Advances in Peptic Ulcer Pathogenesis W.D. Rees, 2012-12-06 Over the past decade a great deal of research activity has occurred on either side of the gastroduodenal epithelial interface with the common goal of elucidating the mechanisms of mucosal protection and how these may be compromised in peptic ulcer disease A prime stimulus to such research has been the realization that abnormal acid secretion or its delivery into the duodenum in excessive amount cannot fully explain ulcer pathogenesis in the majority of patients One may envisage the stomach and proximal duodenum as being in a dynamic equilibrium with aggressive luminal factors such as acid and pepsin being counteracted by protective mucosal mechanisms Until recently the mechanisms involved in mucosal protection had been poorly defined while the physiology and pathophysiology of acid and pepsin secretion had been elucidated The impression that gastroduodenal mucosa was protected by a single mechanism has at last been replaced by a more realistic view suggesting a number of protective zones acting in series Some of these zones may act as first or second line defences against aggressive factors while certain zones may specifically protect against certain aggressors Peptic Ulcer T. L. Cleave, 2013-10-22 Peptic Ulcer A New Approach to its Causation Prevention and Arrest Based on Human Evolution focuses on the argument that the interference with the natural buffering of gastric acid by the food through the removal of protein in the refining of carbohydrates is the primary cause of peptic ulcer The book first offers information on the law of adaptation and the role of hydrochloric acid in the production of peptic ulcer and the law of adaptation and the role of stress in the production of peptic ulcer The text then elaborates on protein stripping in carbohydrate foods as the fundamental cause of peptic ulcer The publication takes look at racial incidence of peptic ulcer and explanation of the difference in the incidence of gastric ulcer and duodenal ulcer The publication also underscores the disregard of appetite as an aggravating factor in the production of peptic ulcer heredity and peptic ulcer and application of the argument to the prevention and arrest of peptic ulcer The manuscript is a dependable reference for readers interested in the study of causation prevention and arrest of peptic ulcer International Record of Medicine and General Practice Clinics Edward Swift Dunster, Frank Pierce Foster, James Bradbridge Hunter, Charles Eucharist de Medicis Sajous, Gregory Stragnell, Henry J.
