As Long as We Both Shall Love Karen M. Dunak,2016-04-05 In As Long as We Both Shall Love Karen M Dunak provides a nuanced history of the American wedding and its celebrants Blending an analysis of film fiction advertising and prescriptive literature with personal views from letters diaries essays and oral histories Dunak demonstrates the ways in which the modern wedding epitomizes a diverse and consumerist culture and aims to reveal an ongoing debate about the power of peer culture media and the marketplace in America

Look Closer David R. Coon,2013-12-17 In recent years the media landscape in the United States has followed a pattern similar to that of the physical landscape by becoming increasingly suburbanized Although it is a far cry from reality the fantasy of a perfect suburban life still exists in the collective imagination of millions of Americans This dream of suburban perfection is built around a variety of such ideologically conservative values and ideals as the importance of tradition the centrality of the nuclear family the desire for a community of like minded neighbors the need for clearly defined gender roles and the belief that with hard work and determination anyone can succeed Building on the relationships between suburban life and American identity Look Closer examines and interprets recent narratives that challenge the suburban ideal to reveal how directors and producers are mobilizing the spaces of suburbia to tell new kinds of stories about America David R Coon argues that the myth of suburban perfection popularized by postwar sitcoms and advertisements continues to symbolize a range of intensely debated issues related to tradition family gender race and citizenship Through close examinations of such films as American Beauty The Truman Show and Mr Mrs Smith as well as such television series as Desperate Housewives Weeds and Big Love the book demonstrates how suburbia is used to critique the ideologies that underpin the suburban American Dream

Love's Promises Martha M. Ertman,2016-05-24 Blends memoir and legal cases to show how contracts can create family relationships Most people think of love and contracts as strange bedfellows or even opposites In Love's Promises however law professor Martha Ertman shows that far from cold and calculating contracts shape and sustain families Blending memoir and law Ertman delves into the legal cases anecdotes and history of family law to show that love comes in different packages each shaped by different contracts and mini contracts she calls deals Family law should and often does recognize that variety because legal rules like relationships aren't one size fits all The most common form of family which Ertman calls Plan A come into being through different kinds of agreements than the more uncommon families that she dubs Plan B Recognizing the contractual core of all families shows that Plan B is neither unnatural nor unworthy of legal recognition just different After telling her own moving and often irreverent story about becoming part of a Plan B family of two moms and a dad raising a child Ertman shows that all kinds of people straight and gay married and single related by adoption or by genetics use contracts to shape their relationships As couples navigate marriage reproductive technologies adoption and cohabitation they encounter contracts Sometimes hidden and other times openly acknowledged these contracts ensure that the people they think of as family are legally recognized as family in the eyes of the law Family exchanges can be substantial like vows of fidelity or small like I cook and you clean But regardless of scope the agreements shape the emotional social and financial terrain of family relationships Seeing the instrumental role contracts will help readers better understand how contracts and deals work in their own families as well as those around them Both insightful and paradigm shifting Love's Promises lets readers in on the power of contracts and deals to support love in its many forms and to honor the different ways that our nearest and dearest contribute to our daily lives
