoughts the Weeds in Your Garden Colette Garside,2008-02-14 How to change your thought forms and avoid both physical and spiritual illness You are what you believe      Why Garden in Schools? Lexi Earl,Pat Thomson,2020-12-30 This book delves into the complex history of the gardening movement in schools and examines the question why gardens should be built in schools It offers practical guidance for teachers to begin thinking about how to approach educational gardening A resurgence of interest in school gardens is linked to concerns about children s health food knowledge lack of outdoor play and contact with the natural world This book warns against simplistic one best approaches and makes a case about the complexity of gardening in schools It is the first critical attempt to address the complex and conflicting notions about school gardens and to tackle the question what is the problem to which school gardens are the answer Examining the educational theory in which gardening has been explained and advocated the book explores the way contemporary gardens research has been conducted with specific questions such as what works well in school gardens Based on case studies of a school establishing a garden and another one maintaining a garden chapters look at the way in which schools come to frame their gardens The authors suggest that there are four issues to consider when setting up a school garden or evaluating a pre existing one wider social context public policy the whole school and the formal and informal curriculum The book ends with a call for consideration of the ways in which school gardens can be built the myriad practices that constitute an educational garden space and the challenges of maintaining a school garden over the long term It will be of interest to teachers in primary schools as well as a key point of reference for scholars academics and students researching school gardens
