Britain Mita Choudhury, 2019-03-07 Nation Space in Enlightenment Britain An Archaeology of Empire is a provocative intervention that extends considerably the parameters of on going dialogues about British identity during the Enlightenment Thoughtfully interdisciplinary and with an allegiance to the culture which literary production engenders this book describes how British identity emerges not despite of but due to its fluid volatile and subversive impulses and expressions The imperial establishment codified in the logics of the corporation the academy the cathedral the theater as well the private parlor or garden derives its power and sustainability from scripting and then championing a solid resistance to precisely those subversive elements which threaten or undermine the foundations of order and liberalism in civil society Choudhury argues that imperial Britain can best be understood in terms of this culture's investment in spatial alignments which celebrated a radial interface with remote points of commercial interest The volume contends Daniel Defoe Arthur Onslow David Garrick

Joseph Banks Daniel Solander Hans Sloane Francis Barber Samuel Johnson Charles Burney George Frideric Handel were not merely part of a dazzling line up of the architects of empire In retrospect their contributions and various engagements reflect remarkably modern patterns of the corporatization of culture and this culture s dependence on and thus its collusion with commerce

Writing Biography Lloyd E. Ambrosius,2004-01-01 The historian as biographer must resolve questions that reflect the dual challenge of telling history and telling lives How does the biographer sort out the individual s role within the larger historical context How do biographical studies relate to other forms of history

Should historians use different approaches to biography depending on the cultures of their subjects? What are the appropriate primary sources and techniques that scholars should use in writing biographies in their respective fields? In Writing Biography, six prominent historians address these issues and reflect on their varied experiences and divergent perspectives as biographers. Shirley A. Leckie examines the psychological and personal connections between biographer and subject. R. Keith Schoppa considers the pervasive effect of culture on the recognition of individuality and the presentation of a life. Retha M. Warnicke explores past context and modern cultural biases in writing the biographies of Tudor women. John Milton Cooper Jr. discusses the challenges of writing modern biographies and the interplay of the biographer's own experiences. Nell Irvin Painter looks at the process of reconstructing a life when written documents are scant, and Robert J. Richards investigates the intimate relationship between life experiences and new ideas. Despite their broad range of perspectives, all six scholars agree on two central points: biography and historical analysis are inextricably linked, and biographical studies offer an important tool for analyzing historical questions.

Reading 'CSI' Michael Allen, 2007-08-20 This is what we know: this is the truth. CSI is a global television phenomenon. It began in 2000 with CSI: Crime Scene Investigation, a dark procedural drama about forensic science set within the neon escapism of Las Vegas, in which Grissom and his team search within the very vitals of the murder victims they investigate. Nearly 17 million viewers tuned in each week, and CSI: Crime Scene Investigation fast became America's number one show. The success of the series moved it into franchise territory, continuing in 2002 with the body beautifuls and dismembereds of CSI: Miami, now the world's biggest television show, and again in 2004 extending the franchise to the melancholic noir of post-9/11 New York with CSI: NY. Reading CSI pieces together the evidence in order to understand what the CSI shows mean to contemporary television culture, both in America and beyond. The varied intellectually curious and often polemic responses to CSI from critics, journalists, and industry professionals focus on a range of issues: from the pornographic quality of the CGI effects, the relationship of characters to their narratives, and the reaction of the fans to the semiotics of Horatio Caine's sunglasses. This in-depth compulsive read also includes a full episode guide.

Visualization in the Age of Computerization Annamaria Carusi, Aud Sissel Hoel, Timothy Webmoor, Steve Woolgar, 2014-08-21 Digitalization and computerization are now pervasive in science. This has deep consequences for our understanding of scientific knowledge and of the scientific process, and challenges longstanding assumptions and traditional frameworks of thinking of scientific knowledge. Digital media and computational processes challenge our conception of the way in which perception and cognition work in science, of the objectivity of science, and the nature of scientific objects. They bring about new relationships between science, art, and other visual media, and new ways of practicing science and organizing scientific work, especially as new visual media are being adopted by science studies scholars in their own practice. This volume reflects on how scientists use images in the computerization age and how digital technologies are affecting the study of science.

Fuseli's Milton Gallery Luisa Cale, 2006-12-21 Fuseli's Milton Gallery challenges the antipictorial theories and canons of Romantic period culture Between 1791 and 1799 Swiss painter Henry Fuseli turned Milton's Paradise Lost into a series of 40 pictures Fuseli's project and other literary galleries developed within an expanding market for illustrated books and a culture of anthologization used to reading British and other classics in terms of the visualization of key moments in the text Thus transformed into repositories of virtual pictures literary texts became ideal sources of subjects for painters Illustrating British literature was a way of inventing a national grand style to fit the needs of a consumer society Cale calls into question the separation of reading and viewing as autonomous aesthetic practices To turn readers into spectators meant to place readers and reading within the dizzying world of associations offered by an emerging culture of exhibitions Attending to the energized reading effects developed by Fuseli's Gallery we rediscover a new side of the Romantic imagination which is not the solitary mentalist experience preferred by Wordsworth and Coleridge nor divorced from the senses let alone a refuge from the crowded public spaces of the Revolutionary period Rather Fuseli's embodied aesthetic exemplifies the associationist psychology espoused by the radical circle convening around the publisher Joseph Johnson including Joseph Priestley and Mary Wollstonecraft This book analyses exhibitions as important sites of Romantic sociability and one of many interrelated mediums for the literature debates and controversies of the Revolutionary period

Appearances Matter Tim Allender, Inés Dussel, Ian Grosvenor, Karin Priem, 2021-09-07 The visual turn recovers new pasts With education as its theme this book seeks to present a body of reflections that questions a certain historicism and renovates historiographical debate about how to conceptualize and use images and artifacts in educational history in the process presenting new themes and methods for researchers Images are interrogated as part of regimes of the visible of a history of visual technologies and visual practices Considering the socio-material quality of the image the analysis moves away from the use of images as mere illustrations of written arguments and takes seriously the question of the life and death of artifacts that is their particular historicity Questioning the visual and material evidence in this way means considering how when and in which regime of the visible it has come to be considered as a source and what this means for the questions contemporary researchers might ask between different theoretical cultures and also the first critical synthesis of cultural turns in the English speaking world

Beyond Habermas Christian Emden, David R. Midgley, 2013 During the 1960s the German philosopher Jürgen Habermas introduced the notion of a bourgeois public sphere in order to describe the symbolic arena of political life and conversation that originated with the cultural institutions of the early eighteenth century since then the public sphere itself has become perhaps one of the most debated concepts at the very heart of modernity For Habermas the tension between the administrative power of the state with its understanding of sovereignty and the emerging institutions of the bourgeoisie coffee houses periodicals encyclopedias literary culture etc was seen as being mediated by the public sphere making it a symbolic site of public reasoning This volume examines whether the public sphere remains a central explanatory model in the social sciences political theory and the humanities

Art Practice as Research Graeme Sullivan, 2010 Art Practice as Research Second Edition continues to present a compelling argument that the creative and cultural inquiry undertaken by artists is a form of research The text explores themes practices and contexts of artistic inquiry and positions them within the discourse of research Sullivan argues that legitimate research goals can be achieved by choosing different methods than those offered by the social sciences The common denominator in both approaches is the attention given to rigor and systematic inquiry Artists emphasize the role of the imaginative intellect in creating criticizing and constructing knowledge that is not only new but also has the capacity to transform human understanding

Contemporary Art and the Cosmopolitan Imagination Marsha Meskimmon, 2010-09-13 Contemporary Art and the Cosmopolitan Imagination offers a challenging new direction in the current literature on cosmopolitanism globalisation and art

Abstract Painting in Canada Roald Nasgaard, Art Gallery of Nova Scotia, 2008 In the tradition of the distinguished Douglas McIntyre art program this lavishly illustrated and superbly printed book is a rich readable history of abstract painting in Canada The story begins in the 1920s with the sometimes eccentric but remarkable work rooted in symbolism and theosophy of pioneers such as Kathleen Munn Bertram Brooker and Lawren Harris Two decades later the Automatistes Canada's first truly independent avant garde art movement burst onto the scene in Montreal After the Second World War the urge to abstraction spread across Canada manifesting itself in significant regional movements Vancouver painters retained a British flavour while in Toronto the Painters Eleven looked south to New York Montreal's Plasticiens launched their own razor edged interpretation of the European tradition of geometric abstraction In the sixties and seventies the Prairies were influenced by Clement Greenberg's post painterly abstraction while Halifax became a hub of conceptual art and concrete painting The book continues through the eighties and nineties during which critics largely denounced painting and concludes in the twenty first century with abstract painting alive and well again in the studios of Canada's young artists A monumental tome containing 200 color reproductions it mines a rich vein of art history ripe for international discovery Mass Violence and the Self Howard G. Brown, 2019-01-15 Mass Violence and the Self explores the earliest visual and textual depictions of personal suffering caused by the French Wars of Religion of 1562-98 the Fronde of 1648-52 the French Revolutionary Terror of 1793-94 and the Paris Commune of 1871 The development of novel media from pamphlets and woodblock printing to colored lithographs illustrated newspapers and collodion photography helped to determine cultural emotional and psychological responses to these four episodes of mass violence Howard G Brown's richly illustrated and conceptually innovative book shows how the increasingly effective communication of the suffering of others combined with interpretive bias to produce what may be understood as collective traumas Seeing these responses as collective traumas reveals their significance in shaping new social identities that extended beyond the village or neighborhood Moreover acquiring a sense of shared identity whether as Huguenots Parisian bourgeois French citizens or urban proletarians was less the cause of violent conflict than the consequence of it Combining neuroscience art history and biography studies Brown explores how collective trauma fostered a growing salience of the self as the key to personal identity In particular feeling empathy and compassion in response to depictions of others emotional suffering intensified imaginative self reflection Protestant martyrologies revolutionary autodefenses and personal diaries are examined in the light of cultural trends such as the interiorization of piety the culture of sensibility and the birth of urban modernism to reveal how representations of mass violence helped to shape the psychological processes of the self

German Colonialism, Visual Culture, and Modern Memory Volker Langbehn, 2010-07 Investigating visual communication and mass culture print culture and suggestive racial politics racial aesthetics racial politics and early German film racial continuity and German film and photography this title offers an evidence of a German society between 1884 and 1919 that produced vibrant and heterogeneous cultures of colonialism Re-framing Representations of Women Susan Shifrin, 2017-07-05 Crossing disciplinary and chronological boundaries this volume integrates text and image essays and object pages to explore the processes inherent in gender representation rather than resituating women in particular categories or spheres as other scholarly publications and exhibitions have done Taking its lead from the Picturing Women project on which it reflects and builds the volume makes a substantial methodological contribution to the analysis of gender discourse and visibility It offers new and stimulating scholarship that confronts historical patterns of representation that have defined what women were and are seen to be and presents new contexts for unveiling what art historian Linda Nochlin has called the mixed messages of representations of women
